MEXICO CITY, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The pessimism with which the people of the capital have regarded the efforts to end the revolution is beginning to yield before the encouraging news from the front. The announcement today that Senor Gomez, the revolutionary agent at Washington, will go to Juarez to take part in the preliminary negotiations for peace is regarded as a favorable sign.

Confirmation of the problems involved in the negotiations was taken very lightly today. It was only 8:30 o'clock this morning when Gen. Diaz, accompanied by Porfirio Diaz, Jr., drove up to the National Palace from the President's residence in Cadena. Members of the Cabinet were in attendance and at 9 o'clock the cabinet council began, which, with short interruptions, lasted until well into the afternoon.

The anxiousness were caused generally by President Diaz, who permitted no rumors to be sent into the world now and then—stopped provisions to restore those whom he particularly desired to honor.

[illegible] WONDER.

[illegible] of the men received by the President was Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson, who, under instructions from the State Department at Washington came to thank Gen. Diaz for the release of Lawrence F. Converse and Edward H. Blatt from the jail at Juarez. The interview was most cordial and of some duration.

Throughout the morning Gen. Diaz continued from time to time to come out of the council chamber into the reception hall to receive the congratulations of many distinguished men who assembled there. It was noticed that throughout the day the President was mentally alert and physically very active even for a young man of eighty. He is a wonder. In comparison with him I can only name the sage of Gramercy Park, and, after all John Bigelow has not had such an arduous and exasperated life—as the Spaniards would say—as the President of Mexico. This was my first sight of the President on this visit to the Mexican Capitol but those who have seen him daily say that the good news of Gen. Madero's willingness to make terms has had a most rejuvenating effect on him.

PRESIDENT IS PLEASED.

Prohibitionists are expected to file a petition with the Pasadena Council this morning asking for a more rigid liquor law than now regulates the sale of intoxicants. It is hardly probable that the old Council which today holds its last regular meeting, will take any action on the matter.

The Woman's Parliament opened its three day meeting at Riverside, and Mayor Evans gallantly presented the keys of the city. President Wilkes opened with a recitation of the progress of women, and hinted broadly at strides to be made in the near future.

The Democratic candidate for Mayor of San Bernardino whose election is questioned by his opponents, has begun delay tactics to prevent as long as possible the recount which the two alleged losers demand.

PACIFIC SLOPE. Glenn county authorities yesterday arrested two men in connection with the murder of G. W. Baker, near Willows.

Federal Judge Wolverton in Portland yesterday decided that the Southern Pacific Railway Company must restore to the Federal government land granted in the '60s, and now worth $75,000,000.

The people of Tacoma were reported yesterday to be sick and tired of elections, and they are beginning to see the possibilities of grave abuses in the recall.

Five Seattle firemen were injured yesterday when the aerial ladder from which they were fighting a warehouse fire collapsed.

GENERAL EASTERN. Ortie McManigal made an unsuccessful attempt to escape from the detectives just before the train bearing them to Los Angeles reached Kansas City.

The grand jury in Indianapolis yesterday took possession of evidence against dynamiters found in the offices of the International Union of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers.

Francisco I. Madero yesterday sent word to all his rebel chiefs to attend a peace conference, to be held probably in El Paso.

A large lot of letters belonging to the McNamaras was found in Cincinnati yesterday by a Burns detective.

The men investigating the election of Senator Lorimer were reported yesterday to have in tow a man who sent for a packing-house a $10,000 check for the "slush" fund.

Detectives were reported to be on the trail last night of four men suspected of dynamiting properties in Cleveland.

Schmidt and Capian, wanted for dynamiting the Times Building, dodge officers, after having been shadowed for some time, according to statement by detectives in Chicago yesterday.

Assistant District Attorney Ford of Los Angeles was arrested in Indianapolis yesterday on a charge of kidnaping McNamara.

WASHINGTON. A Washington Congressman yesterday introduced a bill to put products of Southern California on the free list.

Dr. Gomez, confidential agent of the Mexican revolutionists in Washington, said yesterday he is confident peace will result from the armistice.

The re-election of Mrs. Stilson of Los Angeles as regent for California of the Daughters of the American Revolution was confirmed yesterday.

Senator Works was reported yesterday to have spurned a place on the Judiciary Committee offered to him if he would forsake the insurgents.

FOREIGN. President Diaz, active and strong yesterday spent the day with the Cabinet on peace plans; determined not to conclude peace by telegram.

The French government was reported last night to be preparing for every eventuality in Morocco.

If peace plans fail, Chihuahua heard yesterday that the rebels will next attack that city.

The Pacific Mail steamship Asia sank Sunday off Finger Rock in the South China Sea. The passengers and mail were saved.

FINANCIAL. Though wheat averaged higher yesterday, because of foreign news, the close showed a net decline, owing to selling by traders who attached more importance to western rates.

Discouragement over the outlook for industrial condition was the chief reason for the increase in bearish sentiment on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday.

NATIONAL Y.W.C.A. STAGGERED BY ENORMOUS EXPENSE.

Committee Is Appointed by the Biennial Convention in Indianapolis to Inquire Into the Matter—Speakers From Paris and London Address the Delegates.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The final session of the national biennial convention of the Y. W. C. A. was addressed tonight by Robert E. Speer of New York, secretary for the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian church. The final business session was held this morning and the afternoon session was devoted to discussions of the work of associations in foreign countries.

On the programme this afternoon were: Miss Ethel Stevenson of London, corresponding secretary of the World's Committee; Miss Suzanne Bidgrain of Paris, France, secretary of the National Committee of France; Miss Mary B. Hill, general secretary of the Lahore (India) Association, and Miss Caroline MacDonald, secretary for the National Committee of Japan.

Mrs. J. H. Tritton of London, president of the World's Committee, presided.

The matter of deciding where the next convention will be held was not discussed, but was left with the national board. The question of lengthening the time between meetings of the convention was discussed and it was agreed tentatively that it would be better to hold the convention every three or four years, because of the enormous expense entailed.

The nominating committee reported the following to serve on a committee to consider this proposition: Mrs. William F. Slocum, Colorado Springs, Colo.; Miss Gertrude E. MacArthur, New York; Miss C. C. Raynwater, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. Frank S. Wallace, Pasadena, Cal.; Mrs. C. J. Buchanan, Indianapolis, and Miss Maude Corbett, Minneapolis, Minn.

Packed into the Murat Theater in such numbers that two overflow meetings were necessary the delegates and visitors to the convention yesterday listened to a discourse on "Christianity" by Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of San Francisco. Los Angeles delegates, including Miss Helen Salisbury, student secretary for California, Arizona and Nevada and Miss Margery Melcher, student volunteer secretary, occupied places on the stage with several other officials.

"We are living in a day which harbors a passion for reality," said Dr. Hughes, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church. "The Christian puts himself in a bad light when he seems the least bit unnatural in tone of voice, or in mannerism.

"Young people are prone to think of religion as medicine rather than as food. When they go into a dimly lighted church there is always something in the atmosphere that is just a little ghostly. The Y.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A. buildings are not after this fashion and consequently have a great educative place in the religious development of the young."

Miss Grace H. Dodge of New York, president of the National Board of the Y.W.C.A., gave a short address at the opening of the meeting.

Miss Dodge and Miss Louise Holmquist spoke to the 1500 women in the overflow meeting in the Murat banquet hall, and Miss Florence Simms, national board secretary, and Mrs. J. H. Tritton, president of the world's Y.W.C.A., were the speakers at Roberts' Park M.E. Church.

Conservative estimates place the crowd at more than 5000.

Tomorrow morning the final day of the convention will start with a business meeting at the First Baptist Church. The recommendations of the national board will be discussed.

Jeremiah W. Jenks of Cornell University is scheduled to address the session and the Rev. John Henry Strong will conduct the devotional hour.

UNION MEN BEAT HIM.

One Arrested, Others Accused, of Running Workman Out of Town.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WINNEMUCCA (Nev.) April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Ed McKelvey, formerly a union miner of Montezuma, a mining camp near here, has been arrested by Constable Moore on the charge of having assisted in beating Alfred Stagg, a non-union miner, and driving him away from Montezuma. The warrant also calls for the arrest of Alex Chisholm and Theodore Cashawa, union men. There are other union men wanted for this offense, but so far Stagg has been unable to identify them. Stagg says that McKelvey, Cashawa, Chisholm and others beat him severely and then drove him from the camp.

HUNTINGTON BUYS FIRST BOOK FROM MOVABLE TYPES.

When the Bibliophiles Learned That the Los Angeles Man Had Purchase the Famous Gutenberg Book They Cheered to the Echo. Other Notable Sales Made.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Henry E. Huntington tonight paid $50,000 for the famous Gutenberg Bible in the Robert Hoe collection, which is almost double the price ever paid for a book in the history of book dealing. The purchase was made at an auction sale which began this afternoon in Anderson's auction rooms. There were 450 persons present, an assemblage probably most representative of bibliophiles ever congregated in this country.

While bidding opened with unusual briskness, keen interest did not become apparent until two massive volumes of the Gutenberg Bible were placed on the auction block. The first bid made was $10,000. Immediately this was jumped to $15,000, thence to $21,000, and by thousands up to $27,000. Then there was a jump to $30,000, and then to $42,000. With alternate bids ranging from $250 to $750, the amount quickly jumped to $49,000. At that George D. Smith put in his bid for $50,000, and the books were knocked down to him at that price. After Smith had announced that the famous books were purchased for Henry E. Huntington, there was much applause.

The Gutenberg Bible is famous and valuable as the first book printed from movable types.

The total receipts for the evening were $110,895.50, exceeding the afternoon receipts by more than $85,000. The second highest price paid during the evening was $12,000 for Berner's "Book of Saint Albans." This was the first English book in which color printing was used. In addition to these two books there were ten books which sold for more than $1000 each. Of these there was the "Historia Di Italia" by Guicciardini, which was knocked down to Mr. Smith for $2600. Another handsome folio which was sold to Walter M. Hill of Chicago for $5500 was "Aethiopicae Historiae," by Heliodorus.

The highest price previously paid for the Gutenberg Bible was $20,000, at which Bernard Quaritch purchased it in England fourteen years ago. At a private sale he disposed of it shortly afterward to Mr. Hoe at a profit of $2500, and it has remained in the Hoe collection ever since. The copy was printed some time between 1450 and 1455.

Fighting Back.

FORD ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF KIDNAPING UNION DYNAMITER.

Los Angeles Attorney Victim of Vengeful Indianapolis Union Organizers.

Counsel Drew of National Erectors' Association and Chauffeur Who Took McNamara Away Are Also Taken by Constables, and Warrants Are Out for Burns and Six Others—Prisoners Are Released on Bonds.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Affidavits charging kidnaping against ten persons who had to do with the hasty removal of J. J. McNamara from Indianapolis following his arrest for alleged complicity in numerous dynamiting outrages were sworn out by John J. Koegan, organizer for the International Union of Machinists, tonight.

Up to midnight four men were taken into custody by constables from the court of John O. Manring, justice of the peace. Those arrested are: W. J. Ford, assistant District Attorney for Los Angeles county, Cal., who has been in Indianapolis collecting evidence for the California authorities; Walter Drew, counsel for the National Erectors' Association, who has been in Indianapolis during the investigation of the dynamiting; Frank P. Fox of this city, owner and driver of the automobile in which McNamara was taken away from Indianapolis.

WOULD ARREST BURNS.

Seven other affidavits were sworn out at the same time, all against operatives connected with the Burns Detective Agency, the members of which, led by W. J. Burns, their chief, caused the arrest of McNamara. These include Burns, himself.

Mr. Drew was arrested by W. L. Geralds and Daniel J. Barton, constables, in his room at the Claypool Hotel, shortly after 9 o'clock. Drew went to the office of Justice Manning, where he was met by W. A. Ketcham, former Attorney-General and president of the Iron Foundry Company, who signed a bond in the sum of $5000 for his appearance in Justice Manning's court tomorrow morning.

Mr. Ketcham also signed the bonds for Mr. Ford and Fox, the latter's security being fixed at $4000. Justice Manning fixed a lesser surety for Fox because he is a resident of this city.

Earlier in the afternoon, Frank P. Baker, prosecutor for Marion county (a unionite sympathizer) appointed Henry Seyfried a special prosecutor to take charge of the prosecution against the men charged with kidnaping. Baker explained that he desired to take up the cases from all angles and his action in preparing to bring the charges against the men who aided in taking McNamara away was based upon a desire to ascertain all of the facts in the case.

FORD WALKS INTO IT.

Seyfried explained that his connection with the case had nothing to do with the guilt or innocence of McNamara and that he would prosecute the kidnaping charges as a representative of the State in which he had been specially deputized.

It is understood that the prosecution will proceed on the theory that the Police Court before which McNamara was taken at the time of his arrest, and prior to his hasty departure from Indianapolis, had no jurisdiction in the case and that therefore the action of the Police Court was a nullity.

Mr. Ford, the Los Angeles deputy prosecutor, learned that Mr. Drew had been arrested at the hotel and he immediately made his way to Squire Manning's office, not knowing that there was a warrant for him. He joked with Drew concerning his arrest, but when the constable learned that it was one of the men for whom he had a warrant he drew the paper from his pocket and read the charge to him. Mr. Ketcham then signed his bond and all three left the court room.

STATEMENT OF DIST-ATTY. FREDERICKS.

Dist.-Atty. Fredericks of Los Angeles county, when informed last evening of Ford's arrest, said:

"The arrest of Mr. Ford is an absurdity and nothing can come of it except a little delay. He is not an arresting officer anyway. He went to Indianapolis to collect evidence and to see that the papers in the cases were all right. The extradition papers under which the prisoners are being brought to Los Angeles were duly executed and signed by the Governors of both States. There can be no flaw in the case, so far as that is concerned; and as to the arrest and removal from Indianapolis, why Ford had nothing to do with it. He will take care of himself all right."

"Veritable Hades."

INDIANAPOLIS HORRIFIED BY FINDING OF "DEN OF DEVILS."

Business Men Realize Folly of Efforts to Make City Headquarters of Unionism When They Look at Noisome Cellar Where Dynamiters Kept Explosives Enough to Blow Town from Map.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] When this city became the national headquarters of the International Typographical Union, then of the United Mine Workers and then of the Carpenters and Joiners, and unthinking men and self-seeking public officials continued to invite other labor organizations to make their headquarters here, there were many protests from those who believed that such additions to the city would later be regretted because they would lead to a tyranny by organized labor that would more than counteract the doubtful prestige that their coming would give.

Employers of labor freely predicted that, while the treasurers of these organizations would add to the volume of business by the banks, and the coming of local officers and delegates to conventions would cause the spending of money that might not otherwise find its way here, the people in the end would more than pay for these advantages in the thralldom that the unions would enforce and the exactions that the presence of their headquarters would inspire them to demand.

Those who predicted these conditions have lived to be admitted to be more far-sighted than those who, seeking financial profit or political honors and emoluments, were so urgent that the union organizations establish their headquarters here.

NO AID TO MORALS.

The coming of one has attracted another and another and another, till now there are six such organizations with national headquarters here and none of them has ever been a factor in the moral or intellectual advancement of the city.

Some of them have large deposits with the banks, but the money has never found investment here except

SCHMIDT AND CAPLAN REPORTED TO HAVE ELUDED DETECTIVES.

Burns Men Admit Dynamiters Slipped Away Just Before Trap Was Sprung—Confident, However, of Capture Before Long—Son of Chief Sleuth Gives Interesting Details of Search for Union Criminals.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Today just as two detective agencies were about to swoop down upon two more members of the union gang of dynamiters charged with wrecking the plant of the Los Angeles Times it was discovered that the two supposedly "cornered" men had eluded their pursuers.

Matt Schmidt, intimate associate of Chicago socialists, who until four days ago was under surveillance in this city, cannot be found by the sleuths, who insist that he played an important part in the dynamiting that cost twenty lives.

David Caplan, the other member of the gang of five being sought, is just as elusive. This was admitted today by officials of the William J. Burns National Detective Agency, who but twenty-four hours before were confident that all that was necessary was to stretch out their nets and the two men would be entangled in their meshes.

This development came in a mass of discoveries that showed the inner workings of the union conspirators who had made a little back room flat on the west side their headquarters in the murderous plots that are estimated to have cost business interests more than $5,000,000 and the lives of many men.

DETECTIVES OUTWITTED.

Not the least interesting feature of the game of hide and seek known to have existed for years, was the part that Chicago detectives unwittingly played in the plot a year ago. In the rear room of the flat of Ortie McManigal, No. 414 South Sangamon street, the walking delegate of the Ironworkers' Union, who is now being rushed to Los Angeles in the custody of private detectives as one of the union leaders in The Times dynamiting plot, there was a "plant" of 490 pounds of dynamite, fuse and caps, say the detectives.

But the Chicago police knew nothing about this. They did know, however, that McManigal was suspected of stealing a mass of brass and iron workers' appliances from a West Side warehouse. So two men were sent to his house from the West Lake-street Police Station. They were under orders to search his flat.

But McManigal, who chanced to be at home when they arrived, had a different idea on the subject. He found them standing in front of the door of the room now shown to have contained the deadly explosives.

"Well, don't bother any further," he is quoted as saying. "I'll show you where to look."

SHOWS STOLEN BRASS.

The detectives were led to a big barn in the rear of the house. The result was the discovery of the missing goods and failure to uncover the dynamite now declared to have been used in blowing up some of the many structures wrecked by the union gang.

The whereabouts of Schmidt, popularly known as "Schmidty," and Caplan, is giving the private detectives the hardest work of the entire case. During the day it was shown that not only the Burns agency but the Pinkerton National Agency is making every effort to find the two men.

The Pinkerton Detective Agency is declared to have been under the impression that it had the two men securely cornered. So also did the Burns agency.

Schmidt, who is clever at mechanical appliances used in the wood working trade, became well known to reformers and social settlement workers about two years ago, when he operated a safety device at an exposition of such appliances at Brooke's Casino.

INTERESTS REFORMERS.

He was considered a likeable sort of a man and he was accepted as something of an authority on certain matters concerning his trade. Miss Mary McDowell, of the University Settlement, talked to him repeatedly concerning the needs of his trade. But during the six months while he was being consulted by reformers, private detectives were dogging his footsteps awaiting an opportunity to arrest him with other members of the gang now credited with the most gigantic plot to do violence ever laid at the door of organized labor.

According to evidence brought to light today the private "shadows" never lost sight of either Schmidt or Caplan until the night before the arrest of John J. McNamara, secretary of the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' Union, in Indianapolis. Then, just as the trap was about to be sprung on the entire membership of the long followed coterie, something happened.

Just what occurred is not quite clear. The arrest of McNarama, instead of taking place on the same night that McManigal and J. W. McNamara were arrested in Detroit, was postponed for twenty-four hours. Still these two men were not found.

Not less than two weeks ago the Pinkerton detectives, apparently aware of the coup about to be sprung by the Burns agency, caused the arrest of a Chicago man whose description corresponded in many ways with that of the missing Schmidt. The prisoner had a glass eye, so has Schmidt.

CONFLICTING REPORTS.

That was just four weeks after Schmidt had been seen in the local offices of the Structural Iron Workers' Union.

The man arrested, however, showed that his only connection with the dynamite plot was this likeness to Schmidt.

Numerous conflicting reports were heard about Chicago during the day concerning the whereabouts of Schmidt. One of these was that he had been arrested in California several weeks ago and now was being held secretly, in order to prevent possible interference from the outside.

But Raymond Burns, son of the head of the detective agency that bears his name, denied that such was the case. He admitted that the exact whereabouts of the two men now being sought was unknown to their operatives.

"We don't know where Schmidt and Caplan are just now," he said. "We expect to get them and we expect to thus complete our work on the case.

"Evidence, we have enough to hang certain men. One of the chief reasons that certain evidence against the men is being carefully guarded is that we are afraid if it became public property we never would get the men to Los Angeles alive. There is not the slightest doubt in my mind but that the evidence now in our possession will convict the prisoners now being rushed out to California.

PRECAUTIONS TAKEN.

"Our private reports from the special cars taking the prisoners to the Coast show that there has been no mishap, although every precaution has been taken to prevent possible interference from men interested in preventing this case from coming to trial.

"It is my belief that they must go to trial within sixty days, under the California laws, and, for that reason every effort will be made to bring the case to a speedy hearing in court. I think that about twenty men from this office have been working on the evidence and practically all of them will be called as witnesses."

William J. Burns, head of the agency, is returning to Chicago after examining the last of the dynamiters' caches, that at Tiffin, O. Burns is also in possession of books and documents appropriated in the international offices of the union at Indianapolis which, he believes, will have a strong bearing on the case.

It will be shown, his operatives declare, that large sums of money collected in the union have been expended by the treasurer under the general head of "organization work." But this is not itemized and it has been impossible to learn what became of this money.

PAID FROM ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

It is shown in other accounts, however, that the regularly-appointed organizers are paid from another itemized fund and that all of their expenses are itemized. The detectives will endeavor to show that the sums expended in that general manner and not itemized in any of the already-discovered accounts went to pay the salaries and traveling expenses of the dynamiters.

The first inkling the public has had as to how the remarkable chase after the dynamiting crew began and how they were singled out months ago as the perpetrators of the Los Angeles Times explosion, was given today by Raymond Burns, son of William J. Burns, who himself led the band of detectives who captured "Jim" McNamara and Ortie McManigal at Detroit on April 12, as they were on their way, with suit cases filled with dynamite and infernal machines, to blow up the new Detroit terminal.

"A woman—the landlady with whom "Jim" McNamara boarded in Los Angeles—gave us the first tip," he said.

"Matt Schmidt was a daily visitor at her home. He went there to see McNamara. Caplan was also a visitor at the home.

OVERHEARD PLOT.

"She was an inquisitive person and one day happened to overhear a conversation between the three. They were plotting to blow up the Times Building. She stepped into a bedroom adjoining that occupied by the three and listened. She heard them talk of where the dynamite was stored, of the naphtha launch which they had moored in the harbor and of how the plot was to be carried out.

"It was on the night following this conversation that the plot was carried out. The woman was highly excited and kept her own counsel the following day. Finally she called up my father on the telephone and he met her. She told him all of the details of the conversation she had overheard and all she knew concerning the three men.

"This is the woman now known as 'Jane Doe' who is under indictment in connection with the affair.

"With this information in hand, my father started his corps of detectives after the dynamiters. Time and again in the months that have elapsed we could have arrested McNamara, but they did not have 'the goods.'

"Every minute detectives have been on his heels. They stood idly by while he blew up bridges, and structural iron work but were powerless. They could not get him at an opportune time when the big Los Angeles crime could be proven.

CHUMMY WITH SLEUTHS.

"On November third of last year, a month after the blowing up of The Times, McNamara came to Chicago. He was joined here by McManigal. Three of our detectives got chummy with them and the five men went to Conover, Wis., together on a hunting trip. I was in that neighborhood fishing at the time.

"When McManigal and McNamara came back to Chicago they went to McManigal's home at No. 414 South Sangamon street. McNamara was known to the neighbors as McManigal's wife's brother.

"They were frequently together here in the city. McManigal was here less than three weeks ago and paid his dues in advance in the local union. McNamara was a favorite with women. In Conover, Wis., he became acquainted with a young girl under the name of Frank Sullivan. In Chicago he "kept company" with a woman living in a flat in the same apartment building where McManigal lived.

"It was no small job to trace the connection between McManigal, 'Jim' McNamara and the latter's brother, John J. McNamara. In the two years they have been working havoc with dynamite they have never written or telegraphed each other. They usually met in Cincinnati, O. John J. McNamara ususually went there on Friday night, either to his mother's home in that city, or Tiffin, O., where McManigal's father lived. There they would receive orders from John J. McNamara and funds to carry on their murderous work.

USUALLY STOLE DYNAMITE.

"Our detectives were on their heels when they held these meetings. By trailing them after these meetings they found that the dynamite was being stolen from a quarry near Bloomville, O., and being carted away by 'Jim' McNamara and McManigal. In only one instance did they buy dynamite. That was at the time of the Peoria explosion.

"The dynamite was carried away from Bloomville in suit cases. The last steal from the quarry was nearly 1000 pounds of explosive. The dynamite was taken to three caches which the gang had.

"One was at Tiffin, O., in a shed in the rear of the home of McManigal's father's home, from which they took the dynamite used in Cleveland, O., Detroit and other eastern cities where they exploded infernal machines. A second cache was on the Jones Farm, south of Indianapolis, where they went for dynamite used in Milwaukee and other cities in the West. A third cache was in McManigal's own home at No. 414 South Sangamon street.

"When McManigal was arrested for stealing brass a year ago, he had dynamite stored in the flat. His eagerness to confess and tell the police that the brass was hidden in a barn in the rear of the flat building was probably due to his fear that a search of the premises was to be made and the dynamite found. He had nearly 400 pounds of the explosive in the flat with his wife and two little children at that time.

M'MANIGAL UNEASY.

"McManigal was getting uneasy at the time of his arrest. He was laying plans to get a new flat and his wife was out looking for one. They had practically decided upon a location and four detectives had rented the one directly below that McManigal had taken."

"The flat in Chicago where the dynamiters' cache is said to have been located is situated on the third floor in the rear of No. 414 South Sangamon street. Entrance to it is gained by a stairway in the rear. McManigal has lived there for five years."

Raymond Burns denied today that Caplan was already under arrest and had been secretly taken to California and confined in a jail, near Los Angeles. He also denied that Matt Schmidt was under arrest, although he admitted that up until recently detectives from the agency had been close on his trail.

"We have lost track of both Schmidt and Caplan," he said. "We have no clew to their whereabouts."

Mr. Burns said that Caplan had not been in the West since "The Times" explosion. As far as they have been able to learn he has not communicated with his wife, who is still living in the western city. He and Schmidt are charged only with being implicated in the Los Angeles explosion. "Jim" McNamara and Ortie McManigal are said to have been alone in the four score or more explosions which are charged against the dynamite wreckers.

PREVIOUS ARREST.

In searching the police records today it was found that Ortie McManigal was arrested a year ago last January by the Lake Street Station police on fourteen charges of stealing brass from warehouses. Through the efforts of Mrs. Emily Eastman, who went on his bonds, a number of persons were interested in his case, and the result was that twelve of the cases were dismissed before he went on trial.

On a charge of stealing a derrick from Alexander H. Roy, No. 3034 North Springfield avenue, he was sentenced to a day in jail. The other charge, of stealing some sledges from the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, was dismissed. Mrs. Eastman is now under indictment in the Criminal Court.

The story of the secret night automobile trip, by which "Jim" McNamara and Ortie McManigal were spirited on last Saturday night from the flat of Detective Reed in South Chicago, where they had been captives since April 12, to Joliet, where after an eventful trip they were placed on the Santa Fe flyer late Sunday night, was told today by a member of the party.

THRILLING RIDE.

The start was made from Reed's home in two machines at 5:45 o'clock. The machines separated half a mile apart, and at the city limits, left the CONSCIENTIOUS UNIONITES QUITTING THE ORGANIZATION.

The revelations as to the astounding extent of the murderous operations of the dynamiting delegates of the labor unions has made hundreds of self-respecting and law-abiding members of these unions heartsick.

The Times is credibly informed that many of them, in Los Angeles, conscience-stricken and wishing to do the right thing, have already torn up their cards and will sever their connection with the crime-stained organization.

The Times has always said that the rank and file of the unions are respectable, well-meaning men. Most of them affiliate with the unions just to be "good fellows," not to be "odd," and are absolutely indifferent to union principles. And there are many honest ones duped into fanaticism by the misrepresentations of their demagogic leaders.

Nine out of every ten labor union members abominate such despicable deeds as that for which the three union bosses have been arrested—such crimes as the hundred and more perpetrated by the knaves of the Structural Iron Workers' Union and costing over one hundred lives. Nine out of ten union men want to earn an honest living and do the right thing. The crime, the destruction, the mischief, are planned by the grafters and criminals who boost themselves into office and who thrive upon disturbance and disorder.

The Times believes that the shocking disclosures of the enormities committed by the leaders who have deceived and betrayed them will induce hundreds of union men in Los Angeles to forsake the temple of disrepute within the next few days.

Good men will not permit themselves to be tarred by the revolting stick which has laid such blackness upon the head men of the unions. For the sake of their own repute and out of respect for their families, they will surely make haste to disconnect themselves from an alliance with dynamiters and assassins. The sooner they take this step the better they will feel.

The Times has no need and no intent to tell them what to do. They will do it of their own free will and accord; they are doing it now.

CHICAGO POLICE ARE HUNTING FOR SCHMIDT AND CAPLAN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The police today said they were looking for the two missing members of the dynamiters' gang. A reward aggregating over $25,000 has been offered for the arrest of these two men alone. They are under indictment for murder in connection with the Los Angeles Times Building explosion. The Burns Detective Agency charges that they were with "Jim" McNamara when the Los Angeles explosion occurred. The police descriptions follow:

Storing of Dynamite a Crime in Hoosier State.

Union Officials Want the Detectives Arrested.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) April 24.—By an order of Judge Joseph T. Markey of the Marion county Criminal Court today, only the County Prosecutor, members of the grand jury and officials of the International Union of Bridge and Structural Iron workers will be permitted to examine books and papers taken from the offices of the association.

This action, taken on applications of the attorneys of the union, and with the approval of the County Prosecutor, bars private detectives and unofficial investigators from inspecting the books, correspondence and documents.

The material was locked up in the grand jury room and will be submitted to the grand jury tomorrow in the course of the investigation into the identity of the persons who deposited dynamite in the iron workers' storage compartment in the basement of the building in which are its offices.

A part of the books and papers were seized by the police Saturday in a raid on the offices led by William J. Burns, in the employ of the National Erectors' Association, investigating dynamite explosions that have damaged buildings and bridges in course of construction in many parts of the country and destroyed the Los Angeles Times Building with great loss of life.

RAID FOLLOWS ARREST.

The raid followed the arrest of J. J. McNamara, secretary-treasurer of the iron workers, indicted in Los Angeles for alleged complicity in an explosion at the Llewellyn Iron Works.

Superintendent of Police Hyland was summoned before the grand jury and afterward a summons was issued for Frank M. Ryan, president of the Ironworkers' Union, ordering him to produce additional records. Ryan was to have appeared this afternoon, but he did not do so, and by order of the grand jury, deputy sheriffs went to the office building with a wagon, filled the desired documents in it and took them to the Courthouse. It was said the grand jury at this time did not care to examine Ryan.

The books and papers demanded by the grand jury were stacked about the four packages of dynamite fuses, explosive caps and alarm clocks discovered by the police in Saturday night's raid. The explosives were removed to a secret place by the authorities and the other material was guarded by the police until it was taken out.

Attorneys of the Ironworkers' Union who strongly protested against the removal of the records, said their purpose in asking the court for the order granted by Judge Markey was to prevent examination of the books by Detective Burns and his assistants, and by Walker Drew, chief counsel for the National Erectors' Association.

GETS HOLD OF SUIT CASE.

Drew said he waited with interest the return of Detective Burns from Toledo, O., where, dispatches had related, he obtained from the checkroom of the union station a suit case, which Burns said belonged either to Ed. McNamara or Ortie McManigal, and contained evidence tending to show complicity in dynamite explosions.

Frank P. Baker, county prosecutor, announced that the grand jury investigation will go into intimations that there was a conspiracy against the Ironworkers' Union and its officials resulting in the "planting" of the dynamite to create evidence against them in their offices. These allegations were contained in statements attributed to the union officials.

Baker also said the grand jury would investigate the charges that the dynamite was collected here with the intention of using it to destroy buildings being erected by contractors employing non-union iron workers. The depositing of the dynamite in the basement of the office building was itself, he said, an offense against the laws of Indiana. He declined to say what witnesses are to be called. Superintendent of Police Hyland spent two hours in the grand jury room. The trend of his testimony was not disclosed.

Contest over the possession of the books of the Ironworkers' Union became acute early, when counsel for the association obtained in a justice of peace court a writ of replevin directed against Superintendent of Police Hyland and Prosecutor Baker. The writ was served as Hyland was in the grand jury room. He and the prosecutor refused to give up the books and the prosecutor warned the constable that if he returned with the writ he could be cited for contempt of court. The books, the prosecutor said, had been taken over as evidence by the grand jury and no court could remove them within the time they were under inspection.

JURY TAKES POSSESSION.

Then the grand jury determined to take possession as evidence of the accounts and papers in the union's storage compartment. A subpoena was issued directing President Ryan to bring them into court and when a deputy sheriff went to the union's offices to serve it he was accompanied by Attorney Drew of the Erectors' Association, Superintendent Hyland and W. J. Ford, assistant District Attorney of Los Angeles.

After the subpoena had been read to Ryan, he ordered the rooms cleared of all persons not officials of the association. The Superintendent of Police then withdrew a policeman who had been guarding the documents in the storage compartment, as, he said, the matter had been taken charge of by the county authorities. Attorney Drew protested that this action left the books and papers unprotected and that some of them might be extracted. Thereupon the prosecutor ordered two deputies to guard the compartment until the material in it should be taken to the grand jury room.

The Iron Workers' Union engaged additional attorneys and Secretary-Treasurer McNamara employed counsel for him personally.

Henry Beyfried, McNamara's attorney, in an interview denounced the action of McNamara as an "outrageous illegality," and said he believed the detectives were guilty of breaking under the laws of Indiana. It was reported that affidavits were

GETS HOLD OF SUIT CASE.

Drew said he waited with interest the return of Detective Burns from Toledo, O., where, dispatches had revealed, he obtained from the checkroom of the union station a suit case, which Burns said belonged either to J. W. McNamara or Ortie McManigal, and contained evidence tending to show complicity in dynamite explosions.

Frank P. Baker, county prosecutor, announced that the grand jury investigation will go into intimations that there was a conspiracy against the Ironworkers' Union and its officials resulting in the "planting" of the dynamite to create evidence against them in their offices. These allegations were contained in statements attributed to the union officials.

Baker also said the grand jury would investigate the charges that the commission was collected here with the intention of using it to destroy buildings being erected by contractors employing non-union iron workers. The exploding of the dynamite in the basement of the office building was a fluke, he said, an offense against the laws of Indiana. He declined to say what witnesses are to be called. Superintendent of Police Hyland spent two hours in the grand jury room. The trend of his testimony was not disclosed.

Control over the possession of the books of the Ironworkers' Union became an issue, when counsel for the association obtained in a justice of peace court a writ of replevin, directed to Superintendent of Police Hyland and Prosecutor Baker. The writ was served on Hyland was in the grand jury room. He and the prosecutor refused to give up the books and the prosecutor warned the constable that if he returned with the writ he would be cited for contempt of court. The books, the prosecutor said, had been taken over as evidence by the grand jury and no court could remove them within the time they were under inspection.

JURY TAKES POSSESSION.

Then the grand jury determined to take possession as evidence of the action and papers in the union's storage compartment. A subpoena was issued directing President Ryan to bring them into court and when a deputy sheriff went to the union's offices to serve it he was accompanied by Attorney Drew of the Erectors' Association, Superintendent Hyland and W. J. Ford, assistant District Attorney of Los Angeles.

After the subpoena had been read Drew ordered the rooms cleared of persons not officials of the association. The Superintendent of Police withdrew a policeman who had been guarding the documents in the storage compartment, as, he said, the matter had been taken charge of by higher authorities. Attorney Drew contended that this action left the books and papers unprotected and some of them might be extracted. Therefore, the prosecutor ordered police to guard the compartment until the material in it should be taken to the grand jury room.

The Iron Workers' Union engaged additional attorneys and Secretary-Treasurer McNamara employed counsel for him personally.

Darrow, McNamara's attorney, in an interview denounced the action of McNamara as an "outrage," and said he believed the detectives were guilty of crimes under the laws of Indiana. It was reported that affidavits were being prepared to be filed in a justice court, charging private detectives with kidnaping McNamara.

Labor leaders in public statements said McNamara had been "railroaded" without opportunity of consulting counsel and without a hearing.

On the other hand, Police Judge Collins, who turned McNamara over to a police sergeant from Los Angeles, said under the law he had no alternative, as the Los Angeles policeman had a State warrant from Gov. Marshall, who honored the requisition of the Governor of California and McNamara had admitted his identity as the man named in the warrant.

While tears adown their faces glisten.

Lighting ever,
Dying never,
Rear the angry flames;
Crashing walls' din
Hemming souls in—
Oh, accursed shame unnamed!
All the waking city
Stands and weeps in pity.

IV.

"Vengeance is mine;
Thee I'll divine
To curse a thousand fold.
I'm God to no traitor,"
Cries the Creator,
Watching the fire unfold,
As the flames ascend and linger,
Like signets on a spirit finger.

Higher circles,
Where the Eagle hoary
Through it all
Does not fall
But stands unscathed in glory,
God's prophesy to man he gives:

MADE A BREAK FOR LIBERTY.

DYNAMITE SUSPECT WAS FOILED BY THE DETECTIVES.

McManigal Is Quoted to Have Said He Would Have Gained Freedom Had He Only Been Able to Reach a Pistol—Accused Are in a Special Car Closely Guarded.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

KANSAS CITY, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Locked in a special car, hands and feet shackled and closely guarded by four officers, James W. McNamara and Ortie McManigal, being hurried to Los Angeles, were taken through Kansas City at 3:50 o'clock this morning on the Santa Fe Flyer. The officers refused to permit anyone to talk with the prisoners.

McManigal tried to escape just before the train reached Kansas City by grappling with Detective Reed.

"I would have got off if I had gotten my hands on that revolver," he declared after being subdued.

The car occupied by the officers and men was labeled "Carrizo." It is a steel compartment car, the aisle running down one side. Every effort toward secrecy relative to the movements of the officers and their prisoners has been made since they were taken from Chicago Saturday night. This plan, it is asserted, was adopted because of repeated threats on the part of the prisoners that the officers would never reach their destination with them. If necessary to prevent it, it was reported the prisoners had said their friends would dynamite the train upon which they were traveling.

When Santa Fe No. 3, with the officers and prisoners aboard, arrived in Union Depot an attempt was made to carry out this programme of secrecy. The train officials asserted positively the party was not on the train, but it was learned they occupied a special car. This car was attached to the train in Joliet at 9 o'clock last night. Besides the prisoners, this car carried a trunk of dynamite and other explosives found in Detroit, April 12, when McManigal and McNamara were arrested. The officers in charge of the men were William H. Reed of Chicago; Malcolm McLaren, a representative of the Burns agency; E. C. Brain, a Los Angeles detective and Capt. Paul Fiammer, also of the Los Angeles detective department.

M'NAMARA WAS PRESENT.

And It Wasn't Long After He Was There That Dynamite Damaged a Salt Lake Building.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SALT LAKE (Utah) April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In conjunction with the detectives of Indianapolis the police here are investigating the dynamiting a year ago of the new $3,000,000 Utah Hotel building in Salt Lake with the belief that the work can be accredited to John McNamra, secretary-Treasurer of the International Iron Workers.

The dynamiting occurred when the steel of the thirteen-story structure was finished and the explosion caused about $2000 damage, wrecking part of the steel and fracturing the frame work in several places.

The dynamiting was the result, it is believed, of the employment exclusively of non-union steel workers. McNamara was in the city shortly before the dynamiting.

M'NAMARA SAYS FRIENDS WILL DYNAMITE THE TRAIN.

Calls Himself a Martyr and Says He Was Saving Working People From Oppression—Makes Wild Boast of Ordering Wrecking or Blowing Up of Train.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

KANSAS CITY, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Kansas City Post today prints the following from a staff correspondent:

LEXINGTON JUNCTION (Mo.) April 24.—"You will never get us to Los Angeles alive," was the declaration made aboard the Santa Fe flyer this morning, by James W. McNamara, who with his brother, John J. McNamara, and Ortie McManigal, is accused of blowing up the Los Angeles Times Building, according to officers having the men in charge. On this train are James McNamara and McManigal.

"I, for one, will die a martyr to unionism. The capitalists are oppressing the working people and making laws to suit their own ends through bribery. If I had not been arrested, the working people soon would have acquired the right to live decently.

"This train will either be wrecked or blown up before we reach Los Angeles.

"I have eluded my captors enough to get word to my friends to see that we do not get to the Coast alive."

The prisoners arrived here shortly after 7 o'clock this morning. McNamara was morose and downcast, while McManigal was cheerful. McNamara was so surly he even refused to be shaved.

SEEN ON THE TRAIN.

BUT NO MANACLES VISIBLE.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

KANSAS CITY, April 24.—Chicago newspaper men on the train said they had not been allowed to see the prisoners during the night. They said two of the detectives at a time left the compartments occasionaly in the course of the night. The detectives had been willing to talk about almost anything except the prisoners, the newspapermen said. When the train arrived here, detectives and prisoners could be seen through the windows of the compartment from a train on the next track. No manacles were visible.

ARE TAKING NO CHANCES.

Eleven Officers in Charge of the McNamaras and McManigal.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LA JUNTA (Colo.) April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Officers with the two McNamaras and McManigal, who are wanted in Los Angeles in connection with the blowing up of the Times building last October, passed through here tonight on the Santa Fe Limited No. 3 for Los Angeles. There were eleven officers in charge of the prisoners and no one was permitted to enter their private car or to talk with them. One of the McNamaras was brought over from the Missouri Pacific to the Santa Fe at Dodge City, making the trip in an automobile, joining the other two prisoners at that place.

LOS MOLINOS SOLD.

RED BLUFF (Cal.) April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The sale of Los Molinos Colony and Rancho to the Washington and California Development Company, of which Frank K. Vanderlip, of Chicago, is the head, was made today. J. D. Sherwood and wife, E. E. Lilienthal and Mrs. Mary R. Runyon transferred all their stock in the Los Molinos Land Company to the new owners for $750,000. The land is to be sub-divided and colonized. The deal involves about 16,000 acres of rich farm lands under irrigation.

Trunk's Prescription FOR
AND GOUT

Will positively overcome any kind or any case of Rheumatism or Gout on earth. This is a broad assertion, but it is true. You simply can't keep Rheumatism or Gout if you will take this prescription according to the directions. It has never been known to fail in any form of Rheumatism. It does not ruin the stomach; it does not depress the heart; it does not contain any narcotics of any kind. It is the greatest uric acid solvent known and also a superior medicine.

It is a pity and a shame to allow anyone to suffer with Rheumatism or Gout when you can get Trunk's Prescription for Rheumatism and Gout for $1.50, or six bottles for $7.50.

There is nothing just as good and it is impossible to get something better.

Silk Petticoats

$2.95 $3.95 $5.00

Important Sale Messalines and Taffetas

$2.95 $3.95 $5.00

Six of the Petticoats Pictured

Perhaps the most wonderful petticoat news we've published in several seasons. Five hundred of them—beautiful messalines and taffeta silks.

Silk petticoats secured under such favorable market condition that we are able to name these three startling prices.

We have pictured some of the petticoats above, but no picture can do justice to the splendid quality of these petticoats. If each reader of this ad. were able to see the charming petticoats as they came from their boxes in the receiving-room, what enthusiasm there would be.

"What! $3.95!" said one of the young ladies who was marking the petticoats. "My! there must be a mistake; this can't be the right price," and the writer said: "There's no mistake; it's a special sale." And indeed it is to be a special sale.

Detailed description at the three prices follow. Don't under any circumstances overlook the opportunity.

Messaline Petticoats $2.95
Beautiful all silk messaline and splendid quality at that; 12-inch flounce, with tucks and accordion pleats. Note the picture above.
Good line of colors. Not any more than enough to last throughout the day.

Messaline Petticoats $3.95
Beautiful Dresden patterns. Words fail us to describe this item. Note the deep flounce of tucks and pleats. Light and dark shades. We also include several dark shades in messaline petticoats, with fancy pleats and tucks, like picture above. This is a bargain extraordinary. You must see them to appreciate.

Taffeta Petticoats $5.00
Another bargain extraordinary. Petticoats you would not expect to find at anywhere near such a price. Note the way they are cut and finished. Two styles included. One tailored, the other with tucks, as shown in the picture above. Choice of black, navy, tan, white, brown, red, gray, green.

WOMEN of the CAESARS

The great Italian historian, Ferrero, who has made ancient Rome live again in his books, begins in this May Century a wonderfully illuminating series of six articles on Roman women. Did you know that they enjoyed the greatest social and legal liberty of all women of the ancient world? They could even retain their own property on marriage if they wished to do so, and they had a conventus matronarum—which was Latin for "woman's club!"

"Women and Marriage in Ancient Rome" is the title of this opening article in the May number.

"THE CLANDON LETTERS," something more than an unusually good novelette by Baroness von Hutten (author of Pam), and "The A B C of the Tariff Question" by Andrew Carnegie, are among other good features of a wonderfully good May number.

Railroad Record.

NERAL FIGHT ON LOW FARES.

Railways to Attack the Two-Cent Rate Laws.

Encouraged to Do So by the Minnesota Ruling.

War on Iowa Statute Is Scheduled Next.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Plans for a general onslaught against 2-cent fare legislation throughout the United States, which railroad officials have fostered quietly for months, have been given a great stimulus by the recent decision of Circuit Judge Sanborn of the Federal Court at St. Paul, declaring the Minnesota 2-cent fare law and maximum rate laws unconstitutional and void.

Railroad men are hailing the decision as one of the most important from their standpoint in recent years and the filing of suits attacking the fare laws as confiscatory in many other States is expected at an early date. They declare it is but a question of the time required to prepare the necessary statistics and evidence before all of the State laws on this subject shall have been brought under attack.

The Iowa law is likely to be the next to be brought under court scrutiny. That of Illinois has been considered, but on account of the much higher rate of passenger density in this State as compared with that of other States and the increases in passenger traffic which have taken place since the passage of the 2-cent law in 1907, it is admitted the roads would have a much more difficult fight on their hands in this case, so Illinois probably will be left until the outcome of the fight in other States is known.

The railroads now are praising themselves on having defeated 2-cent fare laws in the Circuit Courts of four Western States, although in no case have the findings been passed upon as yet by the United States Supreme Court.

In Missouri Judge Smith McPherson in 1909 declared the State 2-cent law unconstitutional and the roads have returned to rates of 2½ and 3 cents a mile. In Arkansas they have been allowed by the courts to return to the three-cent rate and recently a Federal Court in Oklahoma took the same action. In Minnesota under Judge Sanborn's decision the 2-cent fares will be restored on June first.

The Missouri decision was taken immediately to the Supreme Court on behalf of the State authorities, and it has been announced that no time will be lost in appealing the Minnesota action. The Missouri case has been argued before the Supreme Court, but a reargument has been appointed because of the changes in the membership of the high tribunal.

In Nebraska the litigation over the 2-cent fare is still in progress having reached the stage of taking depositions from passenger officials of the various roads.

RAILROAD TAXATION.

ONE COMPANY DELINQUENT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SACRAMENTO, April 24.—Of the twenty-three or more railroads operating within the State, but one, the Ocean Shore road, has permitted its taxes for 1910 to become delinquent to the amount of $1368.42. Of the others most had paid their taxes last week, but the remaining eight made the payments to the State Treasury today, swelling the resources some $45,000! This brings the total for the second installment well past the million mark and the total amount of taxes paid by the railroads for the year to $2,161,857.18.

FREIGHT HANDLERS OUT.

RAILWAY STRIKE IN DENVER.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DENVER, April 24.—A strike of freight handlers on all the big roads entering Denver confronted the officials this morning, as the result of the discharge of a number of employees in the freight houses in this city. The situation may involve freight handlers on the various systems. The railroads state the charge against some of the discharged men was that of drinking. As yet no conferences have been held between the roads and their men.

WILL SPEND MILLIONS.

"KATY" TO ISSUE BONDS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

TOPEKA (Kan.) April 24.—The Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad Company applied to the Railroad Commissioners today for authority to issue $107,000,000 bonds, $82,000,000 of which will take up outstanding debts and $25,000,000 for improvements. The line from Kansas City to Parsons will be straightened until it will be almost an air line, and several new bridges and much new steel will be laid. From Parsons through Oklahoma, a double track will be laid. Nearly all the $25,000,000 in improvements will be spent in Kansas and Oklahoma.

DR. HYDE FOILED AGAIN.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) April 24.—Attempts by attorneys for Dr. B. C. Hyde, under life sentence for the murder of Col. Thomas H. Swope, to obtain freedom for their client through a writ of habeas corpus were foiled today by co-Prosecutor Virgil Conkling through the technical objection to the mode of procedure. Judge James H. Slover, of the circuit court, took the matter under advisement until tomorrow.

Dr. Hyde was in the courtroom, it being the first time he had left the jail since September when he was allowed to visit his home following the birth of his son. Mrs. Hyde, looking much younger, also was there.

CLEVELAND POLICE IN ROW.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CLEVELAND (O.) April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Rebellion engendered by long opposition to Chief Kohler, and intensified recently by Mayor Baehr's refusal to remove Kohler from his position as the head of the force, broke out in the Police Department today. Saloonkeepers and tenderloin habitues were made the victims. The outbreak was engineered and carried out by the Forum Club, an original company of about 200 members of the police force who have long been opposed to Kohler's administration of the department. After the breaking of the storm the police force of Cleveland was torn asunder. While one large faction, driven to its task by bitter hatred of the chief, raided saloon after saloon and sent proprietors, together with tenderloin residents, to the police stations another faction obedient to Kohler stood against the booking of the prisoners and sent them back to their places of business.

SPITTOON EXPLODES IN COURT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, April 24.—An explosion of gunpowder in a cuspidor during a session of the Criminal Court caused considerable excitement today. Judge William E. Dever had just opened court and an attorney appearing for the defendant in an Italian murder case, threw a lighted cigarette into the cuspidor. There was an explosion, breaking the cuspidor and setting fire to woodwork in the courtroom. The source of the gunpowder in the cuspidor is not known.

DOWEYITES LAST DIVIDEND.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, April 24.—Creditors of late John Alexander Dowie were paid a final dividend of 2.8 per cent. on their claims today by order of United States District Judge, K. M. Landis. A prior dividend of 10 per cent. was paid by Receiver G. D. Thomas on the claims which amount to $4,500,000. Judge Landis also allowed the receiver to destroy a quantity of intimate correspondence between the former Zion City leader and persons asking spiritual or material advice.

FORFEITS LAND TO GOVERNMENT.

Southern Pacific Must Restore Old Grant.

Ruling of Federal Judge in Portland, Or.

Acres Now Worth Seventy-five Millions.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PORTLAND (Or.) April 24.—Federal District Judge Charles Wolverton decided today that the Southern Pacific and the Oregon & California Railroad companies must forfeit to the United States government about 2,400,000 acres of land, valued at from $40,000,000 to $75,000,000.

Interpreting the act of Congress granting the land as an aid to railroad construction, the court holds that Congress intended this land should be sold to bona fide settlers in tracts not greater than 160 acres to one individual, and at a price not exceeding $2.50 an acre. Every contention raised by the railroad has been defeated in its fight with the government.

If this decision be sustained by the Supreme Court of the United States, land in this State valued between $40,000,000 and $75,000,000 will revert to the government and be opened to settlers.

AGAINST INTERVENORS.

While deciding in favor of the Government, Judge Wolverton decided against the several thousand interveners in the case. He held they had acquired no right whatever either by settling on the land, or by tendering the maximum sum per claim specified by law. The result of this portion of the decision is that the great lands cannot be procured by any individual until the President or Congress again opens them to entry or file. The sixty-seven entrymen who had gone upon the land as settlers before the suits of the government were commenced, also lose their claims and are held to have gained no advantage whatever by their period of settlement.

More than 5000 interveners have filed applications to get a portion of the land, but their supposed rights are brushed aside, leaving the entire tract open to disposition by Congress, as if it had never been offered to the railroad interests as a grant.

In brief, the question raised by the Southern Pacific Company was whether the Federal Congress by a subsequent act had the power to make said subsequent act precede the rights conferred in an original grant. The present suit was instituted in 1908 by Atty.-Gen. Bonaparte, following a memorial by the Oregon Legislature to Congress, that "the Southern Pacific Company, successor to the Oregon & California Railway, had forfeited its rights to a grant of land in Oregon and Washington, which provided that such grant should be sold to bona fide settlers in tracts not to exceed 160 acres each and at a price not to exceed $2.50 per acre.

REFUSED TO SELL.

The company was said to have violated the provisions of the grant by refusing to sell the land as provided in the grant. The case dragged along through the last three years, though the demurrer which was decided to day was filed shortly after the suit by the government was instituted.

In 1866 Congress granted to the Oregon Central Railway Company a tract through the heart of Oregon, comprising what is now some of the richest agricultural and most valuable timber land in the State.

The consideration for the grant was an agreement to construct a railroad north and south over what is now the Southern Pacific's Oregon division of the Shasta route.

The grant of 1866 contained no requirement that the lands included in it should be sold in any specific quantity nor at any specific price per acre.

In 1869, however, the company appeared before Congress petitioning for an extension of time in which to construct the road and asking that it be granted 20,000 additional acres of land. Congress extended the time as petitioned, and granted the additional land, but, apparently realizing its omission as to manner of sale, attempted to embody as a part of the grant the condition that the land be sold in 160-acre tracts to bona fide settlers at a consideration not to exceed $2.50 per acre.

ANOTHER EXTENSION.

Another extension of time was granted the road two years later until what is known as the grant of 1870.

During the 70's the Oregon Central was succeeded by the Oregon and California Railroad Company and the road was built. Until the late 70's, or until the Southern Pacific absorbed the Oregon and California, the terms of the 1869 grant were adhered to. After that date, however, the Southern Pacific appears to have elected to abandon the additional rights secured under the act of 1869, and to base its title to the act of 1866 in conjunction with the extension secured under the act of 1870. In other words, it declined to sell the granted lands in tracts of 160 acres, and at

The land at present held by the company amounts to more than 2,000,000 acres and the value is estimated at about $50,000,000 or $75,000,000.

AERIAL LADDER COLLAPSES.

Five Seattle Firemen Injured at a Warehouse Blaze That Cost Seventy-five Thousand Dollars.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) April 24.—Five firemen fighting a fire in the Eyres storage warehouse here were injured late today when a eighty-five-foot aerial ladder collapsed under their weight.

Fred Bayne, whose forearm was broken, thigh lacerated and who is suffering from internal injuries, was the most seriously hurt.

The fire broke out on the top floor of the farehouse, a five-story brick and concrete building, and burned fiercely. The aerial ladder was raised to its full height and five firemen carrying two lines of hose climbed it.

Bayne and two others went to the top. When the water was turned into the hose the ladder buckled and collapsed, the men turning over several times in the air as they fell.

The injured firemen were rushed to the City Hospital and a second alarm was turned in.

The fire burned stubbornly nearly an hour, causing a loss of about $75,000.

OREGON HOSPITAL AFIRE.

The Nurses, As Usual, Prevented Death From Levying a Toll and the Doctors Also Helped.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ROSEBURG (Or.) April 24.—[ExclusiveDispatch.] Prompt and vigorous work by women nurses and doctors prevented the loss of several lives when the Mercy Hospital caught fire here today.

At the time the flames were discovered twenty-two patients were in the institutions, two of whom had undergone operations a few hours before and were still under the influence of anaesthetics when carried from the burning structure.

With clock-like discipline the patients were quickly clothed, placed on stretchers and carried to points of safety where they were attended by local physicians, who responded promptly to the call for assistance. Several patients in a critical condition were carried to residences, while others suffering from minor ailments were placed on mattresses on the grounds.

The nurses worked heroically and to their efforts can be attributed the fact that no deaths resulted. The hospital was badly gutted before the flames were subdued.

INQUIRY BOARD NAMED.

SHORTAGE ON RECEIVING SHIP.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

VALLEJO, April 24.—A board of inquiry was convened at the Mare Island Navy Yard today to investigate a shortage of stores valued at several thousand dollars in the office of the Receiving Ship Independence. The sessions are executive and the findings of the board will determine whether or not the Navy Department will order a court-martial of Paymaster Arthur Pippin, Pay Clerk James V. Fuller and Chief Yeoman Henry Halpein, who have been under arrest for some time pending the investigation. The board of inquiry consists of Commander Hugh Rodman, president, Pay Inspector Edmund W. Bonnafon, Lieut. Allen Reed and Capt. Jay M. Sallady, U.S.M.C.

OPIUM SMUGGLED IN.

CAR PORTER IS ARRESTED.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) April 24.—Customs officers today seized $7000 worth of prepared opium, contained in two suit cases and a valise, in a sleeping car on a Great Northern train, that had just entered American territory at Blaine, Wash. Seth P. Stoors, the colored porter of the car, who said he did not know anything about the ownership of the luggage, was arrested. The opium bore the labels of a Hongkong manufacturer and is supposed to have been smuggled into Vancouver on an Empress liner. It was contained in 240 five-tael tins.

CONSERVATIONISTS APPOINTED.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SACRAMENTO, April 24.—Gov. Johnson today named the members of the Conservation Commission as follows: Former Governor George C. Pardee, Alameda; Ralph W. Bull, Humboldt, and Francis Cuttle, Riverside. They will investigate and gather data concerning the subjects of forestry, water, the use of water, water power, electricity, electrical and other power, mines and mineral and other lands, dredging, reclamation and irrigation, and for revising, systematizing and reframing the laws of the State pertaining to these set subjects. One hundred thousand dollars was appropriated by the Legislature to be used by the commission. This commission, to be known as the Conservation Commission of the State of California, shall not receive pay for their services, and they shall report their findings at the session of the Legislature in 1913. The members of the Conservation Board of Control, named by the Governor, are Prof. Charles D. Marx, Stanford University; S. C. Graham, Los Angeles, and Harold Power, Placer county.

TACOMA, FATIGUED BY ELECTIONS, SEES ABUSES IN THE RECALL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA (Wash.) April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Having disposed of the Mayoralty recall fight by ousting A. V. Fawcett and electing W. W. Seymour, who assumed his new duties Thursday, Tacoma voters are now confronted by a proposed recall of the four municipal commissioners. Voters will pass on the fates of Commissioners Vreeland, Lowen, Woods and Royce in a special election May 2. There are many candidates in the field. If none of them receives a majority of votes for each office cast May 2, a second election must be held May 16 to decide between the two highest in each case.

The people of Tacoma announce that they are as tired of recall fights and elections as the newspapers are expressing sentiment. The Mayoralty fight was long and bitter and aroused much class and personal feeling. Business men and leading merchants are emphatic in their complaints that the election business is being greatly overdone and that the recall system as it exists here is showing itself susceptible of grave abuses.

Very little interest thus far is manifested in the fight over the commissionerships and unless there are new developments in the next week to start a fight, the chances are that the vote at the commissioners' election May 2, will be light as compared with the 21,711 votes cast Tuesday in the Mayoralty recall. It is safe to assert that with the commissioners' election out of the way, it will be no easy task to launch another recall fight in Tacoma regardless of the fact that it would now take twice as many names —7000 to file a recall petition

FINDS LETTERS OF M'NAMARAS.

Burns Detective Gets Large Lot in Cincinnati.

Mother Says Her Boys Are Conspiracy Victims.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CINCINNATI, (Ohio), April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A large packet of letters which are said to have been sent to aJmes A. McNamara, Jr., and his brother, John J. McNamara, were found in the trunk of James A. McNamara, Jr., yesterday and are being carefully guarded tonight. The two McNamaras were arrested Saturday and are now being taken to Los Angeles to answer the charge of complicity in the blowing up of the Los Angeles Times Building several months ago. Detective Kelly of the Wm. J. Burns office, came to Cinhomes of Mrs. Mary McNamara, the aged mother, who lives here at No. 4306 Quarry street, South Cumminsville.

Detective Kelly says he had read these letters carefully and that they will furnish additional evidence against the men who are accused. He was asked if more arrests will follow, but declined to say. He did say, however, that these letters open up a new angle to the matter and that by these Burns will be better informed as to the movements of the two men and better equipped in his fight against the wholesale blowing up of the properties of corporations. It was also said this afternoon by Detective Kelly that the police department in Cincinnati will be aided by detectives from the Burns office in the search for nitroglycerin, some of which is said to have been used to blow up certain shops and buildings in Cincinnati. He said he is sure this is secreted near Cincinnati and that active search for this is now on and will be continued until the deadly stuff is found.

The detective will leave Cincinnati probably tomorrow for Los Angeles. During his trip he will have in his possession these letters as well as the electric accoutrements found in the trunk of James A. McNamara, Jr., by the detectives, when they searched the home of his mother here.

Mrs. McNamara said this afternoon that her sons have not been treated fairly by the authorities, that she knows nobody in the West, and therefore cannot get into communication with them. She also said that for the past ten years, John J. McNamara has provided her with a home and has been her mainstay.

"My sons could not do such a thing," said he. "It's a wicked conspiracy to injure my boys and possibly to put them in jail for many years. I have not heard a word from them, and could not know how to get into communication with them. That's what hurts me worse than anything else. But they could not let me know; their hands are tied, with handcuffs, and in other ways. John was always kind to me in the manner of writing letters home; in fact he has been my sole support for ten years. James did not write so often, yet he always told me that he was getting along all right and that if he ever got into trouble I would be first one to know of it."

Judge Caldwell said this evening that he has known the McNamara boys for many years, and that John was always a model youth and that he had thought he would have a great future. James, on the other hand, was almost incorrigible, and had to be sent to the Hamilton County Boys' Refuge for misbehavior.

Their father, who was recently pardoned from the Ohio State Penitentiary has not been found and nobody knows where he is. He was sentenced for criminal assault committed on his 12-year-old daughter.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Preparations were being made today by officials of the American Federation of Labor to defend John J. McNamara, International Secretary-Treasurer of the Bridge and Structural Ironworkers, now being hurried to California for trial.

Pending the arrival in Washington of E. A. Clancy, one of the vice-presidents, who was in the Indianapolis conference when McNamara was arrested and spirited away, the exact plans are being kept secret, but Secretary Frank Morrison intimated this afternoon that the Federation would give McNamara the same support it did Haywood. That means an appeal for contributions will be made to all union men connected with the Federation.

"Barbarism," known in police circles as the "Third Degree" is attributed by Sam Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, as the cause of Ortie B. McManigal's alleged confession implicating John J. McNamara in the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times office last October.

Gompers said that, in his opinion, the prisoner, through mental fatigue caused by withstanding a steady fire of questions for twelve hours, had admitted anything his questioners asked in order to secure relief from their nerve-racking tactics.

The American Federation, through the efforts of Gompers, has been conducting an active fight against the "Third Degree" and Gompers said that the McManigal incident emphasizes his claims that it is a common practice among police departments in all parts of the country to harass prisoners until, out of sheer exhaustion, they give up and confess to crimes they never committed.

"Prisoners are tortured more now than they were in the days of barbarism," he said. Gompers called attention to the facts the Senate "Third Degree" Investigating Committee has tended to show that men are not only mentally but physically tortured by their captors. Attention was called to cases where metal thumbscrews were applied until the flesh burst open.

Gompers says he believes McNamara's arrest was a travesty on justice. He could find no words strong enough to express his contempt he asserted for the manner in which McNamara was spirited out of Indianapolis.

"If there is a place in the United States where a union man can be railroaded to prison it is Los Angeles," said representative Frank Buchanan of Illinois, who was president of the Bridge and Structural Ironworkers of America when John J. McNamara was elected Secretary treasurer of the organization.

"Knowing the tactics of the opponents of organized labor as I do, I am not surprised that infernal machines were found in the Union building at Indianapolis," he continued. "In my mind that goes to prove as much as anything could that it is the opponents of organized labor who have entered into a conspiracy to fix the blame for disastrous explosions on union men. The most despicable tactics possible are resorted to by the National Electors' Association, which is in effect of the United States Steel Corporation."

DIAZ'S PEACE PLANS.

ceived, Gen. Diaz spoke in a loud voice. He answered in very much the same words all those who felt at liberty to question him on the peace negotiations.

The President is pleased with everything, it would seem, except the proposition to conclude by telegraph an armistice which, after the conclusion of the present five days' truce, would give time for full peace negotiations.

He insists that a plenipotentiary of the revolutionists must come to the capital, show full credentials that will show his power to bind them and sign the necessary documents here. If no other hitch takes place this demand is still important as it will mean a delay of at least two days in coming to the important negotiations.

To one of his old comrades in arms of the war with the French, Gen. Diaz said, while—after asking permission to do so—the veteran embraced him:

"I look forward to the negotiations during the armistice without any anxiety whatsoever. I am taking it for granted that those on the other side of this fractricidal quarrel are approaching the questions which have been presented and the others which will inevitably arise in the course of the negotiations in the same spirit as I am. If they do so all will be well. I am ready to make every personal sacrifice which any possible development of the situation may demand and if they will do the same, all will be well. But in the national sense they will find me of adamant; I will not abate one iota of what the decorum, integrity, dignity and welfare of our country demands and is entitled to. If the other people make similar personal sacrifices of possible personal preferences and are animated by the same patriotic sentiment as we are, the negotiations will run along very smoothly."

RECEIVES INDIAN CHIEF.

In the midst of the Cabinet meeting and the interviews with foreign Diplomats and Mexican statesmen, Gen. Diaz found time to receive the head man of an Indian village in a southern State who had been waiting around the palace for a week hoping to have a talk with the President regarding a dispute over land in which his village is involved with a capitalistic group of Mexican and foreign interests. The Indian ranchero is of striking figure and carriage and though wearing only straw sandals, the serape and the country sombrero, he has a dignity and poise that would cause him to be remarked upon at the Court of St. James.

The President asked him as to the titles to the lands claimed by the Indians and the ranchero answered:

"We have only the graves of our forefathers, who have been buried there for ten generations."

The Indian went away thinking that the title of his tribe would be confirmed in this, the highest court of the republic, and I think he was right.

INTERNATIONAL INCIDENTS.

Friendly discussion and exchange of information regarding the international incidents of the fighting at Agua Prieta and the shooting of Americans in Douglas continued between foreign Minister De la Barra and Ambassador Wilson. The discussion is carried on verbally and the mutual demands are couched in the friendliest terms. There is no desire for hasty action and all heat is absent from the negotiations.

It is certain that the Mexican government is experiencing great difficulty in getting news from the Arizona frontier. Apparently most of their best witnesses have been taken prisoners and cannot be consulted directly. It is thought here that perhaps, under the circumstances, the contentious points at issue will only be fully developed, and it is hoped, finally and quickly settled when the American demand for damages sustained by our citizens in Douglas shall have reached here and been filed with the Mexican Foreign Office.

There is no question here but that Minister De la Barra, in his original reply to the representatives from Washington, made his charges against American soldiers and citizens in good faith, but on insufficient information. It is a pleasure to find that all the Mexican officials recognize the absolute good faith and correctness of the actions of all the United States officials along the frontier, military as well as civil. They are, however, equally unanimous in asserting that the county sheriffs and other local officials are doing whatever they can for the revolutionary cause, because, as it is alleged, they are dependent largely on the local Mexican vote, which is all anti-Diaz, for their elections.

SCHMIDT—CAPLAN HUNT.

regular road and started off through a lane in a roundabout route. Thirteen miles from Joliet, one of the machines, in which sat one of the prisoners and which carried the big trunk full of dynamite which is being carried along as evidence, leaped the road and nearly turned turtle.

The party was forced to stop at a little hotel in Frankfort, Ill., over night. Not until the prisoners had been safely imprisoned for the night was the trunkful of explosive and clockwork infernal machines opened. The jarring had not disturbed it.

At 5 o'clock Sunday evening, the trunk and the two prisoners were loaded on an interurban car and taken to Joliet.

Word had reached the five detectives guarding the prisoners, of the "wrecking squadrons" being organized in Chicago to rescue the two men. A guard was established about the hotel during the early Sunday morning and was maintained throughout the day. At Joliet, four of the guards walked alongside of the prisoners with magazine pistols drawn, expecting interference.

"WRECKERS AFRAID."

The "wreckers," however, did not put in an appearance. The police yesterday obtained some clews regarding the two bands of "wreckers" who went in two automobiles to points along the Santa Fe tracks Sunday evening. One band of eight men was stationed at Archer avenue and another at Twelfth street and the railroad tracks. Both parties were heavily armed.

Capt. Stephen Wood, head of the detective bureau, said today, that while he was confident that McNamara and McManigal were the conspirators behind the explosion at the Iroquois Iron Works in South Chicago, he did not believe that they had done many of the smaller "jobs."

"Neither do I believe that the Chicago Structural Ironworkers' Union had anything to do with the operations of McNamara and McManigal," he said. "I am firmly of the opinion that they were in the dark. I have every confidence in the officials of the local union.

"We have worked hard to find out who was at the bottom of the explosions here. I do not believe that McNamara and McManigal placed all of these infernal machines, although it has been admitted that they were at the bottom of the explosion in South Chicago. I think a band of local dynamiters have caused a majority of the explosions here."

UNIONITES PLAN DEFENSE.

Plans for the defense of the men arrested were started in Chicago today and met with a ready response in other parts of the country. Clarence S. Darrow, who defended W. D. Haywood of the Western Federation of Miners four years ago on the charge of murdering Frank Steunenberg, former Governor of Idaho, left the city for Indianapolis yesterday, accompanied by Edward N. Nockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor. That Darrow will undertake the defense of the alleged conspirators was generally accepted in labor circles, though it was said that he had gone to Indianapolis at the request of local labor officials and not at the solicitation of the officials of the International Union of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers.

Among union-labor officials in Chicago and elsewhere, the manner in which J. J. McNamara, secretary of the Ironworkers' International Union, was taken out of Indianapolis Saturday night by detectives, was pronounced an "outrage." Many of them declared it made the whole conspiracy story appear weak, because McNamara was a responsible official and not likely to avoid arrest, if the police authorities could show the proper warrants for him. The use of an automobile to take him out of Indianapolis also was regarded by union men as another spectacular move of the detectives, to give the public the impression that he was a desperate criminal and that an attempt might be made to rescue him if he was taken on a railroad train.

PRATES OF "CONSPIRACY."

In a conversation over the long-distance telephone this afternoon, Frank M. Ryan, president of the International Union of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers, said that everything would be done to see that the accused men were given a fair trial.

"Our Executive Board had the utmost faith in Secretary McNamara," said President Ryan, "and nothing which has happened has shaken that faith in the least. The 'kidnaping' of McNamara was utterly unwarranted and when all the facts are known, I believe it will be shown that he is the victim of a conspiracy. We all know that detectives, lured by the hope of a large reward, have in the past 'planted' bombs where they could later be 'discovered' to bolster up a case against union men. All that we ask is that judgment be suspended until the facts are known."

Ryan was informed that Clarence Darrow was on his way to Indianapolis. "I have no knowledge of that," he said, "but we shall be glad to see him if he comes. I do not know of any meeting here today of officials of international unions to plan the raising of a defense fund. We have some funds in our treasury and if we need financial assistance, I am sure it will be contributed by the organizations throughout the country. I have been too busy with other matters, however, to take up that end of the question today."

DETECTIVES ON GUARD.

Two of Them Watch Constantly the Door to Offices of the Iron Workers' Union.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) April 24.—Assistants of Detectives Burns tonight set a watch of two detectives at the door of a room on the third floor of the building in which are the offices of the iron workers' union.

Attorney Drew, for the Erectors' Association, suggested to Superintendent Hyland and County Prosecutor Baker, that a search warrant be obtained and the room examined on the theory that it contained explosives or evidence of value to the grand jury. He had information, he said, that it had been rented by J. J. McNamara personally.

Neither of these officials would agree to apply for a search warrant. The prosecutor said he could not make an affidavit that he had knowledge that the room contained articles of significance in the case.

It was after these steps that two private detectives took up positions outside the door of the room.

Mrs. Sarah Talley, her son, Dayton Talley, and a married daughter are held at the county jail in Las Cruces, N. M., pending an investigation of the death of Benjamin Talley, the woman's husband, at their ranch at Chamberin, with symptoms of poisoning.

Coffee Congestion

Causes a Variety of Ills.

A happy old lady in Wisconsin says: "During the time I was a coffee drinker I was subject to sick headaches, sometimes lasting 2 or 3 days, totally unfitting me for anything.

"To this affliction was added, some years ago, a trouble with my heart that was very painful, accompanied by a smothering sensation and faintness.

"Dyspepsia, also, came to make life harder to bear. I took all sorts of patent medicines but none of them helped me for any length of time.

"The doctors frequently told me that coffee was not good for me; but without coffee I felt as if I had no breakfast. I finally decided about 2 years ago to abandon the use of coffee entirely, and as I had read a great deal about Postum I concluded to try that for a breakfast beverage.

"I liked the taste of it and was particularly pleased to notice that it did not 'come up' as coffee used to. The bad spells with my heart grew less and less frequent, and finally ceased altogether, and I have not had an attack of sick headache for more than a year. My digestion is good, too, and I am thankful that I am once more a healthy woman. I know my wonderful restoration to health came from quitting coffee and using Postum." Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is this. Coffee has a direct action on the liver with some people, and causes partial congestion of that organ preventing the natural outlet of the secretions. Then may follow biliousness, sallow skin, headaches, constipation and finally a change of the blood corpuscles and nervous prostration.

An Exceptional Profit-Sharing Investment

Broadway Central Building, 424-26-28 South Broadway, 10 Stories, Class A Steel and Concrete Office Block.

Fee Ownership Divided Into 525 Parts or Title Bonds

This property was purchased about four years ago at $4250 per front foot. The 10-story steel and concrete building erected at a cost of $170,000, making total investment of $521,000. The property paid last year over 7 per cent. net on original cost. The ground is worth today in excess of $5000 per foot, making total value now of at least $600,000.

The Company originally offered the 525 Title Bonds representing the fee unencumbered ownership at the then value of $1000 each. These Title Bonds have since been advanced twice to conform with the increase in ground value and rental earning and are today valued and offered at $1100. The earning has kept pace with the growth.

If you are interested in a safe and growing investment that will pay you 6% per cent., or better and where your principal will grow, secure a block of these Title Bonds. We supply fractional bonds covering sums less than $1100. We also accept installment subscriptions.

alaries Are Increased While Money Is Saved.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Penny postage is now in sight. There is no longer a real deficit in the postoffice department. The difference between receipts and expenditures for the last six months shows a difference of only $40,863 on the wrong side of the ledger.

This administration inherited from that of President Roosevelt a postal deficit of $17,500,000. While a saving has been going on the postal facilities have been extended and it has not been accomplished by curtailing postal facilities, according to the department.

In this administration 3089 new offices have been established, 142 new cities have had delivery by carriers and 2124 new rural free delivery routes have been set going. There has been an increase in employees of 8274 men and the expenditure for salaries increased by $11,708,071 in two years. The average pay for clerks has been increased from $978 to $1051. Rural carriers are to receive largely increased compensation during the coming year. They are now getting an average salary of $871 as against $869 two years ago. The average yearly salary of railway postal clerks has been increased in the two years from $1171 to $1185. In the first six months of the current year the increase in expenditures was only 3 per cent., as against an average annual increase of more than 8 per cent. during the last decade.

Owing to this marked reduction in expenditures it was possible to wipe out the deficit in spite of the fact that the increase in revenues fell below the normal, dropping to 6.9 per cent. for six months, as compared with 10.5 per cent. for the corresponding period of the preceding year. Had the revenues continued to show a normal increase the auditor's report, just received would have shown a considerable surplus.

Postmaster-General Hitchcock is confident that by the close of the current fiscal year such a surplus will be reached.

ILL INSPIRED BY PIQUE.

Washington Congress Proposes to Put the Products of Southern California on the Free List.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Representative Warburton of Washington introduced a bill today to put citrus fruits, nuts, pineapples, raisins and practically everything raised in the South on the free list. Apparently this action was taken out of pique because Representative Needham voted for Canadian reciprocity.

"As far as that is concerned," said Needham, when asked about it, "both of Washington's Senators are for the reciprocity bill. His action cannot affect the measure in any way, nor is it likely to have any influence on the makeup of the free list. The Democratic free list is before this House. Warburton cannot amend it. The agricultural schedule will be taken up when the Ways and Means Committee gets ready to report it and the wishes of one man are not likely to have any effect on it. I realize that we shall have to fight for our tariff on California products. I have acted and shall act in accordance with my best judgment and honest convictions, and with the rest of the delegates will make a determined stand for the interests of California agriculturists."

DREAMS OF A LONG BRIDGE.

Los Angeles Man Asks Congress to Let Him Hang It Between San Francisco and Oakland.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Allen C. Rush of No. 25 Wilcox building, Los Angeles, former Illinois politician and now an engineer, wants Congress to give him authority to build a suspension bridge between Oakland and San Francisco. He wishes action on his petition so that he can have the bridge ready for use by the time the exposition opens. He says Senator Works favors his project, which is understood to be not yet financed in any way.

Rush's plan, drawn by Ernest H. Wilcox, construction engineer, contemplates having one end of the bridge on Telegraph Hill, San Francisco, and the other in Oakland, with several piers in the bay, making use of Goat Island "as a part of the way of travel," including a long tunnel. The plans which accompany the petition call for four steam railway tracks, four street car and interurban tracks, two auto ways, two horse-drawn vehicle and bicycle ways, space for foot passengers, telephone and telegraph wires, electric current wires, with space at the top of each of the piers on the San Francisco and Oakland sides for marine lights and wireless telegraphy.

The bridge would be 150 feet above the waters of the bay. Senator Perkins has informed Rush that the permit cannot be granted until the project has received the approval of the Chief of Engineers of the army and he also would like an expression of approval of the people of Oakland and San Francisco.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—President Taft sent to the Senate today nominations in the diplomatic service, as follows: Henry S. Boutell of Illinois, Minister to Switzerland; Edwin V. Morgan of New York, Minister to Portugal; Maurice S. Swenson of Minnesota, Minister to Norway; Mr. Boutell's appointment was immediately confirmed. The Senate also confirmed the appointments of W. W. Rockhill as Ambassador to Turkey, and former Governor Curtis Guild of Massachusetts, as Ambassador to Russia.

DEMOCRATIC TARIFF.

FREE LIST BILL PRESENTED.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The Democratic tariff bill, putting agricultural implements, cotton bagging, ties, boots and shoes, harness, meat, lumber, flour, and many other articles on the free list, came before the House before adjournment today, and will be taken up tomorrow. Final vote will not be reached before the end of this week. House leaders are in doubt that it will come before the following week. Chairman Underwood of the Ways and Means Committee, expressed the opinion that the debate will last four or five days. Republican leaders expect it will be longer. The Democrats are confident of passing the farmers free list by a large majority. The indications are the bill will have several Republican votes in its support, including a substantial proportion of the insurgent strength.

California Senator Spurns the Proposition That He Forsake the Camp of the Insurgents Though the Bauble Held Out to Him Was One He Had Wanted.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON (D. C.) April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With intense interest the Republican insurgents are awaiting the announcement of their committee assignments, but they know in advance that they will not like them. Incidentally, it is reported that Senator Works was offered a place on the Judiciary Committee, which he wanted, if he would abandon the insurgent camp and come into the fold of the regulars.

The Senator from Los Angeles spurned the proffer. He does not know what his committee assignment will be, but he was offered this one and notified that the assignment on the Judiciary Committee could not be given him unless he renounced La-Follette and his platform. When the insurgents were invited to say what assignments would be agreeable to them, Senator Works signified the following as his choice:

"Irrigation and reclamation of arid lands; public lands; inter-oceanic canals; coast and insular surveys; District of Columbia; coast defense and judiciary."

The insurgents declare that not only were they promised their proportional share of the committee assignments, but that they might pick out those assignments themselves. They made their pact with Penrose, who is said to be indignant because his colleagues will not make good. Gallinger for the Committee on Committees says, however, that he has given the insurgents everything he consistently could and that he is sure they will be satisfied when they learn what it is.

A "Private" Secretary.

ON THE TRAIL OF BIG CHECK.

MAN FOUND WHO IS SAID TO HAVE SENT "SLUSH."

He Was Formerly Employed by a Chicago Packing-house and Committee Expects Him to Associate the Instrument With the Fund to Elect Lorimer of Illinois.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Another sensational story relating to a contribution of $10,000 to the $100,000 Lorimer election fund is declared today to be ready for presentation to the members of the Helm Senatorial Investigation Committee, when they meet in Springfield, tomorrow morning. One of the big packing houses in Chicago figures in the story and again Edward Tilden, president of the National Packing Company, is mentioned as the one to whom the $10,000 contribution was to be made.

The witness who is said to be ready to tell the story has been subpoenaed by the committee and is said to be in Springfield, or on the way there. He is declared to be F. H. Elwood, No. 417 Irving avenue, Rockford, secretary of the Barber Coleman Manufacturing Company. He is said to be ready to tell the committee the story which concerns the Lorimer election fund, which was related by him originally over a year ago.

Elwood formerly was employed as a private secretary in the packing house of Schwarzschild and Sulzberger. As such, he is said to have declared that he was directed to send a check for $10,000 to Edward Tilden.

Elwood was not told for what purpose the check was to be sent, but he declares that it was made out at about the time that William Lorimer was elected to the United States Senate.

"Don't forget that Tilden got that check for $10,000, because I sent it myself," was the remark with which the witness recently corroborated his first version of the story.

M. J. Sulzberger, vice-president and treasurer of the company, who is said to have employed the Rockford man as private secretary, when the statements and accusations were placed before him today denied any complicity in the raising of a fund to elect Lorimer to the United States Senate. He declared the charge made by his former private secretary was absurd and false.

Edward Tilden, president of the National Packing Company, it was stated on good authority today, will be in Springfield tomorrow morning, to appear before the Helm Committee. It was said on the same authority, however, that Tilden would not consent to the production of the books of the banks in which he is interested. A bitter struggle over the right of the committee to demand these books is expected. It was said to be likely that in the debate over the right of the Senate to issue subpoenas duces tecum for witnesses, the names of the two prominent Chicagoans might be mentioned.

John J. Healey, attorney for the Helm Committee, was busy all day in preparing for presentation of an opinion as to the right of the Senate to issue subpoenas. This opinion will contain precedents and legal opinions cited to show the authority of the Senate in its present investigation.

Sixty-second Congress.

WANT CONTROL OF FINANCES.

Regulars Bar Progressives From Committee.

Republicans Will Caucus on Assignments.

Would Obviate Possibility of a Coalition.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The Republican Committee on Committees in the Senate will meet tomorrow in the hope of completing a full list of committee assignments for a caucus on Wednesday. The seven representatives of the regular Republicans will present a schedule while the four Republican progressives will present the names of members of their group for one of the fourth committee places.

The regulars have undertaken to give the progressives about 25 per cent. of the assignments, but they have failed to do this in the Committee on Finance. After a long struggle they have decided that the regulars should retain control of this most important committee, and will therefore place only the name of Senator La Follette of the progressive wing on this committee.

The progressives have contended for two representatives and they will present the names of Senators La Follette and Cummins. Unquestionably the failure of the regulars to give the Iowa Senator a place on the Finance Committee will lead to a controversy which may be taken into the Senate in the hope that the Democrats might come to the assistance of the progressives.

The regulars are determined on this one point and probably will vote it through, because they say the dominant party should have control of a committee dealing so generally with partisan questions.

As reorganized, the committee will consist of eight Republicans and six Democrats. To give the progressives two members would be to turn over the control of the committee to a combination of Democrats and progressives, in case a combination should be made.

The decision to cut Senator Cummins out will leave three Republican vacancies to be filled with regulars. One of these places will go to Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire and the other two to western regular Republicans, whose names have not been divulged.

The Democrats have decided to fill the three Democratic vacancies by the appointments of Senators Williams of Mississippi, Johnson of Maine, and Kern of Indiana. These selections will result in giving the radical Democrats a majority of the Democratic representation. It had been expected that Senator Kenyon, the new Senator from Iowa, would align himself with the progressives, but he said he would take no part in the contest. The decision was induced by his late arrival. He, however, counts himself a progressive, and probably will vote with that wing of the party.

GREAT ARMY MANEUVERS.

Germany Will Have Over One Million Men Engaged in the Game of War Next Summer.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

BERLIN, April 24.—Germany will have under arms in connection with the field maneuvers this summer, over 1,000,000 men. In addition to the regular army strength of 622,000 men, over 355,000 reservists will be called to the colors, making a total effective strength for the army of 977,000 men. Adding to these the men serving with the fleet an armed force of considerably more than a million will be engaged in the gigantic war game.

The new firing regulations for the field artillery, just published, contain in addition to former directions for fire against captive balloons, a new set of instructions governing the use of the artillery against dirigibles and aeroplanes. It is admitted, however, that artillery fire against aeroplanes offers slight chance of success without enormous use of ammunition.

EXPLOSION IN A COAL MINE.

TWENTY-THREE MINERS ENTOMBED IN WEST VIRGINIA.

Victims of the Disaster Are Americans—Rescuers, Impeded by Tons of Debris, Are Trying to Reach Probable Point of Origin by Cutting in From Other Diggings.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

ELK GARDEN (W. Va.) April 24.—Twenty-three miners are entombed in Ott Mine No. 2 of the Davis Coal and Coke Company here, the result of an explosion early today. Little hope is entertained for the rescue of any alive because tons of debris impede the rescuers.

It cannot be learned whether the explosion was caused by dust or gas. Officials of the company say they have never known their mines to be gaseous.

Superintendent Robert Grant organized a rescue corps of the miners off duty and these attempted to enter the mine.

The rescuers had not advanced far in the workings before they discovered it would take several days to dig through the heaps of coal and slate, loosened by the explosion. It then was decided to effect an entrance nearer the probable point of the explosion by cutting through the wall of an adjoining mine.

Late this afternoon, the rescuers had penetrated to the No. 2 mine at a point about 4000 feet from the outside entry. There still remained about the same distance to go before reaching the buried miners.

In contrast to the usual mine explosions, the victims in this case, with one exception, are Americans. The mine usually employs 200 men on the day shift and about the same number at night. A temporary suspension of work, however, required fewer men in the mines else the casualty list might have been greater.

After penetrating about a mile down the main entrance, the rescuers found the body of a man, not yet identified. It had been crushed beneath a fall of slate as he was running out of the mine. The discovery of this body disheartened the rescuers who are positive that none of the others are alive.

Several yards beyond the passage was completely blocked by the collapse of the roof. Behind and under this fall it is believed that bodies of the miners lay.

Gas is heavy in the main entry and in the workings not totally blocked, and rescuers have to work in short shifts.

Havoc wrought in the mine would indicate that the explosion was terrific. For a square mile or more the slate and coal was split and props were splintered, letting the roof fall in large sections.

DR. O'MALLEY IS DIVORCED.

Wife of the Scholar and Scientist of International Renown Fails to Put in Appearance.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Following the report of the master upon testimony taken in the suit for divorce instituted by Dr. Austin O'Malley of No. 2228 South Broad street, a scholar and scientist of international reputation, against his wife, formerly Aline Ellis of San Francisco, Judges McMichael and Ferguson today handed down a decree granting Dr. O'Malley the freedom he sought.

Dr. O'Malley's suit was brought on the grounds of desertion and first came to public notice several weeks ago when he inserted a newspaper advertisement asking his wife, of whom he had been unable to find any trace, to appear in court this morning.

Dr. O'Malley married in New York in March, 1902, and in July, 1902, his wife was arrested as she was about to leave the O'Malley home. It is charged, with William J. Hearin, son of a New York broker.

Mrs. O'Malley did not appear today when the case was called.

MRS. STILSON RE-ELECTED.

Los Angeles Woman Will Again Serve the Daughters of Revolution As Regent for California.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON (D. C.) April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Daughters of the American Revolution re-elected Mrs. W. W. Stilson of Los Angeles regent for California, but Mrs. John F. Swift was defeated for vice-president-general and no one was chosen for that office from California, which State has held the office for several years, while several other States never have had a vice-president-general. On the question of electing a president-general seven California votes went for Mrs. Storey and five for Mrs. Scott.

This year saw the largest delegation from California that ever attended a D. A. R. convention. The delegates and alternates were: Eschscholtzia Chapter, Los Angeles, Mrs. C. C. Cottle, Mrs. M. J. Monette; Pasadena Chapter, Mrs. Spooner; Sequoia Chapter, San Francisco, Mrs. Amelia W. Truesdell, Mrs. Baggett; California Chapter, San Francisco, Mrs. Elwood Brown, Mrs. Florence Cornwell Moore, alternate; Puerta Deloro, San Francisco, Miss Stone; Oakland Chapter, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. F. J. Ladd, alternate; Sierra Chapter, Berkeley, Mrs. John Spottiswoode Kinkead and Mrs. Casterlin.

The board met today and confirmed the results of the election. Mrs. Stilson will visit in Virginia and New York and return to Washington in June.

COMMONS SITS LATE.

Curtailment of the House of Lords Engages Attention, But Rosebery's Son Refrains From Voting.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

LONDON, April 24.—The House of Commons sat very late tonight in its discussion of the second clause of the Parliament bill, which relates to the curtailment of the power of the House of Lords and rejected numerous amendments to exclude all sorts of measures from the operation of the bill.

Anti-home rule amendments proposing to exclude "any bill to establish a separate Parliament and executive for Ireland," which was moved by John B. Lonsdale, Unionist, was defeated by a vote of 284 to 190. The division on this amendment showed no cross-voting, but a few Liberals, including Neil Primrose, the youngest son of the Earl of Rosebery, did not vote.

Premier Asquith and Home Secretary Churchill reiterated the government's intention to proceed with the bill for the reform of the House of Lords during the life of the present Parliament.

BRULE (Neb.) April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Justice Otis of this town objects to the harem skirt. Miss Bess Luneburge of Ogallala was the first woman to incur his displeasure. She motored here in her car, wearing the first harem ever seen on the streets here. She halted her machine in front of a department store, jumped out and started for a promenade. Justice Otis was the first person she met. As she passed him, he called to her and said: "I'll give you just five minutes to get out of town. If you are here at the end of this time you go to jail." And Miss Luneberge got out, breaking all speed ordinances.

NUNN (Colo.) April 24.—Exclusive Dispatch.] While digging a well on his ranch, 4 miles northwest of here, E. A. Carr struck what he thinks is a beer well. At the depth of twelve feet he struck a stream of amber-colored fluid, which spurted up and filled the well to a depth of several feet and developed a "collar" of foam. Carr is opposed to the use of beer and for that reason has not tested the fluid to determine the exact nature of the fluid. He has invited qualified friends to come to his ranch and make the tests.

URGE THEIR IMPEACHMENT.

Union Labor Men in Indianapolis Condemn Officials for Enabling the Arrest of the Suspects.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) April 24.—Declarations that Gov. Marshall, Police Judge Collins and Superintendent of Police Hyland should all be impeached were hurled by delegates at the meeting of the Central Labor Union here tonight and the arresting of McNamara was characterized as an outrage and illegal.

A resolution providing for a committee of five "to investigate and fix the blame" in the case and carrying with it $200 was adopted.

State Representative Keegan, a local labor leader, and one of the men who signed the warrants for the arrest of Drew, Fox and Ford, condemned the judge and Police Superintendent for their part, but said Gov. Marshall should not be condemned for signing the requisition for McNamara until a thorough investigation had been made.

While practically all the speeches were radical, Edgar A. Perkins, president of the International Federation of Labor, counseled the leaders for calmness.

BEST FOR BISCUITS.

A prominent teacher in one of the Domestic Science schools in Mississippi writes that she is using Cottolene with excellent results. She says:

"For biscuits Cottolene is all that could be desired. The biscuits are light and flaky, with none of that disagreeable odor often found in foods shortened with lard. Cottolene is also an excellent medium for frying croquettes and doughnuts. It gives them a clean, crisp, brown crust."

Other noted experts, such as Mrs. Rorer and Marion Harland, have given similar testimony to the merits of Cottolene. It not only gives better results than lard but is much more wholesome and economical as well.

Another Kind of Recall.

KNOW-NOTHINGISM RAMPANT IN THE LORIMER INVESTIGATION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It has been several decades since the "Know-nothing" party went out of existence, but a small portion of the membership of the organization has been brought to the front by the Helm Investigating Committee which is probing the Lorimer bribery charges.

Among these are George M. Benedict, cashier of the Drovers Deposit National Bank, and William C. Cummings, president of the Drovers Trust and Savings Bank, both of whom are declared by the inquisitors to be in contempt of the Senate in refusing to appear before the committee to give evidence concerning the collection and disbursement of the $100,000 "slush" fund, which is alleged to have been spent to procure Lorimer's election two years ago.

Asked whether he was going to Springfield Tuesday, to avail himself of a second opportunity to testify before being reported to the Senate as in contempt of that body, Mr. Cummins said this evening that he did not know.

"Are you going to disregard the subpoena?" he was asked.

"I don't know," answered Cummings. Have you been subpoenaed?"

"I don't know."

"A subpoena was served on you, was it not?"

"I don't know."

"Do you consider that you do not have to pay any attention to the mandates of the Senate?"

"I don't know."

When Mr. Benedict was asked whether he would answer the summons of the Helm Committe Tuesday he replied:

"I don't know."

In the meantime the sleuths employed by the Helm Committee are working on several interesting clews which may lead to important disclosures. John J. Healy, attorney for the committee, has prepared a report to the Senate declaring all the witnesses who have failed to appear in answer to subpoenas to be in contempt.

STANDARD FOR PARK-MAKING.

Expert's Idea Is Informal and Restful Beauty.

Park Commission Adopts Plan for Westlake.

Estimate to Transform Names Moderate Amount.

According to Olmstead standards of park-making, Westlake Park finds its "justifying value" in its beauty as a natural or country park—"free, open, informal and restful beauty which shall alleviate the wear of the unnatural, narrow and artificial and narrowing influences of city life on the body, the mind and the imagination," as Park Landscape Engineer Laurie D. Cox expresses his concrete idea to the Park Commission in a report.

The report was received yesterday and approved by the Park Commission. Cox accompanied it with a design showing what changes he would make in the beauty spot to approximate his ideas of sylvan attractiveness. The commission is satisfied that Cox's plans will not mean much reconstructive work, and yet will enhance the picture that has brought about it the finest residence district in the city.

Cox says he finds Westlake free from the atrocities of city park-making and capable of transformation to his ideal. It has no statues which he designates as the most heinous atrocity, and he suggests that they be barred by ordinance from all city parks in the future, limiting them to squares and boulevards. He would also have an ordinance limiting the height of all buildings facing Westlake Park to a modest one to preserve its value and beauty.

Carrying out those ideas, Cox suggests that the size of the lake be reduced, giving room for planting on the Seventh-street side and thus screening from the water a view of busy Seventh street. He would regrade portions to heighten the concave topography, and make boundary planting more of a screen against urban activity.

He would make a more picturesque shore line by removing the wall and coping and giving the banks a natural appearance, amplified by the planting of aquatic vegetation. Consistent with these ideas is the removal of the boat house to the east side and its construction under a plan that will permit ornamentation.

He also suggests orderly and formal driveways and approaches, a mall at the Alvarado-street side, facing Orange street, and an entrance on the west side into Park View, facing Wilshire boulevard, which are new features. His design shows graceful curves through the trees around the lake.

Rearrangement of the vegetation, the elimination of many trees that, he says, now overcharge the fertility of the soil, and the abandonment of the present system of flower beds, are other corrections. He says the present flower beds are not only expensive, but inharmonious and make the park look "fussy" in the periods when the flowers do not bloom.

He would abolish the picnic ground, for he urges that the roads planned will economize space so that there may be great swards. He would demolish the shelters, drinking fountains and such constructive work that is marring to beauty, and supplant the unsanitary cups by the bubbling fountain.

Placing seats where best views may be had naturally, filling the low areas that flat; treating the bottom of the lake to make the water less muddy and decreasing its depth and fertility, all the land and reinvigorating its quality, encouraging the number of canoes and limiting the row boats, are other innovations.

These alterations he estimates will cost $33,000, the larger items being the new boathouse, roads and walks, regrading and an automatic sprinkler system.

Cox also submitted his tentative plan for an entrance from Western avenue into Griffith Park. This he would begin at the Los Feliz road and carry around the shelf of the hills and the small canyon that leads to the beginning of the park.

At this entrance he would begin a rustic walk that would have an overlook shelter from which one of the best views of the city may be obtained. This walk is to be eighteen feet above the grade of the roadway. The entrance is to be about 2000 feet and is to be condemned under the assessment district plan by the city necessary to success. If it is interested are the neighbors and Hollywood people that they have called the Mayor and the Park Commission to a barbecue and information May 6 for the purpose of stimulating flat and specially adapted playground, bathing and wading [illegible] private citizens, the Commission wrote a letter to the Street

The commission also sent a communication to the Finance Committee of the Council urging that the fund of $30,000 asked for the construction of a new conservatory in Eastlake Park be made, even if other requests had to be pruned, because the conservatory is deemed one of the basic essentials of the new park development.

SUGGEST CASH BONUSES.

Commissioner Lippincott presented a suggestion that the salaries of foremen and other officials be increased according to their efficiency and not keep all the most efficient men on a parity with the least efficient so far as salaries are concerned.

This suggestion came after the quarterly award for efficiency and economy was made. In this, M. F. Duncan of Sunset Park again took the banner with John Holland of Sycamore Grove second, by only a difference of one point. William Gowans, of Eastlake was third, but even this was a large showing considering the size of the park and the variety of its features.

Lippincott wants to reward prize winners with something more substantial than three cheers and a banner. He suggests cash bonuses.

BABY HURLED FROM CARRIAGE.

Occupants of the Vehicle, Two Men and a Woman, the Latter Holding a Child, in Runaway.

Thrown into the street with considerable violence from a buggy overturned by a runaway horse, two men and a woman escaped with only slight injuries last night. A 12-month-old baby the woman carried, although hurled into the street, was uninjured.

Frank Alfiere, a shoemaker, living at No. 2923 1-2 West Pico street; Genarro Meyacco of No. 835 North Broadway and Mrs. G. Muyaeti of No. 2923 1-2 West Pico street, were being driven to the Pico street address by Meyacco when the horse became frightened by a street car at Broadway and Franklin streets and started down hill at full speed. The buggy was turned over twice and wrecked. The occupants were taken to the Receiving Hospital.

Alfiere and the woman were found to have been hurt in identically the same manner, both suffering abrasions at the back of the head and on the left elbow. Meyacco had only slight abrasions on two fingers.

Soon afterward another accident was reported from the crossing at North Broadway and Alpine streets, where William Esterbrook of No. 816 North Figueroa street, a teamster in the employ of the city, tried to stop a runaway team and was knocked down. He has a badly sprained knee.

A report of City Engineer Loder was read before the Supervisors yesterday explaining in how far the lessee of the San Dimas quarry is liable for failure to supply enough stone, according to contract. It was explained that wet weather and the method of quarrying were disadvantages. A letter from Chairman Bixby, of the Highway Commission, assured the board that enough stone will soon be quarried to meet the demand when things dry up. Deputy District Attorney Hanna advised that bonds, which might not be good securities, be not accepted as guaranties on bids. It was suggested that only 5 per cent. be called for, instead of the customary 10, in order that such large sums might not be tied up, without interest, for varying periods.

FRANKHOUSER ARRAIGNED.

F. W. Frankhouser, former superintendent of the City Fire Alarm Bureau, was arraigned yesterday before Justice Young on a charge of falsifying public records. His examination will take place May 1. In default of $5000 he was sent to the County Jail, but last night an effort was still being made to get bond.

Frankhouser was arrested last week in Portland by F. W. Loyd, of the City Auditor's office. The complaint asserts that the following witnesses will be called to testify in his trial W. C. Mushet, L. R. Works, John W. Shenk, R. W. Drumgold, ex-Councilman; Fred W. Loyd, co-city auditor; Bert L. Farmer ex-census enumerator; Barney Healy, F. L. Ford, ex-Councilman; B. W. Land, clerk of the fire department.

FOR DRIVING LAME HORSE.

H. C. Peachy and H. D. McDonald were yesterday fined $25 each in Justice Forbes's court for driving a lame horse in Arcadia. The complaining witnesses were Superintendent Zimmer and Officer Fowler of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Comes Back.

TEARS DOWN MANY CHARGES.

Building Inspector Asks for Complete Investigation.

Demands Truth of Statements He Has Submitted.

Shows Results of Persistent Fire Escape Work.

The structure of charges erected by Fire Commissioner Hawley against Building Inspector Backus was condemned by that officialyesterday when he filed a reply to it with the Board of Public Works. In fact, Backus literally tore it down with his answers in detail.

After having convincingly showed the ignorance of Hawley, Backus respectfully asked the board not only to receive his report, but to make a thorough investigation of him, his employees and the truth of his statements submitted.

Hawley's charges were principally concerning thirty buildings on which he said Backus has not enforced the ordinance requiring fire escapes. Of these thirty buildings, Backus shows that twelve have already constructed escapes in accordance with the law, eight more have let contracts, and the rest have had proper notice, except where it was doubtful whether the ordinance would reach them.

Buckus suggests that Hawley might have found more, as there are fifteen prosecutions instituted by Backus now pending in Police Court.

More than 1000 buildings have been equipped with fire escapes in the past five years, Backus shows, and that Hawley can find only 4 per cent. now without them he regards as good evidence of his persistency.

HIS HARD FIGHT.

He shows how he has fought injunctions, worked over ordinances until he finally got one that would hold water in court and how for months he and the city prosecutor have been prevented from prosecuting fire escape cases on old buildings, while the council was considering an amendment excepting them.

The courts, he shows, do not like to issue complaints when the legislative body is considering abolishing the law invoked.

As to the charges that the Pantages and the Orpheum have been favored in not being required to provide court exits, he answers that they are there according to the ordinance for the board to see and measure.

As to his absence from duty at Sacramento, he cites the fact that the Council directed him to go and provided for his expenses, and that the changes he gained in the Burnett tenement house law have stimulated building of such structures here.

One change, he says, was worth all his stay. This was the one requiring any tenement extending from one street to another to be cut in two. Another permits occupancy of a larger area of ground space. Both help building in Los Angeles. Besides, he says a tenement house law is needed to protect the city from unsafe and unsanitary buildings in the future, and the amended Burnett law does this.

He admits Hawley's charge that he has required approval by licensed architects on concrete structures, but he says the building ordinance requires this. Most cities require it because concrete is still largely an experimental material.

NOT HIS FAULT.

That there are building—"shacks" Hawley called them in the Hollingsworth tract without permits, he lays to the fact that the City and county assessors advised him there is no Hollingsworth tract in the city.

That there are tents maintained in the fire limits he does not dispute, but says if there are, the police should prosecute as it is the duty of that department. He says he was busying himself prosecuting such matters when the City Attorney advised him it was not in his jurisdiction. Leslie R. Hewitt, when City Attorney, advised him to drop prosecutions.

That there is a freight elevator in the Owens apartments he says ought to be reported to the elevator and boiler inspector who has the enforcement of such regulations. Backus says an emergency deputy in his office did approve this building, and did not notice that there was no tin on the freight elevator door.

As to the theater inspection, he declares he has gone beyond his duty in making inspections of them, as the ordinances, which he cites, impose that work on the police and fire departments.

That a factory at No. 258 South Los Angeles street has only two stairways, though the present ordinance requires more, is due to the fact that the ordinance is not retroactive.

WHAT IS NEEDED.

In conclusion, Backus states that his office is the head of the building and construction department and that his superior, the Board of Public Works, and himself, have been frequently advised that they have nothing to do with the maintenance of buildings after they have been erected according to the ordinances. He says he has seven men to aid him, and last year they had 10,738 buildings spread over 100 square miles to inspect.

He declares Los Angeles to be better equipped in whole for safety than any other city of its size in the country, yet he would have it much better. He asks that his frequent appeals to the council for safety ordinances, for fire escape laws and such precautions is the best evidence of his zeal for security in Los Angeles.

THEY WOULD BE YOUNGSTERS.

San Francisco Man and Kansas Woman, Getting Marriage License, Hold Ages to the Legal Limit.

Did Patrick A. Dolan, who gives his address as No. 512 Falcon avenue, San Francisco, and Daisy E. Mance of Atchison, find the fountain of youth in Los Angeles yesterday?

It is a common experience of the marriage license clerks to find youngsters not legally old enough for matrimony solemnly perjuring themselves to get the coveted documents, girls of 16 swearing that they are 18, and callow, beardless youths of 19, making affidavit that they are 21. Dolan and his intended did nothing of that sort.

Dolan, the license clerks say, appears to be fully 45 years old, but he insisted that he is 21, and that's the way it reads on his license. The blushing bride-to-be showed evidence of 30 summers, the same experts declare, and she coyly said 18, when asked about it.

The funeral of the late Frank Garrett, of the law firm of Haas, Garrett & Dunnigan, will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock, under Masonic auspices, at the residence, No. 2209 Ocean View avenue. His death occurred on deceased attorney, whose funeral will be held today.

Sunday morning, and interment will be at Rosedale Cemetery. He leaves a widow and two brothers.

Mr. Garrett was born in Leavenworth, Kan., September 14, 1869. He was educated in the public schools of that city, attended Holbrook Military Academy, Briarcliff, N. Y. and Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., from which he graduated in 1892, and from the University of Michigan, in 1895. Coming directly to Los Angeles, he entered the law office of White & Monroe, then consisting of the late Stephen M. White, and Hon. Charles Monroe, now judge of the Superior Court of this county. Mr. Garrett engaged in the practice on his own behalf, until January 1, 1901, when he formed a law partnership with Walter F. Haas, under the firm name of Haas & Garrett, and Harry L. Dunnigan later became a member of the firm. Garrett married Miss Sara G. Dickinson November, 16 1899.

In politics he was an ardent Democrat. He was a member of the University Club of Los Angeles, of the University of Michigan Alumni Association, of the Southern California College Men's Association, a member of Palestine Masonic Lodge, he was also a Thirty-second Degree Scottish Rite Mason, a Shriner and an Elk. In temperament, Garrett was of a genial and buoyant disposition, and made many warm personal friends. In his practice he was painstaking, conscientious and courteous. His home life was congenial and he was at all times devoted to his wife, and although having no children of his own, was most happy when he could surround himself with little folks and contribute to their pleasure and enjoyment. He was a man of refined tastes and fond of literature, and at the same time took a keen interest in all manly sports. His position in society and in his chosen profession was an enviable one, and he departed life deeply mourned by all who knew him.

HE FINDS ANOTHER VICTIM.

Enterprising Youth Who Sells Fake Newspaper Routes to Newsboys Makes Another Deal.

The oily tongued youngster who, about three months ago, sold bogus newspaper routes to newsboys and escaped with the proceeds of his dishonesty, claimed another victim yesterday in the person of Tommy O'Hara, aged 12 years, of No. 1127 East Twenty-fifth street. O'Hara told the police yesterday of the affair.

He says he met the sharper at Adams street and Central avenue and gave him $4, which was half of the amount agreed upon for the paper route and a bicycle.

O'Hara described him as being about 16 years old, very well dressed, light haired and rather tall for his age.

THE PRICE of West Riverside Estate 11-Year-Old Navel Orange Groves is Now $1400 Per Acre

TERMS—One-fifth cash at date of purchase, balance, which you should easily make from the crops, in eight equal annual installments.

The price will be advanced $50.00 per acre May 15 and June 15, 1911. Even at $1500 per acre, an investigation will convince you that this is the best citrus value in Southern California—not to mention the terms which should and will, in the near future, command a premium.

Nothing can prevent the West Riverside Estate groves from being in demand and selling at from $2000 to $2500 per acre in a few years' time, because there is one class of property that has sold for many years past, and will sell for many years to come, to men of wealth at high prices, and that kind of property is known as foothill citrus property, so located as to have the view and outlook demanded.

There is no more beautiful location or one more thoroughly suited for the purposes named than the West Riverside Estate. In addition to this, the groves are capable of producing as much per acre as any citrus property in Southern California.

Any man who buys at $1500 per acre—one-fifth down, balance eight equal annual installments—will get income property of increasing value on such terms that the property purchased will pay for itself out of its own earnings inside the purchase time.

If he buys at $1400 he is just $100 per acre better off.

Nothing can prevent the final outcome or ultimate raise in value, as the actual acreage suited for the highest class citrus and suburban home purposes is strictly limited in area. The West Riverside Estate ideally meets both of these requirements; in addition, is located close to Riverside—a millionaire tourist town, and can easily be shown to the class of people who should and will buy.

The sales since November 1, 1910, are in excess of $300,000, which should convince you that the offering has been appreciated by the majority of those who have looked at the property.

For sale by over 200 representative Southern California real estate firms, or

NOW WOULDN'T IT MAKE YOU MAD?

FIVE PRETTY WAITRESSES HEAR SAD MISDOINGS.

They Sue Hotel Man for Wages Due, and He Retaliates in Counter Suit With List of Their Omissions and Commissions Which Drive Guests From the House.

The giving of three pats of butter to patrons, instead of one, with sundry other acts, caused L. I. Ravven, manager of the Pleasanton Hotel, on South Grand avenue, to bring suit before Justice Forbes yesterday against five pretty waitresses for damages in the amount of $399.

The girls had started the mill by suing Ravven for $125, alleged to be due them in back wages. They were discharged March 16, after working half a month, and demanded payment in full for the month. They said they had been made to leave without cause, which Ravven denied with asperity on the stand.

Marion McHugh was the compaining witness, the others assigning their accounts to her. They were Katie Birmingham, Dolly Herald, Hilda Nelson and Hilma Doty.

In his counter suit, Ravven claimed the girls, by their conduct, had done his business incalculable damage. The lavishness with butter cost him $10, he estimated. Taking the napkins to the kitchen to wipe the trays, against his express prohibition, damaged him to the extent of $5; failure to clean the silver twice a month cost him $25; leaving an unscreened back window open persistently and maliciously let in flies beyond counting, which had caused guests to leave. This was worth $25.

Failure to wash the water bottles had done damage that dollars could not atone for.

"Think," said the plaintiff, "Morgan or Rockefeller might have been kept away from the house, just because they weren't clean."

All these sins of commission and omission had had bad results, Ravven asserted.

A certain feminine boarder of long standing had decided to stand it no longer, and had left. A man could not endure the chatter of the girls, and he left. A friend of this man was lonely and departed. An invalid, whose meals were carried to him on a tray, claimed that the waitress who brought them talked while he tried to eat, and he dusted. Others found the house too melancholy after these lights had disappeared, and they left.

The recital of this testimony caused so much merriment in the court, where the five pretty plaintiffs were lined up in a row, that Justice Forbes was obliged to call the spectators to order. He finally asked Constable Allen to hush the women, but that official disappeared suddenly through the back door.

Justice Forbes will take the damage clauses under advisement, and give his decision in about a week.

HIS FAITH IS SHAKEN.

Haberdasher, Who Cashes Traveling Salesman's Telegraphic Order, Now Says It Is Fictitious and Sues.

W. D. Warden, a traveling salesman for the Hockaday Paint Company, was arraigned yesterday before Justice Summerfield on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, preferred by G. B. Logan. His hearing was set for May 5, and he gave bond in the sum of $2000.

The complaint alleges that Warden represented to Logan, who is a haberdasher, that he had received a telegraphic order from his company for $40, which Logan cashed. This telegram, it is asserted, was fictitious.

SAYS DEED WAS ALTERED.

Witness's Testimony in Alleged Forgery Case Yesterday May Establish Intent to Defraud.

The examination of Christian Jantzen, charged with forgery of a deed to Tacoma property, formerly owned by E. A. McDonald, brought out in court yesterday by the examination of J. A. McCarty, that a deed given by him to Jantzen in an exchange, and later transferred by Jantzen, had been altered.

On this as a basis, Deputy District Attorney Richardson will try to establish an intent on the part of the defendant to forge the Tacoma deed.

The McCarty instrument was titles to forty acres that figured largely in Jantzen's trial for exchanging worthless titles and securities with three Englishmen for a ranch worth $85,000. He will be held to answer for this in the Superior Court.

McCarty's counsel, F. E. Davis, made repeated objections to questioning by the prosecution, on the ground that his client might incriminate himself. The witness was allowed to testify.

McDonald said he believed that acid had been used on the Tacoma deed to remove his wife's name and substitute that of Jantzen. The hearing will be continued May 3.

LOG CABIN GETS LICENSE.

The Board of Supervisors yesterday granted retail and restaurant liquor licenses to A. J. Lenox, who has promised that he will improve the Santa Monica Canyon Log Cabin, and run it as the board desires. Lenox was first recommended by the man who ran the dive heretofore. The resolution was introduced by Supervisor Nellis, in whose district the cabin is situated, upon assurance by the Santa Monica Land and Water Company, which owns the land, that they will be satisfied with Lenox as a tenant. Supervisor Manning voted against the restaurant license; the other went through by unanimous vote.

FOR SALE—

IF YOU KNEW

How easy we make it for you to own your own home—not a ready-made, take-what-you-get home—but one built after your own ideas and just the way you want it.

YOU WOULD STOP PAYING RENT and have "something to show" besides rent receipts.

We furnish plans and build on terms like rent, and you could not duplicate the home anywhere at the purchase price. You benefit by the cost advantages we enjoy.

FOR SALE—
Country Property.

FOR SALE—
20 ACRES, CHEAP.
HAS DOUBLE WATER RIGHT.
If you're looking for good land cheap, here is your one best buy. This 20 acres is located a few miles south of Fresno—a fine body of level land, which the soil is rich. Abundant cheap water for irrigation. You couldn't ask for a better spring floor for alfalfa, or for a dairy ranch. You could develop a fine orchard here in a very few years. Two railway stations within a very few years. Two railway stations with excellent train service to Fresno. Has all the advantages of a good town, with schools, stores, telephones, free rural delivery, etc. etc. This land is now under cultivation. Only $200 an acre—and a small cash payment takes it. Balance within four years; longer terms if desired. See me for full particulars.

LISSNER ROASTED IN MASS MEETING WHICH CONDEMNS ONE-MAN RULE.

Crosstown Line Advocates Threaten Recall if They Are Turned Down—Declare They Are Weary of Waiting on the Will of the Boss and Want Quick Action—Speeches Boil With Indignation.

SEVENTY-FIVE THOUSAND persons, represented by eleven improvement associations, will go before the City Council at 2 o'clock this morning and ask that body to give them the justice they declare Mayer Lissner and the Board of Public Utilities has denied them.

They are residents south of Jefferson street as far as Manchester avenue, and their request is for a street car franchise on Vernon avenue from its eastern to its western limits.

At a mass meeting held last night, in a theater at Moneta avenue and Forty-fifth street, several hundred persons voted unanimously on resolutions asking the Council's favorable consideration of their petition, and a committee of three speakers was appointed to represent the united South and Southwest before the Council by word of mouth. These speakers are H. S. McCullom, W. A. Alderson and N. L. Blabon.

In a ringing speech before the mass-meeting, Mr. Alderson declared that he would insist on explaining the situation to the Council, unless the Mayor ordered him carried from the hall by the police. In a speech fully as emphatic, S. D. Moore said that the attitude of the people today would be, "Give us a through car line from east to west, or we will recall you."

WIRE HUNTINGTON.

The meeting ordered a telegram sent to H. E. Huntington at New York City, advising him of the strong sentiment of the people in that section for the Vernon-avenue line.

The committee will represent to the Council today that the Manual Art School at Forty-second and Vermont avenue is attended by hundreds of children who are in most urgent need of the Vernon-avenue line, and that thousands of workmen in the western portions of the city now lose from one to three hours daily because of the unnecessarily round-about way they are forced to go to and from their places of employment.

H. S. McCallum stated last night that Meyer Lissner is the owner of a large property on West Jefferson stret and is either the agent or owner of another large property on that thoroughfare, and that Councilmen O'Brien and Williams have property interests which make a through line on Jefferson avenue a proposition of personal interest.

J. C. Craig was chairman of the evening. He stated that it is now more than a year since the residents of the south and west had been promised a line crossing the city from east to west. Mr. Huntington had said that he would be glad to build when it was demonstrated that the public wanted such a service and when the City Council and the Public Utilities Board would express a choice between Vernon avenue and Jefferson street. He said that as long as a year ago, the Board of Public Utilities had promised a franchise on one of these thoroughfares, but that it made endless delays.

FIGHTING ONE MAN RULE.

N. L. Blabon expressed himself as heartily opposed to a Board of Public Utilities which legislates against public welfare. He said that the Vernon avenue line came within the rights of citizenship and that no one man had a right to dictate how, when and where the people should ride. He was opposed to a pernicious dictatorship by which one man could defeat the will of a third of the city's population.

H. S. McCullom declared that the people demanded a decision, and that today they would ask the Council to act and not to leave the responsibility to the Board of Public Utilities where already it has rested too long. He said that the people must fight a system which gives to one man the power to defeat the people. They were not fighting the City Council, he said, but they were fighting the one-man rule of the city.

There had been enough of vain petitioning, he continued. There had been enough of an outrageous indifference on the part of those who held it in their power to make the people wait. The time had come to make the will of the people felt, if they could not make the voice of the people be heard.

One man had said, "Wait until I get ready to give you what I want to." With the power of 30,000 votes behind them they would show Mr. Lissner, the man who could make governors and dictate to legislators, that he cannot feed one-third the inhabitants of Los Angeles upon the dust of his majestic feet.

Mr. Alderson read the audience the letter which the Board of Public Utilities sent to the City Council asking that action on the crosstown line be deferred until Bion J. Arnold could make his report. He declared that no report that any traffic expert could make could alter the need or the expediency of the Vernon-avenue line.

URGES THE RECALL.

Any competent section foreman in Los Angeles, S. B. Moore said, could run a feasible line on Vernon avenue. The citizens interested in this line were only requesting the Council to anounce its willingness to sell a franchise on Vernon avenue. He said that the people on West Jefferson street were by no means a unit in asking for a line as most of them go to the city in their own automobiles.

He urged the people, if they were turned down, to immediately invoke the use of the recall against those responsible for the adverse action. He said that the Mayor had created the president of the Board of Public Utilities to discover that the created was bigger than the creator and bigger than the whole City Council.

He thought that the members of the Council were good men, but that they were afraid of the town's big boss. He thought he could pick out twenty men in the audience who could write a better charter for this city than any New Yorker whom Lissner would hire at the expense of local taxpayers.

J. M. Glass made a speech, in which he suggested that the people go in large numbers to the Council chamber this morning. He praised Councilman Gregory who, he said, had fought consistently for the Vernon avenue line.

Mr. Glass and Mr. Blabon drafted ringing resolutions which were adopted with enthusiasm and which will be presented to the Council this morning.

THE BOARD'S LETTER.

The Board of Public Utilities yesterday sent its promised letter to the Council asking that action on the cross-town line question be deferred until Bion J. Arnold completes his investigation of the transportation problem in this city. This means a delay of six weeks probably. But in justification of its request the board says:

"Me also beg to inform your honorable body that negotiations pending with the Los Angeles Railway Company for the construction of cross-town car lines, including both routes suggested in the documents referred to, are so far under way that any immediate action looking to the construction of a portion of the same before the whole question is thoroughly understood, may prove detrimental to the securing of very much greater advantages of equal importance to residents along the two routes indicated in these petitions.

"A very large number of petitions have come to your honorable body and this board, bearing upon both sides of this cross-town car line question, and we have most thoroughly gone into the subject, both on the ground and in conference. By negotiations with the railway company, which have proceeded to such an extent that we confidently believe we shall be able before long to arrange for the construction of a comprehensive system of cross-town lines covering not only the two routes suggested in these communications, but also a much more extensive connection between the south and northwest. If this result can be brought about, it will add greatly to the number of transfers now given and will in every way facilitate travel between different parts of the city."

Puritanical.

HARK BACK TO YE OLDEN DAYS.

NEW ENGLAND SOCIETY SCRAP AT TOWN MEETING.

Dignified Citizens Unlimber at the Large Gathering and Discuss Such Topics As Hat Pins, Garbage, Prizefights, Censorship for the Drama and Cider-testing.

Voters of the town of Boostville, who, in other circumstances, are known as members of the New England Society, gathered last night at Blanchard Hall to debate the issues of the day in an old-time New England town-meeting.

There may have been more jollity at this meeting, than characterized the Puritan forbears, but so far as procedure went, John Endicott himself would have been satisfied.

A moderator was first elected, namely, Dr. W. A. Lamb, who will act as president of the society for the coming year. As selectmen, H. A. Palmer, Justice Frank C. Forbes and Dennis E. Bowman were chosen. They will serve as vice-presidents and secretary, respectively. Bowman was called Town Clerk last night, however, after being instructed to issue in his own name the first marriage license of the year.

From a warrant of portentious length the moderator read questions for debate. The garbage difficulty was settled after a heated dispute, upon motion that all cans be left upon the porches of neighbors. This was not accomplished without difficulty, for Dr. Nichols, standing for his profession, asserted stoutly that these newfangled ideas about sanitation, were driving away his business.

Madison Marine and Arthur Prentice pleaded eloquently for the limitation of women's hat pins to a length of three feet; but Justice Forbes moved that the matter be referred to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The shortening of prize fights among female voters to (twenty-three) rounds was a question of gravity. There were so many amendments that the voters of Boostville were not sure which way their ballots were cast, when a decision was called for. The District Attorney will have to settle it.

Dr. Sherwin Gibbons and Hugh Adams waxed eloquent over the censorship of plays, and the question of which was the higher type, "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge," or "The Girl from Rector's." Roger Woodbury became so excited that he would inevitably have lost his periwig, if it had been in colonial times.

The consolidation of the offices of Moderator and Official Cider-tester was vigorously upheld by the first officer, who lifes cider; but the latter became pessimistic over possible loss of his position.

The proposals to limit the hobble capacity of skirts on female voters and to have specifications drawn for harem garments of feminine police officials, drew as vigorous a protest from the ladies present as had the hat-pin ordinance earlier in the evening.

The treasurer reported that there were 4140 mills in the exchequer, acquired through the poll tax, levies for stray geese and cows on the village common, and a tax on bachelors. No scolds had been in the ducking-stool recently, and the pillory had been idle. Twelve overseers of the poor were elected.

TAG-DAY MUSIC ARRANGED.

Secretary Sewall Announces That He Has Three Bands and a Fife-and-Drum Corps for May 6.

Music will be a big feature of the fourth annual "Tag Day" of the Associated Charities, Saturday, May 6, when an effort will be made by the association to "tag" every man, woman and child in Los Angeles.

Secretary Spencer K. Sewall had already arranged for two big parades accompanied by bands on "Tag Day," and yesterday he was notified that the boys of the McKinley Industrial School desire to help in the good work, and will donate the services of their band for the day, in addition to a company of young workers who expect to sell many hundreds of tags.

The Los Angeles Cadets have also volunteered their services, and a squad of cadets under Commandant C. L. Young and Lieut. W. R. Baranger, accompanied by a fife and drum corps, will be on the streets early, gathering in dimes. The colors of the cadets are blue and gray, and the young soldiers will sell tags of these shades.

The tags will be in ten different colors this year, so that the fastidiously inclined may be able to match the colors of their costumes on "Tag Day," and thereby preserve that "harmony of color" if they so desire.

A committee from the Associated Charities composed of Pres. H. W. Frank, Secretary S. K. Sewall, Frank G. Tyrell, Phillip D. Wilson and Superintendent of City Schools J. H. Francis, will visit all of the High Schools of the city Tuesday, May 2, and address the pupils on the subject of "Tag Day." It is expected that fully 25,000 school children will sell tags this year. President Frank has issued a statement in which he earnestly requests that all persons who insist upon paying more than the price (10 cents) shall demand a tag for each dime. This is necessary in order to keep the accounts straight.

Secretary Sewall is sending out a number of letters asking people to send in for tags to be sold on "Tag Day," and make their returns after selling. This plan is meeting with success and many volunteer sellers have already responded.

GREASE STAINS IN A SUITCASE.

DETECTIVE BURNS SAYS WERE CAUSED BY DYNAMITE.

Key With Which He Unlocked the Receptacle Was Taken From McNamara in Indianapolis—Denies the Authenticity of Purported Interviews With Prisoners.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TOLEDO (O.) April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Detective W. J. Burns spent five hours in Toledo today on the Los Angeles dynamiting case. While here he took possession of a suit case left by J. B. McNamara in the Union railway station.

"In the suit case were found several balls of twine and a quantity of wrapping paper. The twine and the paper are of the same material as that found wrapped about the dynamite we found in Indianapolis," said Detective Burns. "I understand that five places were to have been dynamited in Detroit and one in Toledo.

"The key with which we opened the suit case was one of a bunch which we took from McNamara when he was arrested in Indianapolis. The suit case was grease stained which was caused by dynamite being carried in it."

Detective Burns says he will experience no difficulty whatever in fastening the crime of blowing up the building of the Los Angeles Times in which twenty lives were lost last October.

"I have been employed to locate and apprehend the men responsible for the dynamitting in Los Angeles," he continued. "I have accomplished it beyond a doubt. I have no feeling at all in the matter and am not opposed to unions as stated in today's dispatches. I have simply done my duty.

"The work of locating the place of supply of explosives was taken up first and led through various channels. No definite place was fixed until last January when 1600 pounds of dynamite had been stolen from the France quarries in Bloomville, O.

"An operative went to Bloomville and from there to Tiffin. It was not long until two suspects were spotted and these were trailed for weeks.

"Their absence from places they frequented was carefully noted—in fact, they were never lost sight of until they were placed under arrest in Detroit.

"I instructed our boys, when they left Chicago to make the arrest, to tell McNamara and McManigal not to commit themselves to anything which might incriminate them, or which might be used against them as evidence. But McNamara clearly showed what was on his mind when he said to my son, 'You don't want me for safe blowing at all, but for that Los Angeles job.'

"McManigal was more conservative in his speech and it required some persuasive arguments and most effective 'sweating' to get from him that which has enabled us to find this stuff. I have only got a good start on this 'crime of the century' and when the public is made familiar with all its terrible details, people of this country and throughout the world will be startled."

Burns declared that the officers taking the prisoners back to the coast had positive orders that no newspaper men, attorneys and friends were to be allowed to hold any conversation with them until they were turned over to the Los Angeles authorities. He denied unequivocally various interviews purporting to have come from the prisoners.

DARROW IS ILL.

MAY NOT DEFEND M'NAMARA.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, April 24.—Clarence Darrow, who has represented union organizations in most of their fights before the courts, arrived here tonight and went into consultation with Attorney Rappaport, counsel for the Structural Iron Union.

Mr. Darrow said he was here only in connection with the extradition of McNamara and said if possible he would have nothing to do with the trials in Los Angeles, because of his health. He said he might return to Chicago tomorrow.

SWALLOWS LAUDANUM.

Jessie Riadel, aged 24 years, said by the police to be a hop-head, quarreled last evening with her friend, George Peters, who has a bootblack stand at Seventh and Spring streets, and swallowed laudanum. She was pumped out at the Receiving Hospital and will recover.

RED TEACHER OF DYNAMITING ARRESTED ON THE STREE

Riotous Demonstration Follows, Two Hundred of His Ilk Going Along to Central Police Station and Threatening to Blow It Up—Brazen Defiance of the Los Angels Authorities by a Band of Rowdies.

PREACHING armed violence and dynamiting, conducting, in fact, a regular night school in dynamiting, William D. Jones, a rabid tramp who is duly accredited as a member of the I.W.W., was arrested at Second and Los Angeles streets last night and thrown into jail. His arrest was the signal for a riotous demonstration on the part of about 200 of the ragtag and bobtail of trampdom, who accompanied him to the jail, begging to be "killed right where I stand," but who were only accorded the boon of a few good kicks properly placed by generous patrolmen. Threats were made to blow up the police station before morning.

The seething agitation which was started in local labor circles Sunday morning as by a leaven in the shape of the news from the East, of the arrest of the arch-assassins and murderous conspirators, the McNamara brothers and McManigal, came to a head last night in a most brazen defiance of the constituted authorities.

ANYTHING BUT LAW.

Armed resistance to the movement of troops called out to quell labor troubles, detailed explanations on the laying of dynamite mines under railroad tracks, bridges and terminals, the most efficient methods of shooting down officers of the law—these were but a few items in the curriculum taught by Jones.

Long, lanky, unkempt and dirty, his bestial face hung above stooping shoulders under a mop of uncombed hair, he was the ideal dynamiter of the novelist. There is nothing about him even remotely suggestive of the finish and smoothness of such accomplished dastards as the Indianapolis and Chicago outfit.

Uncouth, raw and ignorant, he is the embodiment of the spirit of the I.W.W. He is a Socialist, out and out. He is the kind who go about preaching to the poor, deluded persons who hate work and believe that the slinging of a sledge by the hour is the height of human accomplishment, and merits all the luxuries and comforts wealth can buy. He is of the type who laugh at the efforts of thinking men and women and rejoice in the violence of brute force. His doctrine is that of the brute, dominating by the force of claws over less strong animals. Snarling, glaring, driven at bay into the corner of the desk sergeant's window at the Central Police Station, he was an epitome of what Americans, politicians, business men or what not, may look for if they ever give an inch to his kind, the rabid I.W.W. of the laborite world of peace destroyers. That is the way a police criminologist summed him up.

"If the United States government attempts to send troops in here in the event of labor troubles you can lay dynamite under the railroad tracks and under the railroad stations and blow these damned troops 'off the face of the earth as fast as they come in," he shouted to his frenzied entourage of hobos and do-nothings. "And if you are only careful in laying the wires to some lonely place where the operator can't be seen, nobody will ever know how it is done."

OFF HIS PERCH.

Every night, at Second and Los Angeles streets, gathers a crowd of loafers who, without the means of paying for a bed, snoop around in bunches until 100 to 200 worthless men swap tales of grievances against civilized society. This edifying concourse is broken up only when the patrol wagon, on its way to gather in a drunk, clangs its way through Los Angeles street, or where some patrolman, unusually peeved, sends the aggregation scurrying. These interruptions, however, are only for moments, and the incipient mob is not long in forming again.

Last night when Jones, fired with enthusiasm over the prospects of riot, mounted a soap box and began urging all workingmen to carry guns so that they could "cope with the armed police of the capitalists," and followed this up with minute explanations on the laying of dynamite mines, he was jerked off his perch by Patrolmen Sweetman and Fuller and Sergt. Hackett. Grabbing him by the scruff of the neck and the bosom of the trousers made him do the "Spanish walk" toward the Police Station.

Instantly with the red's arrest, the whole hooting, yelling, cursing mob formed into an escort to the prisoner, marching with him.

As soon as the officers and the dynamite preacher, followed by the mob, reached First street, some excited spectator sent a riot call to Lieut. Murray at headquarters. In two seconds automobiles loaded with officers and officers on foot, their hands on their hips, were racing down First street, meeting the mob at Spring and First.

There were numerous cries of defiance to the police, many declarations that "I'll die right in my tracks," and several times the threat that the station would "go up in smoke before morning," and "would be blown up like it ought to if that man isn't turned loose," were heard. But the plain clothesmen, led by Sergt. O'Brien and Sergt. Hackett in charge of the uniformed men, calmly mingled in with the ranters and watched them.

MORE DEFIANT.

At the Police Station Jones was more defiant than ever.

"What is the charge against you?" asked the lieutenant.

"I guess I'll have to leave that to you fellows," he snorted.

"Why were you arrested?"

"I was only speaking on the street."

"But what were you saying?"

"I was telling them how to organize and how to overcome the forces of the law; that is all. You can go to hell."

The papers in the pocket of the prisoner showed that he served seventy-two days in jail for street speaking in Spokane, and is a member of the I.W.W. in Portland, from where he was transferred to the Los Angeles "lodge." He has been living at No. 314 South Main street. Jones was booked under suspicion.

INDIANAPOLIS HORRIFIED.

when it was directed against some unfortunate employer of labor who happened to differ with his men in respect to wages or hours of labor. These employers have then found that the fact that the headquarters of the particular union was located here only made the men employed by him more arrogant in their demands and less tractable when their demands were met.

Not only has this been the result in individual cases, but the presence of the national headquarters has seemed at times to act as a wet blanket upon the entire city; this was notably true when two buildings on which non-union labor employed by Contractor Von Spreckelsen were working were blown up by dynamite and the next morning it developed that a similar attempt had been made at the planing mill which he owned.

BEATEN BY DYNAMITE.

Every one denounced the dynamiting as an outrage, but men for whom he had contracted to erect buildings informed him that they could not take the risk and he was obliged to make a cowardly surrender to the unions and employ their members in order to remain in business. That he was one of the victims of the gang of wreckers who are now under arrest is not doubted, for the explosions had all the ear marks of their work as it has since been further developed in other places. There were many who protested against Von Spreckelsen's surrender but they did not offer him protection and he could not fight all the labor unions, reinforced as they were by national headquarters, all by himself.

Citizens of all classes came to a realizing sense of conditions here when the finding of 100 pounds of dynamite in the basement of the American Central Life Building became known, and astonishment has been expressed a thousand times since, as men, looking at the building, thought of what an accidental explosion would have cost the city. Not only the Central Life building but half a dozen others would have been wrecked by such an explosion and a half million dollars in property destroyed, to say nothing of the lives that would have been in jeopardy had it occurred either at night or in the day time.

HORROR BROUGHT HOME.

The horror of the situation was brought more closely to them today, when standing around the entrance to the basement, they heard rats gnawing at the boxes stored there and in the daylight saw them scampering from place to place. This was the risk that the owners and occupants of buildings in the immediate vicinity have run since McNamara made the basement of the Central Life building the repository of his dynamite and infernal machines.

"The den of devil's" is the name that has been appropriately applied to this repository of McNamara dynamite and exploding clocks, and one entering it has the impression that it would be certainly a fit place for such deposits and for the deliberations of men who had such nefarious schemes to carry out.

Not a ray of light penetrates it from the outside and it has the chill and dampness that comes from years of excluding the outer air. The odors are noisome, the darkness impenetrable and the stillness oppressive. When entered by the police with lanterns they might have imagined that they were going into a veritable hades. Rats scampered away from the intruders and the officers shuddered as though they had come in contact with some loathsome thing.

As the light from the flickering lanterns fell upon the floor and walls there was brought into sight a row of three shelves on one side with a dozen or more old musty volumes of records, that looked as if they might have been used a century ago. Lying loose on one of the shelves were some peculiarly shaped machines which examination proved to be time locks for exploding dynamite. When this discovery was made the officers knew that they were in the midst of death dealing instruments that McNamara and his pals were using to destroy property and life.

A little further investigation revealed the 100 pounds of dynamite and near by the coils of fuse—and the story was complete. Surveyed from any point, the room had a foreboding aspect. It was one that the janitor never enters and it had not been cleaned for a decade, a slimy dampness covered the floor and a musty, pungent odor greeted the nostrils. Only the shelving on one side testified to any use of the room for legimate purposes and when McNamara selected it for the repository of dynamite he might have felt sure that no one save himself would ever enter it.

Indeed, when they approached it the officers, save Detective Burns, did not believe that anything would be found in it, so forbidding did it seem. Hundreds of citizens attracted by curiosity have looked into the "Den of Devils" since the dynamite was removed and have commented on the desperate character of the man or men who could occupy rooms on the fourth floor, knowing that such a dangerous explosive was beneath them and that rats and mice inhabited the room and might gnaw into it at any moment and explode it, and the wonder has increased that such an explosive should have been brought into the very heart of the city to be distributed over the country and be used in the furtherance of schemes of revenge against men who were innocent of wrong.

NEWS REPORTS FROM CORRESPONDENTS OF THE TIMES.

Pasadena.

MORE STRINGENT LAWS WANTED;

Crown City Prohibition Club Will File Petition.

Would Exclude Intoxicants From City's Precincts.

Little Chance for Action by Old Council.

(Office of The Times, 28 S. Raymond avenue.)

PASADENA, April 25.—The long-expected petition of the Prohibition Club will be brought before the City Council this morning, unless present plans miscarry. The petition will ask that the present provision of the city charter and the "famous" ordinance No. 220 be so amended that liquor of every kind and description will be barred from this city.

The Ordinance Committee of this club has had this matter under consideration for a long time. Preachers and temperance people have discussed it privately and publicly. A year ago a petition to the Council was promised. During the recent municipal campaign it entered into the campaign, more or less, but with little effect so far as the vote was concerned.

Just why the petitioners should choose the last regular meeting of the old Council to take up this important question is not disclosed, unless they have had "a tip" that there will be plenty of time between today's meeting and May 1 to hold a special meeting and adopt a restrictive ordinance.

The city's charter is what is called freeholders' charter specially granted by the Legislature. Regarding the liquor question, it provides that liquors can be sold in restaurants and hotels during meal hours to guests, but does not prohibit liquors being sold by wholesale and delivered to private houses. Ordinance No. 220 is simply a reproduction of the charter provision and changes the fine slightly, also providing that the meals shall cost 25 cents.

Legal authorities state the charter cannot be changed without a two-thirds vote of the people and a ratification by the Legislature, and that no ordinance can be enacted contrary to the provisions of the charter. It is generally believed that the Council can do but little by a new ordinance, even though it cared to do so.

The Prohibitionists have declared for several years that wines, beer and whisky are sold promiscuously throughout the city; that the reputation of the city as a beautiful residential city is badly injured by the provision of the charter, and that the saloons should be so changed that no intoxicating liquors of any kind can be sold or given away within the city.

The exact provisions of the petition, which is to be presented today, could not be learned, but it is understood they are drastic in their nature and are adopted by the Council, into an ordinance, will put the city in the extremely "dry" class for all time. Mayor Earley and several members of the present Council are known to be favorable to absolute prohibition, but it is believed that they will not favor taking drastic action on the eve of leaving office.

Mayor-elect Thum, who will take possession of his office one week from today, is a total abstainer of the first water but states that he is not favorable towards getting "the cart before the horse." In other words he does not believe in passing measures or taking glows before their time. He thinks prohibition is growing and in time the entire country will be "dry" but he states the people must be educated up to that point gradually. Therefore his friends and advisers state he will not favor drastic measures until he feels the people are ready for them. It is believed this attitude on part of the incoming mayor is induced the Prohibitionists to carry up their measure and try to get it made into a law during the old administration.

OIL AND WATER MIED.

For once the old axiom "oil and water never mix" is a snare and delusion, according to many of the genial householders in South Pasadena, especially those who are subscribers of the water mains of the Pasadena Land & Water company. Yesterday morning when the women of that city turned on their faucets to get water for the morning meal they noticed a peculiar odor. They lighted the lamps and looked more carefully. As the water settled a little there was a pellicular scum arose on the water. It smelled like kerosene oil, looked like oil and in fact tasted like it. Over and over again the water was dumped out of the vessels but the netx helping was just as bad. Anyway breakfast must be had and the oil and water mixture was used. The oat meal tasted of oil, the coffee tasted of oil and everything seemed to be floating in oil. The man of the house "fussed" and the children made faces. Everyone in the town was mad. The oil and water combination instantly became the general topic for "clothes-line" conversations and as the men went to work they could not think of anything but oil.

Could it be a fact that a blow hole from some oil well had suddenly burst into the water reservoir? The water company was called up but no explanation could be given. Hundreds of the good citizens had investments in oil stocks, "wild cat" and otherwise, but they could not stomach it with their meals. As the day grew older the rage of the people became intensified. They became thirsty but to drink was torture. The lemonade stands were tried but with no better effect.

The water company sent out experts and it was believed someone had dumped a quantity of oil in the reservoir. The mains were cut off from the reservoir and connected with direct mains, but it didn't change the oil and water mixture. Last night was one of thirst for the people for no relief had been effected.

PICKPOCKETS, BAD HOMBRES.

The two pickpockets who were picked up by the local police last Friday night are now believed to be bad men. A careful search has been made of the rogues' gallery where the pictures of both men were found. One of the men, Tom Burns, alias "The Kid," alias John Reiley, is said to have a bad reputation all over the country and has served time in a number of State prisons. The other prisoner who gave his name as Thomas Edward Jones is also thought to have a long record for daring acts of thievery. Burns was caught in the act of snatching the purse of Mrs. W. J. Jackson while she was riding on a North Fair Oaks avenue car. She held him until help came to her rescue. The other man was also caught in the act of picking pockets. Both men will be arraigned this afternoon.

Anna Edgerton, a nurse employed at the Southern California Sanatorium on Bellefontaine street, was arrested yesterday on a warrant sworn out by H. D. Meyers of the Meyers Department Store, charged with shoplifting. She is also charged with taking books from the Brown Shop on East Colorado street store, without paying for them. When taken in custody it is stated she had some of the stolen articles in her possession.

KIRMESS A BIG SUCCESS.

It was announced late yesterday afternoon that a count of the proceeds from Kirmess which was given last week by the society folk of the city for the benefit of the Childrens' Training School will net a little over $3000. The school directors are greatly elated over the success and now believe they have enough funds to build the much needed boys' dormitory on the grounds owned by the society.

It is also said that there is a move on foot among a number of prominent men, in the city, to start a yearly subscription proposition to take care of the running expenses of the school, or rather the fixed expenses and to use the funds secured from the annual charity ball and the spring entertainment for extra expenses connected with the school. It is planned to have a hundred men subscribe $100 each annually which would provide a yearly income of $10,000.

The school is growing rapidly and more children are being taken in every day. Even at that it is said many applications are made but the present quarters are not large enough to accommodate them nor are the proceeds great enough to properly care for them.

NEWS BREVITIES.

The Hotel Green will close its doors today for the season. It has been the most prosperous season in the history of that hostlery according to the statement of the manager. Yet the end is not yet because Manager Plumer stated yesterday, that he already has a large list of reservations for next year. He expects a still larger season than this year.

An ordinance will be introduced at this mornings' meeting of the City Council compelling all house movers to take out a regulation permit for moving houses.

A delightful affair of last night was the five hundred party given by Mr. and Mrs. J. Winslow Chick at their home, No. 460 South Madison avenue.

One of the largest receptions of the season was that given yesterday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Raymond at the Hotel Raymond. There were eighty guests present.

A very pleasant affair of last night was the dinner given by Dr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Orbison at their home, No. 208 South Grand avenue.

BUILDING ACTIVE AT BEACH.

Bids Received on the Busch Casino Indicate That Structure Will Cost One Hundred Thousand.

SANTA MONICA, April 24.—There was no cessation today of the song that is being sung by hammer and saw along the shores of this bay. The carpenters put in full time, as did also the brick masons, and a number of plumbers and painters. Large forces were employed in starting operations on the P. J. O'Neil apartment house in Seaside terrace. As this building is to cost $30,000 and the desire is to have it ready by July 1, the contractors decided that no time could afford to be lost. These apartments will have an arcaded frontage on the board walk and will also front on Appian way. The building will be a three-story structure of the Swiss chalet type, each apartment opening onto a balcony.

The Adolphus Busch architects have received bids on the casino planned to be erected at the corner of Ocean avenue and Colorado. This improvement is to cost approximately $100,000. The bids have been forwarded to the Anheuser-Busch architects in St. Louis, Mo. It is expected the contract will be let within the next few days and work be commenced at once, so that the inn may be ready for at least the last end of the summer season's business.

Within twenty minutes after the members of the Crescent Bay Women's Club had decided that they wanted a clubhouse, the sum of $500 had been subscribed by twenty women as a starter for the clubhouse fund. The promoters of the enterprise expect soon to form a joint stock company for the purpose of handling the enterprise. A lot adjacent to the beach will be secured by donation or purchase and the money will be raised with which to build a clubhouse that will be a credit to the members of the organization. No definite plans as to the size or style of the building have been adopted.

Plans were accepted today for a $25,000 apartment house and a $6000 residence to be erected in Seaside terrace for Mrs. Marie Isaacs of Los Angeles. Work is expected to be started on these buildings within the next few days.

The builders are engaged on the Lannan apartment house, to cost $60,000, and the Schader residence. These are in the same tract. A start is to be made during the present week on the Schader apartment house on Appian way.

House movers are sliding the cottages off the Oregon-avenue lot between Second and Third streets, preparatory to the construction of a theater and office building by Miles & Tegner. Plans for this playhouse have been accepted.

ASPIRES TO FIRST HONORS.

Azusa Man Thinks His Navel Oranges Are in a Class by Themselves and Gives Figures.

AZUSA, April 24.—Thomas A. Smith thinks that his fifteen and twenty-year-old navel orange grove on Citrus avenue made a record this year which cannot be beaten. From 396 trees he got 2214 boxes of fruit.

While the California sunshine is ripening his fruit, Mr. Smith puts in his spare time at various things. He recently made some unique pieces of furniture from horn, pictures of which he is sending to the Strand Magazine in London.

FIRE COMPANY.

Several small fires which have occurred in Azusa recently, have led to the re-organization of the volunteer fire company. The company numbers fifteen of the town's most public-spirited young men, John E. Hibsch being foreman, and C. L. Smith secretary and treasurer.

BEET RANCHER BADLY INJURED.

DRAGGED BY RUNAWAY TEAM ATTACHED TO HARROW.

Has Rib Broken and Sustains Other Serious Injuries—Crazed With Grief a Father Indulges in Threats in Hope of Recovering His Daughter.

LONG BEACH, April 24.—Frank Carter, a beet rancher on the Bixby holdings near Los Cerritos, was the victim of a terrible experience today and that he escaped with his life is a miracle.

Carter is about 40 years of age and was preparing to go home for dinner. He thought he had completely unhitched his team from the harrow with which he was working, but had left one of the tugs fastened. While he was standing between the horses and the harrow, the animals took fright and ran away. Carter was knocked down and the harrow dragged over him, the sharp teeth tearing the clothing from his body in strips and lacerating him from head to foot with ugly cuts. In addition, he had a rib broken and a bad bruise on the head due to kicks from the affrighted animals. He lay unconscious for some time but finally managed to get his feet and, a mass of blood and wounds, dragged himself to the house, where medical attention was secured for him. He will be laid up for several weeks.

DISTRESSED PARENT.

Frank Noles, a building contractor and father of 13-year-old Katherine Noles, who has been missing from home for four weeks, was arrested today on a charge of carrying concealed weapons preferred by Richard Randolph, a negro neighbor. Noles, who is almost distracted over the absence of his child, accuses the negroes of knowing her whereabouts and armed himself with a gun to enforce information. The negroes, however, protest that they know nothing of the child and have not seen her since she disappeared. Noles was taken before Judge Underwood and after a caution, was released on his own recognizance. The mother of the girl is also critically ill from worry over the probable fate of her child.

RESIDENCE BURNED.

At 2:30 this morning employees of the Edison plant discovered the cottage of John Detlefs, at Seaside Park, in flames and before the department reached the scene, it was entirely destroyed. Cottages adjoining owned by John Favella and John Detlefs were slightly damaged. The loss will be about $700, covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is a mystery, as the house was not occupied. The building burned is the one which was surrounded by high water during the storm of last July and while other houses were being undermined, Detlefs held an earnest hour of prayer for the preservation of his property and then announced that it would be in no danger and while other cottages were wrecked and damaged, his escaped any harm.

FORM CITY CLUB.

Formal organization of the proposed City Club was effected Saturday night by thirty business and professional men of the city. The club is to be strictly non-partisan and is organized to "unite the energies, abilities, information and best disinterested efforts of its members in behalf of the material and moral benefit of Long Beach." No man holding a remunerative public office can become a member and its personnel is to be limited to 100 members. Methods used in progressive cities will be advocated and unfit public officials will be fought against. Officers elected are Charles E. Jarvis, president; Rev. H. K. Booth, and Stewart McLennon, vice-presidents; George M. Roe, secretary; B. F. Tucker, treasurer.

NEWS BRIEFS.

The police department has received a letter from the Seattle police asking them to locate Mrs. Louis Dodge, who may be going under her maiden name of Charlotte Cattle. Her sister desires the information.

The Long Beach Ohio Society has organized with a membership of eighty-five and elected John Mason president and H. N. Fay secretary. Meetings will be held monthly at the sun parlor on the outer wharf.

Miss Frances Yeomans will be valedictorian of this years' High School senior class and Miss Lucille Roberts will have second honors. The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by Rev. Henry I. Rasmus on the morning of June 18. These announcements were made by the faculty this morning.

Mrs. Nancy A. Ellis, aged 67, died this morning at her home in Burnett. She was a native of Indiana and came to California twenty-one years ago, residing in Long Beach nine years.

The new steamer Navajo made another trip in front of the city and close to the pier today, steaming about while her compass was being adjusted. She attracted much attention and the bath-house siren saluted her continuously in recognition of her Long Beach origin.

GLENDORA NOTES.

GLENDORA, April 24.—The Home Telephone Company of Covina and the Glendora Light and Power Company have reached an agreement whereby the two companies will use and maintain the same pole lines. On account of the exposed high-power wires the light and power company wires will be strung above and the cable of the Telephone company below. There will be no cross arms on the poles and none will be set to carry wires or cables over private property. The poles will all be painted green to harmonize with the beautiful evergreen pepper trees that align the streets.

A school meeting has been called for Wednesday evening, April 26, at the Glendora Operahouse for the purpose of devising ways and means to provide more and better accommodations for the school children. Two years ago there were two schoolrooms built on the school grounds and last year the auditorium of the upper floor was partitioned to make two more rooms with a hope of relieving the congestion. It is deemed advisable by those most conversant with the situation to build a standard eight-room grammar school.

New Trains, New Rates, to Lankershim and Van Nuys.

Effective April 24th. Double daily motor service was inaugurated between Los Angeles and Van Nuys and Lankershim. Leave Los Angeles 7:00 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. Returning arrive Los Angeles 10:20 a.m., 4:20 p.m. The fares from Los Angeles are as follows: Lankershim, Sunday, round trip, 50c; ten-day round trip, 50c; individual monthly commutation, $4.50; 25-ride family commutation, $4.25. Van Nuys, Sunday, round trip, 65c; ten-day round trip, $1.05; individual commutation, $6.50; 25-ride family commutation, $5.85.

FINE FISHING AT CATALINA.

New Yorker Is Presented With the Badge of Distinction for Catching Yellowtail.

AVALON, April 24.—Capt. George S. Runk of the New York Yacht Club brought to gaff a yellowtail this morning weighing twenty-six pounds, for which he received a button from the light tackle class of the Tuna Club. Other successful anglers this week-end were Francis Draz of New York, Mrs. H. T. Westover of Montreal, Can., and Miss F. Linara of Boston, Mass.

A number of white sea bass were caught by a party of fishermen who used heavy tackle.

INDIAN RELICS.

Digging a pipeline near the Metropole, a number of Indian relics were unearthed by workmen today and a scramble followed amongst the visitors to secure possession of the bones and other things thrown out of the ditch. A skeleton of large size was kept out by one of the men. The bones are charred and blackened by climatic action. Wampum, flutes and pestles were unearthed. A cranium thought to be one of some ancient chief was kept by Dr. K. Woodruff of Boston, Mass. It is thought by archeologists that this part of the ancient burial ground has been undisturbed for over 300 years.

FINE HOME.

J. B. Banning, who has been superintending work upon his new home at the Isthmus, left for the mainland today. Recently Mr. Banning purchased a large quantity of valuable antique furniture from various southern States. The new building is magnificently furnished. It is situated to overlook both sides of the island. The approximate cost is $60,000.

Inglewood.

PROTEST FILED WITH THE BOARD.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS UP AGAINST BAND OF INSURGENTS.

Assert in Complaint Filed That the School Building Which Has Been Accepted Is Defective in Blackboards, Panels and the Window Glass Is Under Weight.

INGLEWOOD, April 24.—With the completion of the new $40,000 grammar school building, confidently expected to be the pride of the town in the building line, comes a protest from a self-appointed committee of citizens against the acceptance of the building and against further payments by the school board.

The committee, composed of H. L. Martin, John Aerick, Albert O. Wight and Andrew Bennett, served papers Saturday evening on each member of the school board demanding that no further payments be made on the building and that it be not accepted. The school board is composed of J. T. Leftwich, E. W. Spaulding and Percy Smith. Despite the papers school was opened in the new building this morning. As the old school building has been sold at auction to Charles Mohegan, who will at once wreck the old building, there seems to be no alternative.

The board claims that all of the defects specified by the protesting citizens will be righted and that in some instances, as in the case of defective cement floors and window glass that is not up to specifications, deductions were made by the contractor covering the necessary amounts, and that he is under $500 bond to make good the doors and panels. The citizens, headed by Mr. Martin, threaten to get out an injunction against the acceptance of the building, but in the meantime the school has been opened for use. Of the $40,000 of the contract price, all but about $8000 has been paid.

Among the defects mentioned by the disapproving citizens are defective cement floors, warped doors and panels, defective blackboard, and that window glass is sixteen ounces instead of twenty-one ounces.

TO OPEN CLUB.

A reception and banquet Wednesday evening will mark the formal opening of the handsome new clubrooms of the Inglewood Masonic Social Annex in the new Masonic building. The annex will at this time entertain the members of the Masonic lodge and their wives. W. G. Brown will be the host of the evening, and this will be the first of a series of monthly entertainments by the club for their wives and friends.

The clubrooms, which are handsomely furnished, include a large billiard and reading-room, cardroom and banquet hall. On the same floor is the lodgeroom of the Masonic order and an attractive ladies' parlor. This building, recently completed and purchased by the Masonic order, is valued at $12,000. On the first floor is the auditorium, or operahouse, with a seating capacity of 500 and three large office rooms. The upper floor is occupied wholly by the clubrooms and lodgerooms.

MUCH BUILDING.

Building activity is greater than ever before in this city. At present there are in course of construction buildings that total in cost about $75,000. These include the new block of Magee & Parent, valued at $10,000; the Spaulding block, valued at $20,000; the Glass building, valued at $4000; the First National Bank, valued at $22,000, and about thirty residences.

STERILE HILLS OF THE EAST.

Resident of the New Hampshire Hills Seeks Home for Himself and His Neighbors.

CALABASAS, April 24.—J. L. Douglas, a homeseeker from the East, furnishes some interesting information concerning the present farming conditions in the New England States. He reports that in the mountain districts taxes and living have become so high and the poor ground so exhausted that it is now almost impossible for the small farmer to pay his running expenses. Further, that the productive lands bordering on the Connecticut and other rivers are gradually being absorbed by the wealthy, who are converting them into vast estates.

Douglas is from the New Hampshire hills, not far from Bethel, Vt., so he is conversant with the agricultural prospects of both States. He has come to the Pacific Coast not only on his own behalf, but also as the representative of several neighboring families who are on the lookout for a warmer climate and a more congenial soil. Being a practical man, Douglas desires his knowledge first-handed, so he has secured himself a horse and is riding over the country investigating the opportunities and advantages of different localities. In passing through this valley he was especially pleased with conditions in general and, as he resides on a mountain farm, asked many questions regarding the hillside ranches.

Douglas said that, from all he could learn, the California farmers make ten times as much as those in the New England States, as they have the advantage of climate and soil, and so can raise a greater diversity of crops.

"There is a heavy tide of emigration from our part of the country," he added. "This is owing to the reasons I have mentioned and the severe cold weather. It seems to me that the winters are growing colder all the time. It now has become a serious problem of how to keep stock until the spring feed comes in. However, stock raising is not carried on to any great extent like it is in California. But everything here appears to be conducted on a big scale. There is, I am informed, a plan being started of cutting up the large California ranches into smaller farms. This brings a few acres of land within the reach of those of limited means, and the most of those leaving New England have but little capital. I am told that here on a few acres of ground a man can make a good living. This cannot be done where I came from, and those who tried it have failed."

Douglas is now traveling farther north. Before leaving, he stated that he had not yet decided on any particular locality, but that he would certainly come to Southern California to live.

PREPARING FOR THE VISITOR.

Pomona Is Getting Ready for Knights of the Quill and Will Show Them a Time.

POMONA, April 24.—Much interest is being manifested by the local bodies in the forthcoming opening for public inspection of the new City Hall and the visit of the members of the Southern California Editorial Association which will occur here jointly on Friday, April 28.

Numerous committees are working in conjunction with the City Trustees for the success of these affairs. The editors will be given automobile rides about the valley and will be entertained at luncheon at a big basket picnic at Ganesha Park.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Last evening Supt. Cullen and General Manager Wells of the Salt Lake Railroad passed through here on a special train to San Bernardino, where they met today President W. A. Clark and Vice-president J. Ross Clark of the road. The officials stopped here en route to Los Angeles and inspected the local station of the road.

The picking of navel oranges is continuing briskly here, all of the packing houses working to capacity, the largest amount of business being done at the big plant of the Pomona Fruit Growers' Association east of Reservoir street where twenty-four cars were packed last week. It is expected that all of the navels will be shipped by the middle of next month. There are more oranges of this variety in Pomona Valley at this time than elsewhere in Southern California.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Barr of Kansas City, Mo., who have not been here for twenty-five years, spent yesterday in Pomona and marveled at the changes. Mr. Barr was driven to the top of San Jose Hills in Ganesha Park and remembered having been shown the land comprising the present park, which is now valued at thousands of dollars, and is an invaluable asset to the city, on his visit here with three other investors, a quarter of a century ago.

The Pomona Woman's Club entertained representatives of the Ontario women's club and the local women's clubs at a reciprocity meeting at the Presbyterian Church today. A course luncheon was served this noon to the guests, by the young women of the Philathea Class of the church.

FOR SUMMER PATROL.

Government Is Clearing Trails and Firebreaks Having Found the Plan Most Effective Safeguard.

MONROVIA, April 24.—Ten men under Ranger W. J. Jakow, who has been appointed successor to Ivo Reed of the Forestry Service, are clearing trails and firebreaks preparatory to the summer patrol. At present the crew is working on the frontier firebreak from Monrovia to Fish Canyon. This trail because of its precarious tenure on the precipitous southern slopes of the range, is especially liable to landslides during the rainy season, and has been impassable for some months.

About $800 will be spent clearing trails in the Monrovia Arcadia Duarte district. Of this amount the Forestry Bureau will supply $400, Monrovia $100 and irrigation companies the balance.

The demonstration last summer of the value of a firebreak has not been forgotten and an appropriation guarding watersheds is considered an investment paying fabulous dividends. A fire starting near a prospector's camp in Clover Leaf Canyon swept up the tinder dry hill sides with inconceivable rapidity and, with the wind behind it, would have devasted Monrovia Canyon, if a recently constructed firebreak had not blocked the way. It afforded an impressive object lesson and Councilmen were heartily commended for foresight in appropriating liberally for construction of the barrier which literally saved the city thousands of dollars.

City Marshal J. F. Miller by instruction of the Council has served notice on the Pacific Electric Company that cars, and especially express cars, must be run more carefully within corporate limits. The express cars have been notorious offenders and the crews were sharply criticised for their reckless disregard of municipal speed ordinances. The running down of the four-horse team last week, aroused authorities to action. Dr. Hostetter said today that the two Greeks who were injured in that accident have a fair chance of recovery. Stive Papsonick, who proved to have suffered an occipital fracture, is still unconscious, and no positive statement as to the ultimate result of his injury can be made.

REDONDO BEACH.

REDONDO BEACH, April 24.—The annual banquet of Court Redondo No. 565, Independent Order of Foresters, was held last evening in Whichelo hall. About fifty members and visiting members of the order were present. Walter H. Coleman acted as toastmaster and among those who responded were O. T. Clutter, A. M. Harter, W. P. Heller, H. G. Raby of this city, and Edward Maxey of Ocean Park, one of the charter members of Court Redondo.

Great interest is taken by swimmers and athletes in the announcement of Frank Holborrow that he will attempt to lower his own records tomorrow afternoon in the plunge here. Holborrow holds the world's professional championship for the 25, 50 and 100 yard dash.

Sir Almroth Wright, the English scientist, scoffs at the modern craze for cleanliness. Too much washing destroys the protective nature of the skin and gives microbes an increased opportunity to get in their work. The doctrine of fresh air, he says, also requires revision. At the London Hospital not long ago certain men were put in a glass cage. Finally the air became very hot, and the men became very sleepy. Then the doctor, by turbine arrangement, without letting in a drop of fresh air, stirred the vitiated air up, and the men became lively again.

S.S.S. REMOVES THE CAUSE AND CURES CATARRH

Catarrh usually begins with irritated, inflamed membranes of the head, nose and throat, from which there is a constant and copious discharge of watery matter. This comes from inflammation of these mucous surfaces and is caused by catarrhal matters and impurities in the circulation. Nature intends that these membranes shall be nourished by the blood, but waste matters and impurities deposited into these delicate parts, sets up inflammation and the discharge is a natural result. When this secretion begins to dry it becomes thick and sticky, adhering to the back portion of the mouth and throat, causing the "hawking" and straining so troublesome to Catarrh sufferers.

I suffered for a long time with a bad case of Catarrh. I had a continual headache, my cheeks grew purple, my nose was always stopped up, my breath had a sickening and disgusting odor and I coughed incessantly. I heard of your S. S. S. and commenced to use it, and after taking several bottles I was cured and have never since had the slightest symptom of the disease.

MRS. MARY L. WEBSERMAN.
4449 Vista Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

I had all the symptoms that accompany Catarrh, such as mucus dropping in the throat, a constant desire to hawk and spit, feeling of dryness in the throat, cough and spitting upon arising in the morning, etc. I had thus suffered for five years. I commenced to take S. S. S., and after I had taken three large bottles, I noticed a change for the better, thus encouraged, I continued to take it, and in a short while was entirely cured. JUDSON A. BELLAM.
311 Randolph St., Richmond, Va.

Other ordinary symptoms are caused from congestion of the circulation by the catarrhal impurities.

There is only one way to cure Catarrh, and that is to remove the cause by purifying the blood. Washes, sprays, inhalations, etc., do not reach the circulation, and therefore can only afford temporary relief. S. S. S. cures Catarrh by cleansing the blood of all impurities, catarrhal matter, and at the same time building up the system with its unequalled tonic effects. In other words S. S. S. cures Catarrh by purifying the blood so that the mucous surfaces and lining of the body are supplied with pure, rich nourishment instead of being continually irritated from the catarrhal impurities. Then the inflamed membranes heal, the discharge is checked, head noises cease, the stomach is toned up, and the throat is no longer clogged with mucus. Book on Catarrh and any medical advice free. S. S. S. is for sale at drug stores. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

GRANDMOTHERS PRESERVED COLOR OF THEIR HAIR WITH GARDEN SAGE

A Harmless Remedy; Restores Color to Gray Hair and Makes It Grow.

Druggists everywhere comment on the fact that they are selling large quantities of sage for making old-fashioned "sage tea," such as was used by our grandmothers for promoting the growth of their hair, making it fluffy and beautiful and restoring its natural color.

The demand for this well-known herb for this purpose has been so great that one manufacturer has taken advantage of the fact and has placed on the market an ideal "sage tea," containing sulphur, a valuable remedy for dandruff, itching scalp rashes and irritations, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy.

The manufacturers of this remedy authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

CARPENTERS VS. CONTRACTORS.

DEMAND FOR WAGE ADVANCE STOPS BUILDING.

Board of Education Opens Bids for the Construction of the New Polytechnic Group But Defers for Financial Reasons Final Action on the Matter—Woodmen Memorial.

RIVERSIDE, April 24.—The small sum of $1800 placed upon the building inspector's books as the record of permits issued last week, is explained by the trouble that has been going on, in this city, among the carpenters of the city, and the contractors, the result of the question as to an increase of wages, asked by the former being still in doubt.

The carpenters are asking for an advance from $3.50 a day of eight hours to $4, and the contractors refuse to grant their demands, the result being that the contractors are not taking out permits for buildings which they cannot see their way clear to erect within the given time.

The Board of Education opened the bids for the erection of the polytechnic group of three buildings, Saturday afternoon, and after a considerable of the matter, again adjourned until this evening. There were six bids filed on the general contract for the three buildings, the bidders being F. O. Engstrum, Alta Planing Mill and Southwest Construction Company of Los Angeles, C. P. Hancock of Riverside, James Stewart of Denver, Col., and J. C. Crowell of Pasadena. There was a range in price of the bids of $$$,$$$, the figures given by the contractors extending from $130,000 to $$$,$$$.

The board took no final action at the Saturday evening meeting because there were several matters concerning the finances with which they will have to build to consider before letting the big contract.

The polytechnic group is only a part of the new school buildings and additions contemplated this summer by the board and for the purpose of new school buildings additions and general improvements, the sum of $250,000 was voted at a special election last summer.

WOODMEN MEMORIAL.

Magnolia Camp, No. 93 Woodmen of the World, and Orange Circle No. 15, Royal Neighbors, held their joint memorial exercises yesterday afternoon. There was a good programme given in Odd Fellows Hall, and at its conclusion, the members of the two orders and members of their families marched to Evergreen Cemetery where in connection with an appropriate programme the graves of the deceased members of the orders were decorated. The Riverside Military Band furnished music, and the principal address was given by Peter F. Gilmer of San Francisco, Deputy Head Consul.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Judge George H. Hutton of Los Angeles, sat in the Superior Court here today for Judge F. E. Densmore, who was disqualified, and granted three final decrees of divorce as follows: Theodore Saunders from Joseph F. Saunders; Daisy Woodhouse from Grant Woodhouse; Josephine Donnell from Frank L. Donnell. In all of these cases Lafayette Gill was attorney for the plaintiffs.

The Riverside Driving Club, which will give a racing matinee on the afternoon of Monday, May 1, have already twenty-six entries for the events, and Peerls and Hemet, who always furnish some horses for these events, are still to be heard from as to entries. There are eight fast steppers from San Bernardino, seventeen from Riverside, and one from Winchester, entered for the events, which promise to draw a large crowd. The Driving Club is making an effort with the Business Mens' Association to have the stores closed on Monday afternoon in order to allow the proprietors and employees to attend the afternoon sport.

ARTESIAN WELL A FINE GUSHER.

IMPERIAL VALLEY PEOPLE DELIGHTED WITH RESULT.

Well Has Engaged the Attention of Drillers for the Past Year—Is the First Sunk and Its Rich Flow Greatly Pleases Valley Residents. Salt Is Won.

BRAWLEY, April 24.—Miners, prospectors and business men going out to the Brawley gold fields this afternoon paused in their rush to this El Dorado to learn the news that was repeated from lip to lip over telephones, from business house to dwelling, from street to street, that at last water had been reached in the Brawley artesian well. The force of workmen began to remove the drill rods and prepare to clean the well and test the water. The pressure, whether fresh or salt water, gas or oil, was so great that water began spurting suddenly over the casing this afternoon.

This well has been in the course of drilling for more than a year, intermittently, and is the first artesian well to be drilled in this section of the valley. Eight-inch casing extends to a depth of 1060 feet. Recently the drillers resumed their labors and sunk a six-inch casing to a depth of 1060 feet below the first casing.

This great pressure that forced the water over the casing this afternoon was reached at a depth of ten feet below the extension of the six-inch casing. This is the first well of its kind in the valley to strike water and the men were working and naturally caused great excitement. The people of Brawley have awaited with great interest and anxiety the development of this well, realizing the importance an artesian well would be for the prosperous city of Brawley.

After being in court for two years and a final hearing in the case of Imperial Water Company No. 8 against the California Development Company for money due as assessments on stock was decided by Judge Wilbur in favor of No. 8 water company. The injunction obtained by the development company was dissolved and the complaint and amendments denied.

During the time that the No. 8 water company was under the domination of the California Development Company the assessment on this stock was refunded, although this same stock was used to elect the officers.

When J. M. Eshelman became the attorney for the No. 8 water company he showed characteristic disregard for the established order of things and informed the No. 8 officers that in his opinion this assessment must be collected. One assessment was paid, but the next was protested and an injunction procured from Judge Cole, withholding payment until a trial was held. It is not yet known what disposition will be made by Receiver Holabird of this stock, although it is believed that he will allow it to be sold at delinquent sale rather than pay the assessment especially in view of the fact that his ownership is of doubtful tenure.

EXPERIMENTAL CROPS.

C. N. Carroll of the North End Water Company has experimented this season with growing grain, and the results of his test are proving very instructive. Two fields of barley were chosen, one plowed and the other disked. The first shows a full even stand with an extraordinary yield, while the second is considerably spotted and decidedly inferior. Another field was sown to oats, and samples of heads from the grain are being shown by Charles W. Kays that exceed eighteen inches in length. Fine samples of headless barley are also shown. It is Kays's intention to prepare several exhibits of valley products for various coast points, Los Angeles, San Diego and Long Beach. Specimens of the crops from Carrol's ranch will occupy a prominent place among the displays.

SHREWD RASCAL IN THE TOILS.

HE VICTIMIZED RANCHERS BY FICTITIOUS RECORDS.

Plaintiff Asserts That Middleton Men Were Also Cognizant of Defendant's Duplicity in His False Statements—An Employe of Lighting Company Sustains Burns.

SANTA ANA, April 24.—One of the suits that grew out of the dealings of Henry J. Martens, wanted in Bakersfield for swindling, is on trial in the Superior Court today. The plaintiff is J. L. Updike of Anaheim and the defendants are Martens, L. A. Evans and Henry Holdel.

Martens proceeded in divers ways. He victimized a number of Anaheim ranchers by securing deeds to their property in return for Kern county property, to which it developed he had no title. Martens' operations were interfered with before he had turned all his land into cash, and he fled from the State. Several of the ranchers sued to recover title, and won, Martens defaulting.

Updike's case was different from the others. Martens had sold to third parties, who assert that they purchased innocently and are protected by law. Updike asserts that these third parties, Evans and Holden, knew that something was wrong, and that their knowledge was sufficient to constitute legal notice of Updike's interest.

REDLANDS MAN RACES DEATH.

Makes Fast Time in Reaching St. Louis to Visit Father Who Is Critically Ill.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Robert Herold of Redlands, Cal., arrived in St. Louis today at 7 a. m., after a hurried trip half way across the country to reach the bedside of his father, Ferd Herold, 83 years old, who is critically ill. The elder Herold was sleeping when his son arrived at the Herold home, 3155 South Jefferson avenue, and was not disturbed. He awoke at 9 a. m., and his son went into the sick room and was greeted with a feeble smile.

Robert Herold was accompanied on his trip by his daughter, Roberta Herold, 17 years old, who is one of Ferd Herold's favorite grandchildren. They left Redlands Friday at 11 p. m., completing the trip to St. Louis in sixty-eight hours.

Herold is suffering from a complication of diseases superinduced by old age. Herold is a capitalist and former boat owner and brewer. He built the first two steel-hull steamboats on the Mississippi River. He retired from the boat business five years ago, selling his interests to the Eagle Packet Company.

BRITISH OFFICER SCOFFS IDEA.

Says by no Feat of Fancy Could His Landing on Mexican Soil Be Construed As Offensive.

SANTA BARBARA, April 24.—Capt. G. W. Vivian of the British sloop of war Shearwater dimisses as impossible the suggestion that international complications may arise between Great Britain and Mexico, as the result of his landing a detachment of marines at San Quentin, Baja California.

Capt. Vivian says the dispatches from Mexico City give an incorrect version of the affair. He said his action was taken upon the written request of two Mexican government officials, who asked the protection of the British flag, asserting that their lives were in grave danger, supported by a request for the protection to their property preferred by two British and one American.

Capt. Vivian said that the landing party remained ashore for one night and saw nothing of the insurrectos, and that after a careful examination of the claims of the two Mexican officials he gave them transportation on the Shearwater to Ensenada.

The Shearwater sailed this afternoon for Esquimault.

ANAHEIM.

ANAHEIM, April 24.—The funeral of Edward Tenelck was held at 2 o'clock today from Backs & Terry undertaking parlors. Interment was made in Alamitos. The terrible and untimely death occurred early yesterday morning whe young Tenelck was caught in a burning building, which was situated on a small ranch south of Anaheim. The origin of the fire is unknown.

CARNIVAL PLAN GROWS BROADER.

TAKES ON THE FEATURE OF INDUSTRIAL DISPLAY.

Great Midway With a Large Assortment of Shows Will Be a Feature of the Three Days of Hilarity. Greatest Balloon "in the World" Will Perform.

COLTON, April 24.—Elaborate plans are going ahead for the Colton Carnival to be held May 24-27. With about 150 men working on the various committees, all representative merchants and boosters, and with the plans they have in hand, the Colton Carnival is sure of success.

From the original plans of having just merely a street carnival, the proposition has grown to the proportions of an Industrial Exposition, street carnival with a gigantic Midway. The Industrial Exposition will be lodged in an immense circus tent with over 18,000 square feet of floor space, which is more than the largest building on the Pacific Coast contains.

The streets will be given over to the merchants, who will build artistic booths in front of their places of business and make a display of their wares. These exhibits will be made up of eastern manufacturers' goods, which are handled by Colton merchants.

The Midway will be a traveling organization consisting of fourteen up-to-date shows, three bands of music, a merry-go-round and the largest captive balloon in the world. The balloon holds 164,000 square feet of gas and when inflated is as high as the ordinary six-story building. It has never been in the air before, so Colton will have the honor of its initial flight. However, in the hands of the Phillips Bros., who have made a lifetime study of balloons and air machines, the people can feel perfectly secure. It will carry sixteen passengers at one time with no climbing over the basket, as in the case of the old-fashioned captive balloon. The persons wishing to go up, which will enable them to get a very fine view of the Valley, merely step into a car, like a street car, and take their seats and have all the comforts of a home.

GASOLINE CAR KILLS A WOMAN.

VICTIM WAS WIFE OF MATE ON SUBMARINE.

Mrs. William Money, a Colorado Tourist, Was Dangerously Hurt and the Motor Train Totally Wrecked. Pathetic Words of the Dying Woman Addressed to Hotel Man.

SAN DIEGO, April 24.—While going at a fairly good speed at 8 o'clock this morning, the gasoline motor car operating between Imperial Beach and National City, left the track and overturned about fifty feet from the Del Monte Hotel, South San Diego, killing Mrs. Fred Elliott, wife of the first machinist's mate of the submarine Pike, and seriously injuring Mrs. William Money, a Colorado tourist.

William Money and William Cox, the latter, engineer of the motor car, each received slight bruises.

The dead and injured were removed to Hotel del Monte, where Doctors E. M. Fly and M. H. Keith were called to attend the injured woman.

Fred Carberry, manager of the hotel, witnessed the accident. He was milking a cow when his attention was attracted by a crash. Looking up he saw the heavy gasoline car falling on its side. He ran to the car and was there almost as soon as it had settled on its side.

"The first thing that attracted my attention was the two women who were lying beneath the car," said Carberry. "Both had fallen through the windows and the car had fallen on top of them. I don't know how I did it, but I lifted one end of that car, which weighs two tons, off of Mrs. Elliott and pulled her out. She thought I was her husband. The only words she said were: 'Hubby, I'm glad you are here.' She died in my arms.

"The other men as soon as they got out rescued Mrs. Money from beneath the car. She was carried to the hotel, suffering intense agony. Both women were badly cut up on the face and body. As soon as Mrs. Money was taken to the hotel, I telephoned for doctors and two soon came from National City. The accident was one of the worst I ever witnessed. The car is a complete wreck."

Machinist's Mate Fred Elliott was aboard the Pike when he received a telephone message that his wife was injured. The message intercepted him just as the Pike was ready to descend beneath the surface of the bay. While he changed clothing a second message, stating that his wife was dead, reached Elliott. He started for the scene of the accident on a motorcycle. Mrs. Elliott's body was brought to San Diego.

Money's Denver (Colo.) address is 723 Twenty-sixth street. Reports from South San Diego tonight are that Mrs. Money may recover. They are stopping at the Tourist apartment-house, Imperial Beach, where they have been for the last week.

SARAH GIVES BANQUET.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt featured her stay here by giving a banquet at Hotel del Coronado, to her manager, E. J. Sullivan, and to the director of her tour, William F. Conner. Thirty members of her company assembled at the banquet table. As a souvenir of the occasion Mme. Bernhardt had presented each of her guests with a five dollar gold piece of the coinage of 1911, with the Indian's head set with a ruby. In order to evade the United States law which prohibits the mutilation of coins, Mme. Bernhardt had the coins set with rubies during her visit in Canada, seventeen weeks ago. She kept the fact a secret until she arrived at Coronado. Mme. Bernhardt presented "Camille" at a local theater tonight. She was greeted by a capacity house.

DEATH IN MARINE CAMP.

The first death to occur in the camp of the marines on North Island was that of Private Hugh Gilmartin, 47, who died of chronic kidney trouble. The remains were brought from camp to an undertaking establishment to await word from relatives in the East. If they decide on burial here there will be a military funeral.

ARRIVES IN YACHT.

John D. Spreckels arrived from San Francisco last night in his steam yacht Venetia. The yacht covered the distance in thirty-seven hours. Coming with Mr. Spreckels were Judge William Van Fleet, of the United States District Court, and James Reed, a prominent architect of San Francisco.

THROUGH WINDOW WOMAN WENT.

ASKED FOR TIME TO CHANGE HER DRESS.

Man and Woman Alleged to Have Been Conducting a "Blind Pig" Are Found in Possession of Considerable Firewater and Arrests Follow.

VENTURA, April 24.—The Sheriff has rounded up another batch of blind pigs in the county, one of them being conducted by a woman named Williams. The field of operations this time is located in Nordhoff, where Williams and Mrs. Williams have resided for some time and where it is suspected they have operated a liquor joint for months.

They formerly occupied a place near the depot, and while there is strong suspicion that they sold liquor there they were not apprehended. Later they moved near the Gally cottages and their work became so open that the officers got action. They were getting the booze in from Oxnard by express and the officers watched this route with the result that on Saturday evening they followed a shipment of liquor from Oxnard direct to the Williams house.

Then they made the raid and placed them under arrest. The woman did not intend to be taken so easily and was granted permission to go to another room and change her raiment.

When she did not return in season Under Sheriff Hardon started out to investigate and found her gone through an open window. As it was dark the officers concluded to make no search that night, letting the woman go and bringing the man to jail. The next day Constable Van Curen found the woman at the home of a neighbor. She had tried to get them to drive her to Santa Paula, where she could take a train, but they refused.

The entire Ojai Valley is aroused over the raid and arrest for the reason that the Sheriff also got hold of the books of the Williamses in which entries of sales are made of beer, whisky and wine to a number of prominent people, giving names and dates and the kind of liquid refreshments sold. The books will be introduced in evidence and the names became public property unless the "prominent" ones hush matters up by paying the fines. Two barrels of beer were found and bottles of whisky and wine without number stowed away in stove and cupboards and various hiding places.

PARLIAMENT OF WOMEN OPENS.

MAYOR EVANS OF RIVERSIDE EXTENDS WELCOME.

President Eliza Tupper Wilkes Makes Address in Response and Pointed Out That Unrest Among Women Is World-Wide and Augurs Well for Future of Race.

RIVERSIDE (Cal.) April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After the formalities of opening the Woman's Parliament of Southern California, an address of welcome was made by Mayor S. C. Evans and Eliza Tupper Wilkes of Los Angeles, president, responded. In her address she gave an outline of the wonderful growth of the woman's movement saying:

"It is a world movement, wherever we go we find the same restlessness among women. No longer does home supply all needs for child. We are trying to supply these needs. The greatest motive in the world is the mother motive. The new women sometimes swaggers, but I like a swaggering woman as much as I do a simpering woman. This is not to be a muck-raking meeting. We shall discuss every question fairly and freely, hence we want you to bring every doubt that besets you, also bring your visions that we may dream with you."

Prof. J. H. Francis spoke on the public schools as social centers. He outlined school work he has done in poorer districts of Los Angeles, and declared moving pictures are one of the best educational features to interest pupils. The session closed with a play by the Cumnock Dramatic Club. There was a large attendance and deep interest.

Tomorrow's session will open with an address on "Walt Whitman," by Mrs. Mina Pepper Maynard and Mrs. O. Shepherd Barnum will speak in the afternoon on "Co-operation." F. W. Conrad of San Bernardino will make an argument for "Open-Air Schools," and Francis M. Moody will talk on "Marriage and Divorce."

In the evening a reception will be held at the Glenwood Inn in honor of the visitors. The sessions will continue until Wednesday night.

DELAY TACTICS ARE ADOPTED.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE RAISES A POINT OF LAW.

Motion Is Not Regarded With Alarm by the Contestants Who Merely Consider It Legal Fencing to Stave Off a Recount of the Ballots—Aged Woman Dies.

SAN BERNARDINO, April 24.—This morning the attorneys for J. S. Bright, Democratic candidate for Mayor, who's right to a certificate of election is being contested by N. A. Richardson, Socialist, and R. E. Swing, Republican, candidates, filed a motion for the dismissal of the petitions for a recount, on the grounds that thirty days must elapse after an election before a recount can be demanded.

The motion is regarded with no alarm by the attorneys for the contestants. Saturday Brights lawyers announced that they would make no effort to delay the recount. It is believed that the motion is the first of a series of delay tactics which the defendant's counsel have decided upon.

Mrs. Mary P. Seeley, who has resided here for fifty-seven years, being one of the really original settlers of the valley, died at her home at the northwest corner of Arrowhead avenue and Sixth street this morning at the advance age of 89 years. She is survived by four children, Mrs. Mary A. McDonald of Los Angeles, D. R. Seeley of Highland, Mrs. J. H. Barton of San Bernardino and Mrs. Isabelle Corbett of Butte, Mont. Old age was the cause of death. Up to the end, almost, Mrs. Seeley had lived a life of activity and usefulness.

The Rev. C. H. Chard, rector of Spitalfields, has converted the crypt of his church into a store where poor people whose homes are broken up may deposit their furniture free of charge until they are in a position to set up house again. At present the crypt is full of furniture.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

The official Government tests show Royal Baking Powder to be an absolutely pure and healthful grape cream of tartar baking powder, and care should be taken to prevent the substitution of any other brand in its place.

With no other agent can biscuit, cake and hot-breads be made so pure, healthful and delicious.

Royal Baking Powder costs only a fair price per pound, and is cheaper and better at its price than any other baking powder in the world. It makes pure, clean, healthful food.

BUREAU OF INFORMATION.

Times Office, No. 621 South Spring street.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

To Elect Officers.

The annual meeting of the Stimson-Lafayette Industrial Association for the election of officers will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at No. 721 West Twenty-third street.

In Bureau of Mines.

Oscar H. Reinholt was appointed a mining engineer in the Bureau of Mines service yesterday at a salary of $1800 a year, according to a special dispatch from Washington.

Songs of Nations.

A recital of the Songs of Nations will be given at the Young Women's Christian Association this evening by J. P. Dupuy, assisted by Will Garroway, pianist. The programme includes songs of ten nations, and is free to members.

Largest Oranges.

Six of the largest oranges ever displayed in the Chamber of Commerce have been received from Julius Wright, Moreno Valley, Riverside county. The combined weight is eleven and one-half pounds, the largest weighing two and one-half pounds. They were grown on 4-year-old trees and are perfect in form, color and firmness.

Edelweis in Los Angeles.

It will doubtless surprise many persons to learn that Onaphalium Alpinum, or Eidelweis, a rare plant supposed to grow only on the higher mountains of Switzerland, between snow and ice, can also be grown on Southern California peaks, such as Mount Wilson and Mount Lowe. Albert Knappen, No. 625 West Fifty-sixth street, believes he has demonstrated this. He has even developed a plant at the above address which now bears twelve blossoms, and which he takes pride in showing. Edelweis when once started is everlasting.

Burned to Death at Newhall.

A horror befell the family of A. T. Devendorf, who has for many years resided at No. 824 South Flower street, this city. Mr. Devendorf owns a ranch at Newhall, and had taken his family there for a short outing. At 3 o'clock Sunday morning they were awakened to find the flimsy house in a blaze, and Mrs. Devendorf, aged 68 years, was burned to death in the flames. Her husband, a grandson and a niece barely escaped with their lives. The fire is supposed to have been caused by an oil stove, which had been left burning when they retired for the night. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, at Newhall.

Miss Wilson's Concert.

Miss Flora Wilson, daughter of the Secretary of Agriculture, was greeted by a fine audience last night in Simpson Auditorium and sang many numbers, to the delight of her hearers. One of her most pleasing numbers was "A Lullaby," by Miss Gertrude Ross of this city, who accompanied Miss Wilson on the piano, and the composer shared fully in the applause that followed the song. Other numbers of Miss Wilson, whose almost perfect figure was beautifully gowned, consisted of "Obstination," by Fontenailles; "Winds in the Trees," "The Lass with the Delicate Air," Meyerbeer's "Le Pardon de Ploermel," "Still die Nacht," "Annie Laurie," "Robin Adair" and "Ye Banks and Braes."

BOND ELECTION CALLED.

Board of Education Decides Upon June Sixth As Date for Voting on Bond Issue for School Purposes.

The Board of Education last night decided upon Tuesday, June 6, as the date of the bond election, in which they will ask for $1,150,000 for the purchase of grounds, erection of buildings, repairs and additions to present buildings, and for equipment. The eighty-nine precincts used in the late harbor election were adopted for the bond election, and in addition to these there will be nine precincts in school districts outside the city limits. The bonds are specified to run from one to forty years, and bear interest at the rate of 4½ per cent.

A hitch has occurred in the contract for the erection of the mechanics' art building to the Hollywood High School. The contract was let for $17,000, but the Fire Commission refused to permit the erection of the building, as it does not comply with the fire ordinances of the city. The contract was ordered canceled and new specifications prepared calling for brick outer walls and brick partitions. This will add about $5500 to the cost of the building.

C. A. Charlton, who has been filling the place of foreman since the death of William Downie, was last night chosen to permanently fill the position.

City Superintendent Francis was authorized to open intermediate schools in September at the Fourteenth-street, Twentieth-street and Berendo-street schools; also intermediate and high vacation schools in the Polytechnic High School building on July 5, to continue six weeks, during the forenoon only; also elementary vacation schools at Castelar-street and Macy-street schools on July 5, to continue six weeks, in the forenoon.

PASTORS AND PULPITS BEAR BATTLE'S BRUNT.

Suffragists and Antis Put Franchise Issue Squarely Up to Two Hundred and Fifty Members of Ministerial Union and Southland Churches May Hear Votes-for-Women Sermons Soon.

THE Southern California Association Opposed to Women's Suffrage threw the gauntlet with an unequivocal smack down before the votes-for-women party yesterday morning with a request to the members of the Los Angeles Ministerial Union not to use the pulpit as a platform for the discussion of political equality.

The union, representing 250 ministers of all Protestant denominations, met in conclave at the Y.M.C.A. building for the first public consideration which, en masse, they have accorded to the suffragist issue. That its outcome is looked upon as of vital significance to the future of the feminine franchise was evinced by the attendance, one to pack the hall to its capacity, some over.

The meeting had been all for suffrage and the periods of the speakers had been greeted with applause. At the conclusion of the programme Mrs. George A. Caswell, leader of the anti-suffragists, was granted five minutes in which to express her sentiments. Mrs. Caswell remarked that she required only two. After reading a resolution to be offered to another body, opposing the indorsement of woman suffrage, she took up the remaining sixty seconds with a request to the ministers not to preach on the question.

Dr. James Whitcomb Brougher immediately took the floor to say that he had intended to offer a resolution which would set aside one Sunday when all the ministers of Los Angeles should speak on woman suffrage. He regretted to take a stand against a woman, but he felt compelled to discuss this question from his pulpit very soon. Dr. Brougher's statement was greeted with enthusiastic applause and there were cries from the audience for the resolution be suggested.

This meeting has been one-sided!"

All eyes turned from the platform to rest upon Rev. G. W. Wilson, a Methodist chaplain from the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers and Sailors, who had arisen from a seat in the audience. "The speakers," continued Rev. Mr. Wilson, "have all been in favor of suffrage. I move that a committee be appointed to select speakers who will address this union at its next meeting in opposition to political equality."

No applause greeted the motion and Dr. Brougher again turned loose the flood of feminine enthusiasm by dryly remarking that he would state for Rev. Mr. Wilson's benefit that there had been only one side to the discussion because there is only one side to the question.

Nevertheless the motion carried by what seemed to be a considerable majority, although there were some cries for division against the ruling of the chair. After the meeting, when it was suggested that no two members of the union might be willing to speak against suffrage, Rev. Mr. Wilson said that, in that event, they should send out for anti-suffrage speakers in order that the ministers might hear the arguments that can be made against it.

Rev. Matthew S. Hughes and Dr. Brougher made the principal speeches of the morning. Both were original in their arguments, keeping as far from the beaten paths of the subject as possible. Dr. Hughes took the most commonly-accepted argument against suffrage and converted it to his own uses. He insisted that woman should have the ballot because she is the maker of the home.

It was unfair, he said, that a woman should go down to the gate of death and come back bearing a little child in her arms when she could be responsible for its environment only for the first six years of its life. If, after that age, the State divided the attention of her child she had a right to a voice in the affairs of State.

Dr. Hughes was dramatic in describing a stately mother kneeling between the graves of her husband and son, slain in her country's battles. With the lives of her dearest sacrificed at the nation's altars, Dr. Hughes defied the world to exclude this woman from her nation's councils. He had heard men ask if they would have their women in politics. No, he replied, he would not, nor nor would he have the lawyers, the preachers or the farmers in politics, but he thought no farmer fit for the plow, no lawyer fit for the bar, no minister worthy the pulpit who was not first of all a good citizen, and he thought no woman fit for motherhood and the home who was not intelligently interested in the welfare of her country.

In the course of his address, Dr. Brougher said that he believed in requiring both an educational and a moral qualification from the voter and that he believed this would one day be the law of the country. Women, he said, can meet these qualifications more largely than men, and especially did he think that women were better qualified from a moral standpoint.

HALF A NATION?

He said that so long as women composed one-half the population of the world, her influence would extend to all parts of the world, and that as the government of a nation is merely the extension of the government of the home, a nation was only half way democratic where the women are not allowed to participate in the making and enforcing of its laws. In many ways, Dr. Brougher contended, women were far better prepared to vote than men. He said that their love for humanity is greater and that, if given an opportunity, they would doubtless make many needed reformations in government.

"I would not force any one to vote," said Dr. Brougher, "but I would like to see a law passed that would permit all women to vote who desire to do so. If all good men would make an intelligent use of the ballot it would not be necessary for women to vote. Many of the men are like the negro who said he would leave his case to the ignorance of the court. We leave the ballot to the ignorance of the average voter and take no interest in these questions ourselves. There are some who say that women have not the physical power to enforce the laws which they might assist in making.

"Are we striving for a government that is to be ruled by physical force? No, we are working and praying and hoping for a government that will be ruled by wisdom and justice and love, enthroned in the hearts of citizens. In my church the women all vote. They appoint men to offices, but they appoint good men and I want to tell you that the fact that our women vote in the church is not tearing up any homes."

ONE LETTER SAVES HIM.

Similarity in Name Causes Complication in Justice's Court and Narrow Escape From Bigamy Charge.

Similarity in names almost caused a charge of bigamy to be lodged yesterday in Justice Young's court. It all happened because Carrie Kaywood swore to a complaint, charging her husband with desertion. His name is Robert, an express driver, and in the past, he is said to have gone under the nickname of "Butler."

Caywood, a waiter, whose given name is Butler, was wanted in court on the same charge of wife desertion. Mrs. Kaywood married her husband in August, and says he left her October 8. Mrs. Caywood was married October 19, eleven days later. Deputy Constable Green began to imagine that Kaywood might be Caywood. With this in mind he arranged that both women should be in court yesterday. Kaywood was ushered in.

"Have you ever seen this man?" asked the deputy.

Mrs. Kaywood looked daggers. Mrs. Caywood denied having laid eyes on the man. The evidence showed that Kaywood has been working for the Chicago Transfer Company under the name of Dick Grace. In default of $500 bond, he was locked up, after vainly trying to mollify his wife. His examination was set for May 2. Caywood has not been heard from.

A Future Factor in Feminine Franchise Fight,

Rev. Matt S. Hughes, who took a leading part yesterday in the most remarkabl meeting that the Votes-for-Women campaign has so far produced. The Los Angeles Ministerial Union, representing two hundred and fifty pastors of every Protestant denomination, met and seriously and soberly took up the question of preaching political equality from their pulpits. The consensus of opinion appeared to favor the suffragists.

Beautiful Girl Victim of Burglar-Fiend.

DAYLIGHT ROBBER BINDS AND GAGS YOUNG WOMAN.

Breaks Into House When She Is Alone, Beats Her, and Making Her Helpless, After a Desperate Defense, He Ransacks the Rooms—She Gives Accurate Description—Her Condition Serious.

MISS JULIA KOEBIG, daughter of Dr. Julius Koebig, was viciously assaulted at her home, No. 1720 Toberman street, at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, by a fiend, who broke into the house in the guise of a robber.

She was alone in her house at the time, her mother having gone downtown shortly before, to shop.

Miss Koebig was dressing, preparatory to herself going out, when the doorbell sounded. Not being sufficiently attired to answer the bell, she threw on a kimono and descended the stairs.

She went to the door and opened it, but found nobody waiting, and was about to ascend the stairs to complete her dressing, when she heard a voice in the rear of the house.

Passing through the dining-room the young woman opened the door leading to the kitchen, and was confronted by a man who demanded money of her.

ASKS FOR MONEY.

Miss Koebig, who is 19 years old, is of the athletic type of womanhood and weighs possibly 140 pounds. She is accredited with the possession of much grit and at the gruff demand she asserted herself in a positive manner by ordering the man from the house.

Cursing, the stranger, drawing a revolver, rushed at her. He struck her over the head several times. But despite the blows, the girl batled bravely against her assailant. She was forced, however, into the dining-room and through it to the front hall, and still fighting desperately she was knocked down. He threatened that if she made an outcry he would kill her.

The fiend declared that he had committed about every other crime except murder, and saw no reason why he should not go the limit, if she did not submit.

Using the foulest words, the brute gagged and bound her hand and feet. For more than an hour she was in his power. Leaving his victim, he ransacked the house, securing jewelry and other articles of value.

With his pockets full of valuables, her assailant left the house by the front door.

Summoning every ounce of strength Miss Koebig succeeded in releasing herself from her bonds. She was in a terrible condition. The rug upon which she had fallen was soaked with blood.

Crawling painfully to the door the plucky girl cried for help. She then managed to reach the telephone and phoned her brother, Haris Koebig who is employed at the Thirty-third and Main street branch of the Pico Heights Lumber Company.

Meantime, neighbors heard and answered Miss Koebig's cries, and she was assisted upstairs to her bedroom.

Hans Koebig, before leaving the place of employment, telephoned Dr. Harvey Thorpe who has offices in the Exemption.

BANKS NEED NOT PAY ON CITY BONDED DEBT.

ACCORDING to an opinion of City Attorney Shenk, sent to City Assessor Mallard yesterday, the banks of Los Angeles will not be required, in the future, to bear any part of the payment of the municipal bonded debt or interest.

He holds that the provisions of Constitutional Amendment No. 1, which provides a new system of revenue and taxation, specifically eliminates all banks from such assessment.

The opinion was furnished in answer to the query of the Assessor, who found, from a close reading, that it seemed to make such exemption. It enumerates in lettered sections the transportation companies, the insurance companies, the banks and franchise corporations other than the three named by the letters of the alphabet, in the order named. Class C is banks, and providing that all such corporations shall bear assessment for the principal and interest of all outstanding bonded debt at the time the amendment takes effect, it mentions only classes A, B and D. The City Attorney holds that the elimination of the letter C operates to relieve the banks of any tax for indebtedness.

The Assessor has not figured just how much revenue will be thus lost that must be made up by other sources of valuation, but his deputy, A. B. Conrad, says it will make a large one. A report to the Finance Committee of the Council will probably be made by him today.

The decision affects only State and savings banks and does not effect national banks, as they have been exempt, except for personal property, before.

By another decision the City Attorney holds that such municipal bonds as were sold to the sinking fund before the amendment took affect are taxable against the corporations. But this is only a trivial matter.

Of immense importance, however, is the decision he gave the Assessor concerning the assessment of mortgages on realty outside the State. Amendment No. 2, a companion to the revenue and taxation scheme, provides that no mortgagee shall be taxed, but that land shall be. Heretofore the holder of title to land was taxed for his equity and the mortgagee paid the taxes on the loan. Under this method the mortgages first showed a rate of interest to cover both interest and taxes and the interest rebated whenever the mortgagor paid the taxes. After the courts held mortgages could legally include a clause to impose the payment of taxes by the mortgagor this policy was pursued and this accounted for the rates of 9 and 10 per cent. interest, the holder of the mortgage paying the taxes out of the excess. In other words the rebating of interest for taxes paid became a feature of the mortgage forms.

Under Amendment No. 2, the attorney holds, no mortgage on land in California is taxable, as the property is taxed without relief from mortgage debt in full. But he holds that the Constitution intended to mean land within the State only and hence mortgages owned in California but secured by realty outside of the State are taxable.

This will keep many millions of such mortgages on the tax rolls in Los Angeles. One large insurance company has over $1,000,000 alone loaned on realty outside of the State. It is estimated that this ruling of the City Attorney will save the city twenty millions valuation that would have been lost by a contrary construction of the Constitution. However, it is anticipated that the question will be taken to the courts.

Cause and Effect.

STRIKE SCHEME IS ABANDONED.

Repudiation of Leaders' First Fruit of Dynamite.

Local Bricklayers Refuse to Join Walkout.

Carpenters' Union Expected to Take Like Stand.

The first concrete result locally of the arrest and confession of high-labor union officials as nation-wide dynamiters was the announcement yesterday that the Bricklayers' Union, which had planned to go on a general strike here May 1, has abandoned the plan.

They had expected to join with the Carpenters Union and other building trades and cause a general strike in Los Angeles, the aim having been to tie up all construction work. The news of the arrest of the dynamiter-leaders brought consternation to those who have all along maintained their trust in the integrity and good faith of their self-styled heads.

It was stated at the Bricklayers' Union headquarters yesterday that scores of workmen either came in person or called up and stated that they will have nothign further to do with the union if a strike was called at this time. Flat assurance was made to J. F. Hall, president of the Master Builders that the bricklayers will not strike.

A meeting of the Master Builders Association will be held tonight in its rooms in the Stimson building, Third and Spring streets. Plans to oppose the expected strike will be formulated and it is expected that by the time the meeting is called the Carpenters Union will also determine to abandon their projected walkout. The realization of unionist discredit is keen and they are well aware that the expected sympathy from the public will not be forthcoming. It is expected that the international unions will advise the branches in Los Angeles to lie low for a time and not to strike, where there is everything to lose and nothing to gain.

"While we do not expect a strike to come off as scheduled," said Hall yesterday, "we have determined to continue our preparations to meet a strike as we had intended. We hear on all sides that the rank and file of the unions have become disgusted and disheartened after learning convincingly of the foul dynamite plots that have been traced to the very fountainhead of the international unions. The foremen of building jobs throughout the city have reported today that the workingmen have openly expressed abhorrence at the awful crimes of their so-called leaders. Within the next twenty-four hours it is not unlikely that all attempt to call a strike in all branches of the building trades will be abandoned."

The Master Builders' Association, which was organized five years ago, was practically disbanded a year ago, but developments of the last few months aroused the contractors again to the need for protection. It was learned that the unions had planned a general strike, and to be in readiness to combat them, the association was revived.

TO DEFEND DYNAMITERS.

In line with the avowed purpose of the labor unions to fly to the support of their arrested trio of leaders, "whether they are guilty or not," the word was passed out from unionite sources yesterday that every member of their local organizations will be assessed $2 to assist in their defense.

Elsewhere than in this city, according to the most reliable information obtainable, the sum will be not $2, but $5 per head. The amount which Southern California will be expected to raise for the defense fund is placed at $70,000. That from the northern part of the State is to be half as much again.

That the attempts to collect this levy will be followed by open mutiny is regarded as inevitable, even by those who most warmly advocate it. The saloons on the east side of the city were in a ferment yesterday when the notice was passed along the line. The consensus of opinion appeared to be that it was bad enough to be classed perforce with dynamiters and murderers, but to be made to pay for the privilege is a little too much.

USES PUNCH AS WEAPON.

Trolley Conductor, Who Whacks Two Passengers, Is Held for Assault in Justice Court.

Joseph Clark, a conductor on the San Pedro line of the Pacific Electric, was yesterday held to answer in the Superior Court by Justice Summerfield on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, preferred by Claude Korff, No. 727 1-2 South Grand avenue. Bail was fixed at $1000, which, at the closing of the court, Clark had been unable to obtain.

The evidence showed that Korff and a friend, J. A. Romig, boarded a car at San Pedro on the night of January 21. They got into an altercation with Clark, during which he beat both severely on the heads with a ticket punch. Their wounds were dressed at the Receiving Hospital.

Attorney McKinley for the defense sought to establish that Korff and Romig were intoxicated and the aggressors. Attorney Allender and Dep. Dist. Att. Graham claimed Clark had hunted the trouble himself. A broken punch was introduced as an exhibit.

GOING AROUND THE KITE.

Upon the return of the Southern California Editorial Association from the outing of two days around the Kite-shaped Track, the members will be the guests of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce on Saturday evening at the Orpheum. President Charles E. Jones, who is in charge of arrangements, announced yesterday that practically every member has announced his intention to be present. At Pomona, the coming of the Association will mark the dedication of the new City Hall. Auto trips at Ontario, Claremont, Riverside, Redlands and other places have been planned. At Riverside the editors will be guests at the Mission Inn where a typical evening of entertainment has been planned

THE PUBLIC SERVICE.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

Perhaps inspired by the successful example of his wife, Herman Brunner yesterday obtained an allowance of $225 a month from the receiver of his own estate, valued at $200,000. The order was issued by Judge Craig.

The widow of a late officer of the fire department, who was injured on duty, was made defendant in a suit to restrain her from using her home as a dwelling, on the ground that it was not erected in accordance with the building restrictions.

The City Attorney held yesterday that the power system, to be constructed by bond money, may be built only by the Board of Public Works, and the Public Service Commission can only operate after completion.

Though he fired but one shot, a hunter arrested in Griffith Park violated two laws and paid two fines in Police Court yesterday.

The officers of five corporations, who were arrested April 8, for having maintained poles and wires in a restricted district, were made to appear in court again yesterday.

At the City Hall.

MAY NOT BUILD POWER SYSTEM.

BOND MONEY NOT FOR PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION.

City Attorney Holds Board of Public Works Has Sole Legal Right to Use Funds From Bond Sales. Commission May Operate and Control Revenues.

No department of the city has a right to expend money for public improvements and works, when such money is raised by bond issue, except the Board of Public Works. This is the ruling of City Attorney Shenk, sent to the Public Service Commission yesterday, in answer to its query as yesterday, in answer to its query as the use of bond money in prosecuting work through the power bureau, soon to be established under the charter amendments.

The charter requires the establishment of both water and power bureaus on the same investment of control and authority. Recently the Mayor asked the commission to proceed with the organization of this bureau for the purpose of planning the proposed power development on the aqueduct. The Mayor, after advising with J. A. Anderson and W. B. Mathews, who were largely responsible for the charter amendment, assumed that this bureau will have power to deal with the problem of local distribution and construct, if necessary, the system for it.

The City Attorney's ruling is negative to this assumption. He holds that the charter provision did not modify the State law, requiring all cities operating under a freeholders charter to expend bond money through its Board of Public Works and therefore the construction of the power system, like the water system, must be under the control of the board.

To have held otherwise would have been to declare that the Public Service Commission is, under the new charter, invested with the construction of the aqueduct and the expenditure of the water bond proceeds. Opposite to this he holds that the power bureau, under the Public Service Commission, will have power only to control and operate the system when it is constructed and to have charge of its revenues and their expenditure, just as the commission, as the successor of the Water Board, has control of the water revenues and plant.

He points out that the city may construct a single power plant and begin service in the city and that thereafter the commission will have charge and control of the completed operating work. Out of any revenues it could extend the system. For instance the Board of Public Works may construct the San Francisquito power plant and bring its supply to the city and provide a system of distribution out of the power bond money, but the Public Service Commission may use the surplus revenues to construct other power houses as they may be needed. In this way the power system may produce the revenues to extend itself all along the aqueduct line.

It is probable the commission will organize the bureau as the charter requires, with E. F. Scattergood, chief electrical engineer of the aqueduct, as the head and that its sole work will be the preparation of surveys and plans for the big project, to be carried out by the Board of Public Works, just as the aqueduct plans were prepared by the Water Board and carried out by the Board of Public Works.

It is known that the plan of the city officials is to use the $1,500,000 that will be in the sinking fund in June in constructing the San Francisquito power plant and perhaps in acquiring a distributing system, at least in part, in the city. This plant will produce at both stations, about 90,000 horse-power, but will require an expensive auxiliary station, which might be omitted if the other were constructed simultaneously.

BAKER'S JOB.
MAY NOT GET IT.

The Council will be asked today in a message from the Mayor to perform its duty under the new charter and pass an ordinance creating the office of Purchasing Agent for the city. Under the old charter the purchasing is done by the Supply Committee of the Council and its executive is its clerk, Arthur Baker. Baker has been instrumental in having the charter amended to create an efficient office and has hoped to be its first incumbent. If the Council passes the ordinance, as the Mayor urges, Baker will be without a position unless the Mayor names him as Purchasing Agent, a thing which it is hinted in the City Hall he does not intend to do.

No salary has been fixed for the position but the Council has talked of making it $1500. It is not believed this amount will be seductive to the man the Mayor is said to have in mind for the place. The Mayor believes the position important enough to justify a good salary to an expert.

SILENT AGAIN.
MAYOR REAPPOINTS HIM.

The Mayor yesterday sent to the Council a message reappointing ex-Judge Charles Silent a member of the Park Commission. This is the first time that a member of an official board has been reappointed while in office and it is because City Attorney Shenk found this to be a direct way out of a dilemma.

Recently George P. Adams filed with the Mayor the charge that Silent is disqualified for membership on the Park Commission because he has not registered as an elector of the city, as the new charter amendments require. Now, the new charter took effect March 20 and, in seeking to comply with it, the Mayor reappointed Silent March 22. Consequently, as Silent did not register last year, through inadvertence, the City Attorney held him not to be an elector and therefore disqualified him.

So he advised Judge Silent to go and register. Having registered yesterday, Silent returned to the City Hall and told the Mayor about it.

"You are now a qualified elector," said the Mayor, laughing.

Being qualified he was immediately re-appointed subject to confirmation by the Council.

In his message the Mayor reviews his attempts to legally appoint Silent and does not allude to the Adams charges.

ASKS FRANCHISE.
GLENDALE LINE STREET.

Alan I. Warren, secretary of the League of Justice, filed with the Council yesterday a petition asking that the Pacific Electric be ousted from Allessandro street, north of Montana street, and other parts of its Glendale line, where it has no franchise rights. Evidently justice, or its league, or its secretary, have been without much to do recently, and need some advertising, for the substance of the complaint is based on a dispute that occupied the attention of the patrons of the line for two years and the Council the same time, and was finally settled by Paul Shoup, vice-president of the Southern Pacific, in charge of the electric lines owned by that company, last December.

By that settlement the company agreed to open Allessandro street to the public, construct crossings and bridges, retaining walls and other improvements and to give transfers to all the Southern Pacific Electric lines and local service and to ask a franchise for all the streets it traverses where it has no franchise.

All this agreement has been complied with. The only complaint is that the franchise application was not asked for until after Warren's long document was filed yesterday. That it had not been filed was as much a surprise to Shoup as to any one else for it had been prepared many weeks and it was believed to have been filed.

Warren's document reminded Shoup's office of this neglect and the application was at once hurried over to the City Clerk's office.

Board Asks Extension.

The Board of Public Utilities has asked the Council to extend the time for its consideration of the application of the Pacific Electric for a franchise over Mission Road, Tourmaline and Turquoise streets, because of the importance of the grants. Another month's time is asked.

The Federal Courts.

DECISION GOES AGAINST HIM.

HALEY NOT YET DISCHARGED FROM BANKRUPTCY.

Referee's Report Criticises Testimony of Architect Severely and Federal Judge Confirms It—Cause Is Alleged Irregularity in Stock Transfer.

The financial affairs of A. L. Haley, the architect, were aired before Judge Wellborn yesterday, with the result that the court confirmed the report of Referee Helm, finding against the discharge from bankruptcy of Haley, and the petitioner will be compelled to seek relief at another time.

The objector to the discharge of Haley, was John D. Pope, who, it is alleged, held an unsatisfied mortgage against him, amounting to about $3000. The unsecured claims against Haley aggregated $7,887.18, consisting almost entirely of household bills, and his assets were scheduel at $5645, said to represent the value of certain bonds. The record shows that nothing was realized from the assets.

The ground of the opposition to the discharge of Haley rested chiefly on the allegation that he had transferred to Miss M. B. Greenwood, 1250 shares of the A. L. Haley Company, incorporated, but it was argued in his behalf that the transfer had been made to secure a loan of $2000 of Miss Greenwood, and some time before the beginning of the bankruptcy proceedings.

In behalf of the creditors it was argued to the court that although Haley had transferred the stock in question to Miss Greenwood, that the bankrupt had secured at least $10,000 as the earnings of the stock within the past year. The report of Referee Helm criticized the testimony of Haley quite severely.

In confirming the report Judge Wellborn said that it had been the universal practice to not disturb the findings of an officer of the court unless the facts were plainly in opposition to such finding, and he could not find such a condition in the action at bar.

SAYS HELL TELL.
EXPOSURE OF SMUGGLING.

Gin Wut Wah, a Chinaman, who was lately brought here from Leavenworth, will go on the stand in Judge Wellborn's court this morning and tell what he knows of the business of smuggling his countrymen across the Mexican border into the United State. Gin is serving an eighteen-months' sentence in the Federal Prison for perjury, but has promised the officials that he will make a grand expose of smuggling methods.

The list of defendants charged with a violation of the Federal laws is the largest ever arraigned in the United States Court. The list includes Wong Wing Hing, Wong Sing Tai, Quan Hong, Chin Foo, Bee Bow and Ng Fun. In addition two Mexicans, Santiago Villa and Jesus Pena, who are indicted along with the Chinamen, will be used as witnesses against the Celestials. More than thirty witnesses have been summoned by the government, and on account of the slow progress of the trial by reason of it being necessary to interpret the evidence, the hearing will probably occupy the rest of the week.

The specific complaint charges that on October 10, 1910, the accused brought five Chinese laborers into the State, in violation of the law, and that on October 31, 1910, four more such persons were brought across the lines, none of them having the legal certificate of residence. The local Chinese colony it is expected, will assist in the defense of the men, and a score of witnesses will be summoned in their behalf.

CHILDLIKE AND BLAND.
BUT LETTER GAVE IT AWAY.

The case against Hem Wey and a half dozen other Chinamen on the charge of smuggling opium into the United States was in the District Court yesterday, on a motion to quash the indictment against the Mongolians.

Hem Wey is engaged in business on Marchessault street, where he conducts a shark-fin emporium. On February 22, last, he received a box of fish from Oceanside, and in the bottom of the box, securely hidden from the prying eyes of the curious, had been placed a number of boxes of opium. The stuff was at once confiscated by officers of the government, who had been "tipped off" in regard to the shipment. Hem, and others were indicted and the proceedings in court yesterday were to set aside the indictment on the ground that a person charged with a criminal act cannot be made a witness against himself.

It was alleged that Hem Wey knew nothing about the opium being hidden in the fish box, and being child-like and bland, was the victim of circumstances. Unfortunately a letter, sealed and addressed to Hem Wey was found, telling him how to dispose of the stuff, and the missive was used against the Chinaman when the matter was investigated by the grand jury. The court will have to consider the matter for some time before deciding whether Hem Wey has been deprived of any of his substantial rights.

At the Courthouse.

HARDSHIP IS WIDOW'S FATE.

LATEST IS SUIT AGAINST HER BY NEIGHBORS.

Husband, Late Member of Fire Department, Injured on Duty; Children Prohibited From Attending School on Technicality; Husband Injured on Duty.

Mrs. Helen Johnson, widow of Capt. Clinton Johnson, late of the fire department, is the defendant in a suit which was brought to the attention of Judge Finlayson yesterday.

Neighbors of Mrs. Johnson have brought an action for the purpose of having the house torn down and to have her restrained from using it as a dwelling, on the present site, as it was not erected in accordance with the building restrictions.

Capt. Johnson, who was in command of Engine Company No. 8, was so severely injured while on duty that he died. His widow received a pension of $55 a month. She built a house on Seventh avenue. As it was outside of the city limits, the city schools would not permit her children to attend. To afford them educational opportunities, she moved to No. 2630 Harvard boulevard, renting her own home.

Attorneys Thomson and Spencer, who represent the widow, demurred to the complaint filed. They assert, among other things, that the neighbors can now do nothing because they have been guilty of long delay. The judge took the case under advisement.

OIL QUEEN WINS.

The Appellate Court yesterday affirmed the decision of the lower court in favor of the defendant, in the action brought by Jane Louise Henne, administratrix of the will of C. Henne, against Emma A. Summers, familiarly known as "The Oil Queen." The action was brought to enforce the provisions of a bond for $1800 executed by the defendant, in favor of C. Henne, the testator. On November 20, 1906, Edward Booth and John W. Neighbors leased from Henne, for five years from January 1, 1907, a store room, the rent to be at the rate of $900 a month in advance. Booth and Neighbors, with the defendant as surety, executed a bond for $1800 that they would carry out the provisions of the lease in good faith. The issues were tried out in the Superior Court several years ago, and judgment was for the defendant. This is now affirmed.

MAKE SURE OF HIM.

In order that there might be no mistake in being able to hold John Jacob Rohe, the alleged thieving railroad man, who it is charged on March 28 last, at Ellis, Kan., stole a mail pouch containing $1500, the government yesterday presented another complaint against Rohe, the man with many aliases. Under the United States statutes Rohe is charged with being guilty of stealing mail matter, but the law also makes it a separate offense for any one to mutilate a mail bag, and it was this feature that was covered by the second complaint. At the hearing of the case yesterday before United States Commissioner Van Dyke, Rohe indicated his willingness to return at once and face the charges against him in Kansas, and an order for his removal thither was made by the Commissioner.

WANTS SOME HIMSELF.
BRUNNER ASKS FOR MONEY.

Herman Brunner, formerly lottery king of St. Louis, yesterday obtained an allowance from the receiver of his $200,000 estate of $225 a month for the purpose of sustaining himself and sending his daughter Julia to college. Judge Craig issued the order.

Mrs. Louisa Brunner sued the former lottery man for divorce. A cross-complaint was filed. A decree was denied and a receiver for the property was appointed to hold office during the pendency of an appeal.

In his application to the court, Brunner alleged that $175 a month was necessary for his living expenses, and that the cost to him of keeping his daughter in Stanford University was $75 a month.

Mrs. Brunner was recently allowed $2000 for attorneys' fees, and $200 a month for personal expenses and for educating her son, Fred.

WATSON IS UP.
JUDGMENT AGAINST LENDER.

To the surprise of some of his creditors, it was ascertained through a supplementary proceeding in Department Six, yesterday, that John W. Watson, a money lender, is not execution proof.

Watson was taken into court in order that he might be called on to make disclosures as to his possessions by attorneys for Mr. and Mrs. William C. Clarance. They sued him some time ago for $927, which he failed to pay over on a mortgage as he had contracted, to do, and got a default judgment.

He declared that he had two pieces of property which would more than satisfy the claim, and at the same time admitted that they stood in his wife's name. He gave the court his word that she would not make any claim to them.

One of the lots is in the McCarthy Fruit Acre Tract, Sixty-third street and Compton avenue, and the other is a lot No. 195, Winton & McCloud's Figueroa Tract. Both lots are improved.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.
BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

NOISE GOES ON. The Sieg Fat Company, No. 615 South Broadway, and the Metcalf-Ackley-Gustavson Company, No. 610 South Hill street, must endure the rumble of the balls and the clatter of the flying pins from Cosmopolitan Bowling Academy until their suit against the institution and the Central Broadway Building Company is finally determined. They pleaded for an order to restrain operations during the pendency of the action. This was denied by Judge Finlayson yesterday, but he declared that the case should have a speedy trial.

POLITICAL AFTERMATH. The suit of the Stanley Mercantile Agency against D. C. Castleman, former chairman of the Republican City Central Committee, and other members of the organization was called for hearing on demurrer before Judge Finlayson yesterday, but was postponed for one week. The action is for $711.65 for bills which accrued during the Mayoralty campaign of 1909.

SWAP SEATS. Judge Oster of San Bernardino is holding forth in Department Ten this week. Judge Hutton has gone to San Bernardino to preside in a water rights case and to settle an angle in the suit of Henry G. Dent against the Southern California Fruit Growers Association.

NEW NAME. The Figueroa Street Baptist Church of Los Angeles will hereafter be known as the Atherton Baptist Church of Los Angeles, a right to change its name having been granted by the Superior Court yesterday. The reasons for the change given in the petition were that Mrs. Hannah Atherton Baldwin had recently given large sums of money to the church and that the edifice faced on Forty-ninth street and not on Figueroa street.

BAD COMPLAINT. Judge Finlayson yesterday sustained a demurrer to the complaint in the suit of A. D. McEvoy against H. A. Unruh, executor of the estate of E. J. ("Lucky") Baldwin. McEvoy alleges that he rendered detective services for the turfman which were worth $19,800. The judge allowed ten days in which to amend the complaint.

STUNG HIM. E. A. McDonald was convicted of a charge of having obtained money by false pretenses from Mrs. Ida C. Parle by a jury in Judge McCormick's court yesterday. He traded her some worthless patent rights to a breath perfume machine and received property valued at $1800. He will be sentenced tomorrow.

PERSONAL INJURY. George Waltman yesterday began action against the Los Angeles Creamery Company to recover $5500 damages for injuries suffered by him when an ice chest fell on him on January 9.

CHANGE OF VENUE. A foreclosure suit filed by the Title Insurance and Trust Company against the California Development Company, the Southern Pacific, the California Railway Company, the Liverpool Salt Company, A. N. Jones, M. H. Holland and C. R. Rockwood, was yesterday transferred from Imperial county to this county on a change of venue. The title company was a trustee for the development company. It has asked the court to ascertain the amount of the bonds outstanding against the latter concern and foreclose mortgages on its property to cover them. The other defendants are joined because they claim some interest in the case.

Petition Denied.

SUPREME COURT RULES UNIONITES MUST FACE CONSPIRACY CHARGE.

THE petition filed in the Supreme Court by the thirty-five unionites for a writ of prohibition to stay the proceedings against them was denied in San Francisco yesterday.

The petitioners, former employees of the Lacey Manufacturing Company plant, Llewellyn Iron Works and the Baker Iron Works, were arrested April 11 for having conspired to violate a city ordinance in regard to picketing and boycotting.

The complaint alleges that no such ordinance exists in Los Angeles, and that they were deprived of their constitutional rights when arrested. The men claim they were taken to jail, locked up and no charge preferred against them for five days. When that time expired they were formally charged with violating the picketing ordinance, a misdemeanor, and brought before Police Judge Chambers. They pleaded not guilty and asked for separate trials.

In the petition for a writ of prohibition the thirty-five men alleged that Judge Chambers overruled the motion for separate trials and ordered the cases to be tried collectively.

The trial of the unionites will be taken up in Police Judge Chambers's court at 10 o'clock this morning.

It was rumored yesterday afternoon that W. H. Black, one of the jurors, had become ill, but the report could not be confirmed, and Assistant City Prosecutor Nimmo said he believed the story was unfounded.

The rest of the week will be consumed in taking evidence, it is thought. Police Judge Chambers should sit in regular Police Court cases this week, but because of the conspiracy trial, Police Judge Frederickson will take up the work.

PAY FOR HUBBY. Mrs. Mary A. McKinney yesterday filed suit against the city for $30,000 damages for the death of her husband, Thomas J. McKinney, who was killed on the aqueduct on September 29, 1910.

MALICIOUS, HE SAYS. W. F. McCollum yesterday filed suit for $10,000 damages against S. P. Bradford for malicious prosecution. McCollum alleges that the defendant caused his arrest on a charge of having been guilty of false pretenses in a theatrical transfer. He asserts that he was exonerated by Justice Williams.

INCORPORATIONS. Articles of incorporation were filed yesterday by Naomi Church of Christ of Los Angeles, trustees, George Terry, A. Hillman, R. N. Sugg, C. W. Moore and G. H. NEW ACTION IN CONDUIT CASES.

CORPORATION HEADS AGAIN APPEAR IN COURT.

Failure of Council to Grant Extension of Time Needed by the Companies to Remove Poles and Overhead Wires, Puts Matter in Prosecutor's Hands.

Following the failure of the City Council to extend for ninety days the time in which the public service corporations were to remove poles and wires from the down-town restricted district, officials of five companies were rearrested yesterday afternoon and made to appear before Police Judge Frederickson.

The action is based on an ordinance passed March 24, 1910, which prohibited the maintenance of poles and wires on the streets in the down-town district after March 24 last. The changing from the overhead wires to underground conduits is, according to the officers of the corporations, a task of great dimensions, which cannot be accomplished in the time allotted.

When the officers were arrested April 8, it was understood that the Council was about to grant an extension of time, and when the cases were called Police Judge Rose voluntarily stated that he understood some action was about to be taken and that he would consent to a continuance.

The officers who appeared yesterday are: John B. Miller, R. E. Cunningham and W. A. Brackenridge of the Southern California Edison Company; W. B. Cline and Charles A. Luckenback of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric corporation; Howard Huntington and L. O. Lieber of the Los Angeles Railway; William C. Kerckhoff, Allan C. Balch, and J. L. Hoke of the Pacific Light and Power Company; J. McMillan, Paul Shoup and A. E. Roome of the Pacific Electric; G. A. Lawrence and F. H. Lamb of the Western Union Telegraph Company.

Police Judge Frederickson allowed pleas of not guilty to be entered with the understanding that should the corporations wish to do so, they may

The Oil Industry.

PETROLEUM IS RECORD-MAKER.

Adds Materially to State's Mineral Wealth.

One Hundred Million Is This Year's Estimate.

General News of Interest From Oil Fields.

It is estimated that the minerals produced in the State of California in the year 1910 had an aggregate value of $90,000,000, and that the production for the present year will amount to a total of $100,000,000. These figures are based upon the information contained in thousands of letters from the producers of minerals now in the hands of the State Mining Bureau. They show a remarkable growth.

The returns for the year 1909 showed that the record of any earlier year had been surpassed—that of 1913 for instance, when gold reached the high-water mark of $81,394,700. In fact, 1909 beat that record by quite a respectable margin, the total being $82,973,289, or a lead over all previous records of $1,700,000 in round numbers.

Producers of structural materials still furnish some big figures of actual production for 1910, and, it is believed, much larger ones for 1911. One concern has made a showing already of nearly $500,000 for 1910. The rapid advance in the production of petroleum, and steady, if less rapid, advance due to gold dredging, together with the improvement in the structural materials industry, may be relied upon, it is said, to give the mineral showing of California a continually increasing prominence and importance.

The expectations for 1910, outside of the returns actually made for that year, are based on the progress made in the past five years, and upon a knowledge of the general conditions that are attending the many branches that report their outputs and values to the State Mining Bureau.

The official figures show that in five years the annual production of petroleum has grown from $9,007,820 to $32,398,187. Gold has advanced from $19,197,043 to $20,237,570. Quicksilver production in 1909 reached $1,436,625. Copper amounted in value to $8,478,142 as against $2,650,-... in 1905.

The summary totals for all mineral products of California for five years forms an interesting exhibit as follows:

1905, $43,069,227; 1906, $46,776,-...; 1907, $55,697,949; 1908, $66,-...,190; 1909, $82,973,289. The advance in five years, from 1905 to 1909 was $39,909,208, or practically $8,000,000 a year improvement. This growth is now at a much greater rate and the average figures would indicate, being an advance of more than $10,000,000 a year, comparing 1908 with 1909.

BIG DEAL IS REPORTED.
LOST HILLS TERRITORY.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

VIRALIA, April 24.—Martin & Dudley, prominent oil operators of this city, have added to the thousands they have won through their oil operations since the first of the year through a deal which has just been completed with George Cameron and associates of San Francisco, the sale to the latter of 320 acres of unpatented land, the price paid, it is asserted, being nearly $700,000.

This tract of land adjoins the Lost Hills Development Company, most of which is patented and which the Cameron interests recently purchased from the same local operators. Associated with Martin & Dudley in the deal are E. C. Farnsworth, a leading attorney of this city; Ben M. Maddox, the general manager of the Mt. Whitney Power Company and Bob Johnson, a mining and oil stock promoter. In addition to this land and the ones previously made, the same people still control nearly 10,000 acres of patented and unpatented lands in the Lost Hills section. For the lands which they have already sold for more than a million and paid only a few thousands. It is stated by Cameron's agents that they will start immediately on an extensive system of development and with the erection of the derrick work will be started on a complete system of pipe lines.

Notes and Personals.

Graham of Coalinga, broth- of Miller Graham the Coalinga oil operator of San- Ynez, has been called to Okla- homa to take charge of a big oil deal pressed by his brother in that city. Graham is known as a man of many intimates.

Hamilton, who has lately had charge of the Coalinga interests of the Associated Company, has been promoted to the position of general manager of all the properties owned by the company. He will make headquarters on section 32, 32-24, near Maricopa, the property recently acquired from the American Oilfields Company.

Max Whittier of this city has com- pleted what are practically two dry holes on the Lemon ranch adjoining the Ebano property of the Mexican Petroleum Company. The company is starting well No. 3 and has ordered material for several other tests.

The Associated Oil Company is be- ginning to take oil from the Coalinga Eight Oil Company on its contract for 1,000,000 barrels. This oil is to be delivered at the rate of 30,000 barrels a month.

Thomas R. Jennings, superinten- dent in Mexico for William Miller Graham and associates, who recent- ly took over a tract of 150,000 acres of supposed oil land in that country, in the Tampico district, has shut down operations and will return to California. He does not believe con- ditions are ripe at this time for promiscuous drilling.

J. A. Pollard, who was field mana- ger of the properties of the Honolulu Consolidated Oil Company, for some time, now operating for himself, has been in Los Angeles for several days on business. He has acquired some valuable oil holdings.

Harry W. Thomas and associates have secured a perpetual lease to thir- ty acres of the Bear Creek property on section 14, 21-22 by paying a cash bonus of $20,000. A company is be- ing organized to develop the land.

Gas Corporation Asks Privilege Now in Specified Districts—Desires to Im- prove Foothill District.

The Southern California Gas Cor- poration yesterday submitted a re- vised application to the County Su- pervisors, asking that it be given a franchise in specified districts. This resulted from the failure of the Su- pervisors a week ago to grant the blanket franchise asked for when the matter was first advertised.

The corporation has lowered the time limit from fifty to forty years. It wishes to improve the foothill dis- trict between the city and San Ber- nardino county, excepting such cities as are already taken care of by other companies. The piping in the other direction will seek the centers of pop- ulation, in the thickly settled district south of Redondo and nearby dis- tricts.

It is looked upon as a possibility that the corporation will try in time to take over the Pasadena and other plants, to bring the whole county un- der a single system. The Supervisors look upon the new application with favor, since it cannot stifle competi- tion, like a blanket franchise might.

It was ordered that bids be adver- tised for 1905, $42,903,227; 1906, $46,776,-...; 1907, $53,497,949; 1908, $66,-...; 1909, $81,972,209. The advance in five years, from 1905 to 1909 was $39,069,309, or practically $8,000,000 a year improvement. This shows now on a much greater rate than the average figures would indicate, being an advance of more than $14,000,000 a year, comparing 1908 with 1909.

The Associated Oil Company is beginning to take oil from the Coalinga Eight Oil Company on its contract for 1,000,000 barrels. This oil is to be delivered at the rate of 30,000 barrels a month.

Thomas R. Jennings, superintendent in Mexico for William Miller Graham and associates, who recently took over a tract of 150,000 acres of supposed oil land in that country, in the Tamipeo district, has shut down operations and will return to California. He does not believe conditions are ripe at this time for promiscuous drilling.

J. A. Pollard, who was field manager of the properties of the Honolulu Consolidated Oil Company, for some time, now operating for himself, has been in Los Angeles for several days on business. He has acquired some valuable oil holdings.

Harry W. Thomas and associates have secured a perpetual lease to thirty acres of the Bear Creek property on section 14, 31-22 by paying a cash bonus of $20,000. A company is being organized to develop the land.

REVISES FRANCHISES

Gas Corporation Asks Privilege Now in Specified Districts—Desires to Improve Foothill District.

The Southern California Gas Corporation yesterday submitted a revised application to the County Supervisors, asking that it be given a franchise in specified districts. This resulted from the failure of the Supervisors a week ago to grant the blanket franchise asked for when the matter was first advertised.

The corporation has lowered the time limit from fifty to forty years. It wishes to improve the foothill district between the city and San Bernardino county, excepting such cities as are already taken care of by other companies. The piping in the other direction will seek the centers of population, in the thickly settled district south of Redondo and nearby districts.

It is looked upon as a possibility that the corporation will try in time to take over the Pasadena and other plants, to bring the whole county under a single system. The Supervisors look upon the new application with favor, since it cannot stifle competition, like a blanket franchise might.

It was ordered that bids be advertised for

DOXOLOGY.

The Times has a steamed evening contemporary that is a villein all right, for it is "a bondman or servant" to Lissnerski. But it is not a villain "capable of great crimes"—appearances to the contrary notwithstanding—for to be a villain requires some personal courage, Byron says—

"I saw the prettiest creature fresh from Milan
Who gave me some sensations like a villain."

Our contemporary seems to be ignorant of the fact that there are many words in the English language similar in phonetic sound, or in orthography, or both, that have two or more meanings. For instance, in Saxony an Earl is a man. In England he is a nobleman. In Denmark he is an alderman. In Iceland he is a cleaner of sewer vaults and a scavenger. So with compound words. "Toby-ass" is a compound of a dog and a donkey, while "Toobiased" is the condition of a conceited self-opiniated person.

BOYCOTTING.

The only conditions under which boycotting can be successfully invoked to aid in establishing the tyranny of the closed-shop is where a manufactured article, such as beer, whisky or wine, is sold to local dealers and consumers and where there are hundreds of consumers for each workman employed in the manufacturing. Where the conditions are reversed and there are hundreds of workmen for each customer—as in the case of machinery and structural iron, and the article made is sold to other than local users, there boycotting has proved and will prove ineffectual. In the case of beer, for instance, the beer that ten men make is sold to a hundred or more saloons and drunk by a thousand consumers. The beer-users can reach and bring the pressure of individual effort to bear upon the saloon-keepers not to keep beer made at non-union breweries, and the beer-drinkers do not, as a rule, care where the beer is made or ever look upon the label on the bottle or keg.

But the purchaser of an iron store-front or of sugar mill machinery who should be approached by a boycotting iron worker with a request to not buy what he needed from a manufacturer who employed non-union workmen would give little or no heed to the request.

AN OYSTEROUS DECISION.

It rather lessens ones reverence for that feature of the noble science of jurisprudence which finds expression in the issuance of injunctions to read that the United States Court in Bridgeport, Ct., last December granted an order restraining the Andrew Radel Oyster Company from selling oysters to the customers of the Sealshipt Oyster Company, or from soliciting the trade of such customers.

It is true that the judge in April revoked the order that he had issued in December, but for four long, weary months the oyster drummers of the Radel company were compelled to hush their voices to silence, and refrain from journeying to and fro, interviewing restaurant proprietors and telling them how much sweeter, how much more nutritious, how much kinder in spirit and manlier in action were the educated bivalves of the Radel company to the illiterate, morose and sneaking shellfish of the Sealshipt company.

If the judge had issued his order in May, in which month there is no "r," and revoked it in September, which has an "r," it would not have been so unfair. But to issue it early in December and keep it in life until late in April, was, in the emphatic but excusable language of the president of the Radel company, "toodamned." Such use, or rather misuse, by a judge of his injunctive power inclines laymen to look leniently upon the offense of contempt of court.

THE LOVE SONG.

The other day a man who was the possessor of a very sour face, passing the door of a Los Angeles motion-picture house from which the sweet voice of a woman floated out to mingle with the noises of the street, was heard to ask: "Can't a man go any place where he will be rid of these sloppy love songs?"

No, Mr. Cynic, we are afraid—or rather, we are very glad—that you will never find a spot on earth, however dark, however secluded, where some faint note of love's old sweet song will not echo. And if you are not very careful, Mr. Cynic, one of these days the tender vibrance of one of these songs is going to fall into your heart, sprout, grow and blossom there like a good seed, and make you a better man in spite of yourself. We ourselves have not quite reached the point where we can always see only the silver lining and preach the gospel of gladness, but if there were any one in the world whom we would confine to a region where there are no flowers, no sunbeams and no songs, it would be that man who forever insists on the blackness of things as he sees them, and who has no music in his heart.

No, we cannot get rid of the love song. From rag time to grand opera, from the ring of the hammer on the anvil to the tinkle of brooks in far-off fields and the golden chorus of birds in the swaying tree tops, from the songs of Solomon and David to the excellent compositions of Wagner, Beethoven and masters of still later days, from the globe on which we live to the answering stars from eternity to eternity, the universal love song ceases not.

The University of Chicago barred a girl student because she wore a $200 hat. How are the sons and daughters of the rich going to learn anything if this habit should spread?

DESPERATE REMEDIES CALLED FOR.

The heinous, tragic assault on a beautiful girl in a home on Toberman street in Los Angeles yesterday afternoon, closely following seven or more similar outrages, should and will fire the fatherhood and manhood of the city. The frequency of such crimes here is appalling and the situation calls for the application of intense and drastic policies. It is apparent that several fiends of this indescribable class are at work and there is no assurance of their capture. Strong detective force should be brought to bear on this one series of crimes and the whole strength of the police department should co-operate with the detectives, under the most capable generalship. It will not do to permit these devils to run at large one day longer than we have to. The possibilities are frightful. And again the question comes up, Is Los Angeles dealing wisely with the problems to which the so-called "social evil" gives rise? The question will keep coming up. It cannot be dodged.

GAS—HUH!

The Los Angeles Evening Record, the organ of assassins, and other sheets of its ilk have, in despite of the official reports of scientists, of the grand jury, of the Coroner's jury and of the special investigating committee appointed by the Mayor, to the effect that The Times plant was dynamited, insisted in promulgating the theory that The Times was destroyed not by dynamite placed there by the murderers employed and paid by the higher-ups of the closed-shop labor unions, but by GAS. The "gas" theory was utterly and inconceivably absurd. It was never believed by the liars who advanced it in order to shield their accomplices from punishment and themselves from the popular odium which attached to the dastardly deed. It was in a limited way accepted by a few unthinking people who did not read the evidence and who were willing to give welcome to any suggestion that would relieve our common humanity from the guilt of the awful crime—and who now look silly and abashed.

Now that indisputable proof of the dynamiting has been found, after months of search by Burns and his detectives, and proof has been followed by the confession of one of the chief devils, that the Times Building was dynamited by labor unionites, we shall probably hear little more of GAS being the destroying agency.

Dropping the gas theory, the Record (organ of assassins) now suggests the equally ridiculous theory that McNamara's confession was obtained by the use of the "third degree," and that Burns's deputies burglariously entered the cellar of McManigal's house and the safe of McNamara and "planted" dynamite bombs there. If the situation were not so serious one might be pardoned for quoting Ben Butler's mock defense of the West Point cadets who cut off the ears of the negro cadet. Butler suggested that the young man bit his own ears off.

The only gas that caused the destruction of the Times Building and the murder of its blameless and loyal workers was a fluid pulsed from the wicked and murderous hearts of labor-union leaders into the arteries and veins of deluded dupes. It was a fluid fetid with foul odors from the alembic of hell, that set off the unionite dynamite bombs.

When, in the depths of earth, the miner detects the fumes which tell of the approach of the stifling, deadening, life-destroying gas, he flies to the shaft and gives the signal that will cause those above to hoist him to the surface where he can once more breathe the pure air of heaven.

The Times beseeches the misguided, closed-shop laborers to give the signal that will cause them to be hoisted out of the depths into which their damnable Los Angeles organ has helped beguile them. It beseeches them to come up from the darkness and stifling atmosphere of slavery to their grafting leaders, into the pure light and air of industrial freedom. The Times will count its own great loss as gain if such loss shall serve to emancipate honest laborers from their thralldom to murderers and grafters.

AN OLD AFRICAN LION.

"To understand all and to be unable to act;" surely a sad fate for any active man who has done things worth doing, doubly pathetic for a great monarch who has made history. Such is the position of Menelik, King of Abyssinia, one of the most heroic figures among the born rulers of the world. After winning by personal prowess an African throne, after throwing off from his country the shackles of foreign interference, after forcing the "Powers" to recognize Abyssinia as an independent kingdom, the old lion lies helpless in his palace, stricken down with paralysis, surrounded by scheming nobles hoping to wrest the succession from his little grandchild; he lies there, understanding it all and yet—unable to act.

Whatever attributes of nobleness belong to monarchy belong especially to King Menelik. Had his activities and his genius been at the service of some recognized world power, instead of being confined to the mountainous region lying between the Blue Nile and the Red Sea, his name would be as much in the public mouth as that of Roosevelt or Kitchener or Delcasse. Anyone who looks up the records of his wonderful achievements cannot fail to be impressed by the tremendous swath he has cut in the limited field of North African politics. His career is a historic romance.

Imprisoned in his youth by a cruel tyrant, friendless and with no influence, he broke from his captivity and, at the head of a band of wild Galla horsemen, overthrew King Theodore, married his daughter and made himself sole ruler of Ethiopia. In the early nineties, when the European nations were about to apportion among themselves, as spheres of influence, nearly the whole of Africa, King Menelik alone held out against their aggressions and duplicated for his small domain the feat of Miltiades at Marathon. America perhaps does not thrill at the name of Adowa, and yet this Adowa deserves to rank among the decisive battles of the world. It is not too much to say that but for Menelik's conclusive victory on that first day of March, 1906, there would have been no foot of free soil left for the natives of Africa.

An Italian army of 13,000 picked soldiers was advancing on Abyssinia with the avowed intention of enforcing their garbled construction of the treaty of Uccialli and claiming sovereign rights for Italy along the headwaters of the Nile. King Menelik armed his fierce horsemen from the mountains of Galla, swooped down on the Italian army and utterly routed it. Six thousand Italians were left dead on the battlefield; Italy's army of conquest became a panic-stricken rabble.

After this proof of his fitness, Europe found in this petty potentate a monarch worthy of respect. No longer was force employed against the independence of a country blest with so competent a champion. Great Britain, whose influence had been used to overthrow King Theodore and place Menelik on the throne, was the first nation to recognize the absolute independence of Abyssinia. Indeed she did more. She ceded to Abyssinia 8000 square miles of East Somaliland over which hitherto she had exercised jurisdiction. France and Italy soon followed suit in making obeisance to the successful King; in 1905 the United States set the final seal on this universal recognition of the sovereign by concluding a commercial treaty with the Abyssinian government.

Menelik showed himself to be as shrewd and honorable in peace as he had been swift and strong in battle. He helped the British forces to put down the brigandage of the mad Mullah; he allowed French engineers to build a railroad to his capital city of Harrar; he has encouraged American traders and shown them respect and hospitality. There is no monarch on any throne today who wears a worthier crown than King Menelik.

Some people think the Abyssinian is too savage to be compared with the rulers of greater countries, and even confound him with the woolly-haired negro. This is a mistake. The Abyssinian comes from Hamito-Semitic stock, in fact is almost a reproduction of the ancient Israelite. In his veins runs pure the fighting blood of Joshua. The mountain men of Galla are tall and straight and fair of feature, fairer than the modern Jew. As for pedigree, European royalties are new creations compared with King Menelik. He traces his descent direct from King Solomon himself. Better than this he is in his own person every inch a King. What a strange romantic link between the present and the past will be snapped when this monarch, heir to the ancient glories of Israel, this modern champion of a nation's independence, is gathered to the tombs of his fathers, leaving the destinies of his kingdom in who knows what incompetent hands! The old African lion lies stricken with paralysis, at the mercy of self-seekers plotting for his throne. He awaits the end of his victorious career in helpless, impotent anger, understanding all and yet unable to act. This man who all his life understood so clearly and acted to such purpose. Sic transit gloria mundi.

PRODUCTION OF CAMPHOR.

The production of camphor in California will not be pursued according to the Japanese method. The great-great-grandfathers of the present generation of Japanese planted small groves of camphor trees a hundred or more years ago. Each year the grove was increased by new plantings. The first harvest was gathered fifty years after the first planting, by cutting down the trees that were fifty years old, cutting up the wood and distilling it. "A crude furnace, a rudely-fashioned box to hold the chips and fragments of the tree, a hollow log to convey the steam and volatilized camphor from the chips, and an earthenware receptacle in which the camphor was condensed, comprised the outfit for camphor production." It was obligatory—by custom—for the camphor farmer to plant at least one tree whenever he cut down a tree, that his grandfather had planted. Camphor is employed as a fever specific, as an agent for purification, as an insecticide and also in the manufacture of celluloid and the preparation of high explosives. Japan and China have enjoyed a monopoly of its production. Most of it has been produced on the island of Formosa.

Of late years the enormous increase of the use of camphor for manufacturing as well as medicinal purposes throughout the civilized world and a consequent rapid and continued rise in its price has stimulated the Japanese—who provide for the future more generally than do the people of western nations—to increase its production and to hold a monopoly of it. After the war with Russia, the Japanese organized a gigantic scheme of camphor forestation. They planted 346,000 trees in 1906, 1,300,000 in 1907, 4,830,000 in 1908 and 5,060,184 in 1909. "Expeditions were also organized against the savages in the unsettled portions of Formosa where camphor trees abound, and it appeared as if all these efforts would insure the success of the monopoly desired, for the attempt seemed to be marked by all the intelligent foresight and the logical acumen that secure monopolistic control."

But western science, stimulated by the money-seeking activities of the western mind, is likely to put an end to Japanese monopoly of the production of camphor. The chemists have been at work and within the last two years have succeeded in producing from oil of turpentine, artificial camphor equal to the Japanese product.

They have also discovered that camphor can be made from the green leaves, the dry leaves and the dead leaves of the young trees. The leaves weigh 7.05 per cent. of the total bulk of the tree and can be harvested every year with profit, so that the destruction of trees is no longer necessary.

At the United States experimental agricultural stations in this State and in Texas camphor trees are growing, and there is a flourishing camphor-tree plantation in Florida.

The Japanese, who are swift to seize and adapt western inventions and discoveries, can soon produce an enormous amount of camphor from their young plantations, and may by virtue of their cheap labor continue to lead in the world's production of camphor, but they cannot now increase the price of it, nor enjoy a monopoly of its production.

The "Gas" Man!

THE QUESTION.

On my desk were the strange, rich flowers I had not yet learned to name. After I was drunk with their perfume I wrote a poem as immortal as death.

An incense burned upon a hidden altar, and from it arose the pale mists of a subtle ether, luring me into a new chamber of rest. When its vapors had folded me and I felt the waters of sleep rolling over my head, an old man stooped above my drooping shoulder and took the poem from my unresisting fingers.

"It is as empty of life as are shadows," he said. "It is an illusion like flowers and like worlds. Why should you care to write or not to write, any more than you should care to be alive or not to be alive."

With that he tore my screed into pitiful fragments, and they scattered at my feet, as ripened seed shaken by the wind from a bursting pod.

Slowly I roused myself. Before me were pen and ink and a sheet of writing paper. Yet my brain could only echo the question thus strangely burned upon my heart: Why should I care to write or not to write, any more than I should care to be alive or not to be alive?

UNCLE WALT.

The Poet Philosopher.

Spring! It is a precious boon—good old April, May and June. Then the nights are cool and calm, so that slumber is a balm, and the days are mild and sweet, so that labor is a treat. And the flies have not yet come, and the skeeters do not hum, and the frogs don't yet aspire to excel the village choir, and we walk with springy tread, thankful that we are not dead. O the spring's a boon, in truth! It restores our vanished youth; even gray and palsied men feel like three-year-olds again and (unless they're watched) they hope with some widows to elope, and the widows, bless their souls, charm us with their caracoles, for we all are growing young when the good old spring is sprung. You are worse than dead, my friend, if, when winter's at an end, and the joyous spring is come, you are feeling dour and glum. Any man whose blood is red, any sport who isn't dead, feels inclined to whoop and waltz, feels like turning somersaults, feels like punching someone's ear, when the gladsome spring is here!

CANADIAN RECIPROCITY AND AMERICAN AGRICULTURISTS.

BY WALTER J. BALLARD.

Why sacrifice the interests of 30,000,000 of our own people to gain a little more trade with 7,500,000 Canadians? To place the products of the farm on the free list is to deny to our largest industrial army the direct benefits of our national policy of protection.

There were engaged in agricultural pursuits in 1900 10,438,219 people (census figures,) and in manufacturing and mechanical pursuits 7,085,209. Directly dependent upon the prosperity of our farms are more than 30,000,000 people, one-third of our population, one-third of the buying power of our country which makes the market for our manufactured goods.

So long as we export, as we do, more farm produce than Canada produces, there is no need of looking to Canada for our food supply. According to James J. Hill, our agricultural products can be increased fourfold, and we can produce by intelligent treatment of the soil now under cultivation, without redeeming another acre from the wilderness, all necessary food for 650,000,000 people—more than seven times our present population. At this time, without getting an adequate yield from our soil, and having only 5 per cent. of the population of the world, we are producing 43 per cent. of the world's supply of wheat, corn and oats. Not for hundreds of years will we be driven by any necessity to depend on other countries for staple food supplies.

The high prices of 1910, which greatly influenced the election, were temporary. Since January prices have been declining. Eggs are lower than for forty-one years. Meats in New York City are as low as they are in Montreal, Canada. If reciprocity with Canada is approved no American consumer would get his supplies for any less money; experience under former concessions proves that the Canadians and the middle men absorb the saving, if there is any.

Eastern farmers suffered unremunerative prices during the development of the great West. Now that consumption has gained upon production, and they are coming into their own, should they be subjected to unhampered competition from the cheaper farm land and cheaper farm labor of Canada, or of any other foreign country?

The government of Canada offers most liberal terms for the settlement of its lands in the Northwest, the price in some cases being as low as 6 cents per acre. Thousands of American farmers have gone there and now seek to sell their produce in this country "without evening things up." To give them free access to our great market (thirteen times the size of Canada's market,) would be to offer a premium for expatriation; in other words, to reward men for leaving our country.

Under the reduced duties of the present tariff, increasing quantities of Canadian farm products are already coming to our market. If the American consumer is thus benefited, he is more benefited in the long run by the protection which is still preserved to stimulate home production; but, with this thrown away, 10,000,000 of our producers—a number 22 1-3 per cent. larger than Canada's entire population—will be discriminated against and discouraged and the consumer will fail to be benefited in proportion as he will become more dependent upon foreign supply.

If protection is to be continued as our national policy, it must be fair to all whose industries are subjected to foreign competition. This Canada compact, if ratified by Congress, by stripping the farmers, the largest class of our producers, will strike the hardest blow to protection it has ever received. Either this proposed free-trade policy or our protective policy must be abandoned.

THE IMP AGAIN.

BY DORA OLIPHANT COE.

It is The Imp again, and this time I'm not going to apologize for him. He must stand or fall upon his own nonsense. I assure you, it is not sharp enough to hurt him. I would not have him harmed, for he has been my salvation many times through scenes which surely would have been death to me if he had not sat there in the back of my head and tickled the edge of my sense of humor.

This time, though, I really was making a brave effort to apprehend what the dear, sweet speaker was trying to say. She took herself with such terrible seriousness, and she was the positivest thing I ever saw. Still The Imp sat there at the inner end of my ear tubes and snatched her copy as it came through and turned it into song and dance stuff, black with his own hieroglyphics for dynamics.

The Imp is strong on expression.

What she said was—but since he changed only the outer form of her astounding statements what he said will give the line of her talk.

(Adagio meloncolicoh ed appassionato.)

Oh, the wasted efforts and wasted tears,
As the weeks into months have grown!
Oh, the dreads fulfilled and the ripened fears—
(Large-I-meant-oh.)
If only the men had known!
(Strepitoso.)
That the ballot will cure all the ills of life,
If only he'll share the thing with his wife.
(Morbid-oh-so!)
The divorce mill's grind,
And the Fates unkind;
The wages that will not grow;
All the city's pain
O'er the red-light stain,
(Tempestoso.)
Oh, why did he never know?
(Pomposo.)
All wars, each trust,
Her vote will bust,
And the liquor trade will fail.
Every justice chute
To the woods will scoot,
Into flats we will turn the jail.
(Tempo giusto della scuola Suffragista.)
Since God and Lincoln were Suffragettes,
The future's dark for the country's "wets."
(From the wings. Allegretto. Con strings pizzicato.)
But what did they do in Denver?
(Furioso.)
Saloons must go,
And the drunkard's woe,
And graft from the Legislature.
The vote will give Unto all who live
A different human nature.
(From the wings.)
Then why does it not in Denver?
(Harem skirt-sando.)
The veriest fool,
With the balloting tool,
Can carve out a Venus de Milo;
But the men never knew
What great things they could do,
What simpletons now they must feel,
oh!
(Full chorus, wet-eyed and wobbly-voiced. Slow lights and red music.)
Of all sad words of tongue or pen,
Sure these are the saddest ones: "Oh, you men!"

MUSIC AND THE STAGE.

Persons who have never been closer to India than the Midway received a sepulchorean naturalization last night to the performances of Miss Ruth St. Denis at the Mason Operahouse.

Miss St. Denis is, I believe, a vigorous young American, perfectly normal save for an Arabian Nights tendency and a company of Parsees, Brahmins, Mohammedans and other strange and somewhat undressed creeds who accompany her on her dancing tours.

Miss St. Denis is about our last word in visible rythm.

Vaudeville keeps us supplied with dancing as it is evidenced, followed and practiced in all civilized countries; Miss Maud Allen, aided and abetted by the little Countess de Swirsky, has shown us what classic dance were supposed to be, and in the cultivated arts of the ballet and its allied branches M. Mordkine and Mlle. Pavlowa would seem to be unexcelled. There was left for our edification, therefore, only the dances of the Orient, and now that Miss St. Denis has supplied these, we may creep with Alexander that there are no more light fantastic worlds to conquer.

Miss St. Denis' dances are seven—a mystical number, I believe, though as I am no mystic and not even mysterious I am not certain—the first two of which are ancient Egyptian allegories, while the remainder are dances and dancing symbols of the East.

A small and vigorous gentleman named Walter Meyrowitz gets uncommonly full harmony from the slightly enlarged orchestra, and the style "Prof." Inyat Khan, a melodic Hindoo upon the stage, demonstrates excessive digital nimbleness on the part of himself and the several members of his band. The veracious programme informs us that Prof. Khan is esteemed and welcomed by the Nizam of Hyrabad, the Gaekwar of Baroda and the Maharaja of Mysore—to say nothing, I presume, of the Ghiraf of Hippopotamus and the Ding-Dong of Bang-Swat.

Miss St. Denis is a comely young person, given to a raven wig with short, straight hair, a dark make-up, shapely bare feet, bare legs almost always, is the possessor of a set of dental pearls that flash ever and anon from the tiniest of cupid's-bow mouths, and wields a pair of flashing dark eyes. Come to think of it, she has also a pair of hands and arms, which she uses very gracefully.

If by virtue of his sex and generally uninformed state a reviewer as a rule is not expected to accurately describe the female attire of civilization, how much larger shall that excuse be when said reviewer is confronted by the sinful and wonderful garments of the mysterious East?

With methodic and uninspired chronology, therefore, I can only begin at the evening's beginning and hope to arrive at the end. The progress becomes easier, for whereas at first the dancer was draped in a whole dry-goods store, at the finale Salome's traditional costume would have seemed burdensome.

In her Egyptian dances—the "Dance of Day," typifying the rise and fall of Egypt, and "The Veil of Isis," a temple manifestation—there was little movement of pronounced rythmic nature, but some fine color combinations, and extraordinary lighting, especially from above.

The Calcutta population became boisterously manifested in the first Indian excerpt, a street scene, in which Miss St. Denis, in a sort of ruffled harem skirt and the original-bred bare legs, performed a cobra dance. Her hands, jewel-set, were a very respectable and wriggling pair of reptiles.

I failed to gather the full significance of the "Purda," or Incense dance, which followed. It was slow, dreamy, and full of chromatically changing light effects upon Miss St. Denis's gorgeous costume.

The Nautch dance filled with a dancing Hindoo conversational company was much more interesting. We all know the kind of stiff, rustling skirts Nautch girls wear in public, Miss St. Denis' skirts were of that classification.

The "Sun," another symbolic representation, followed and left the audience, or temple dance, to conclude. This is by far the most elaborate dance of Miss St. Denis's series, and included a long allegorical representation and the famous "Dance of the five senses." Here Miss St. Denis wears perhaps less clothing than any dancer who has ever appeared here, but the absence of raiment is not noticeable as such, and the dance is a well-executed, graceful and highly artistic conception.

Much is the dancing, or rather, the movement and posturing, of Miss St. Denis.

Her efforts always defy criticism, for criticism infers study and comparative comment—and in these days who is there to study, and is there to compare? The reviewer, therefore, can only report, and the reader can exercise his free judgment preferences quite inde-

MUSIC AND THE STAGE.

Persons who have never been closer to India than the Midway received a considerable naturalization last night at the performances of Miss Ruth St. Denis at the Mason Operahouse.

By virtue of his sex and generally accepted state a reviewer as a rule is not expected to accurately describe the female attire of civilization, how much larger shall that excuse be when said reviewer is confronted by the artful and wonderful garments of the mysterious East?

With methodic and uninspired mendacity, therefore, I can only say that the evening's beginning was hope to arrive at the end. The middle becomes easier, for whereas at first the dancer was draped in what looks dry-goods store, at the finale she wears traditional costume would have seemed burdensome.

For criticism infers study and intelligent comment—and in these days who is there to study, and what is there to compare? The reviewer, therefore, can only report, and the reader can exercise his free will and preferences quite independent of the opinion of anyone else.

Ushered in by the beautiful, passionate, sensuous cadences of Bizet's music for the opera, "Carmen," the play by Prosper Merimee, makes its colorful, tempestuous way on the boards of the Belasco Theater this week.

Scenically it is the most perfect thing that has ever been seen in Los Angeles—the square in Seville, Lillas Pastia's gardens, the outer wall of the bull ring at Cordova, and the home of the smugglers in the Basque Mountains. This last scene is a rocky gorge, beyond which the mountains rise, tier on tier, touched by the faint glow of coming dawn. The pink light deepens, turns to rose, and the day comes, bright and glorious, through translucent opal mists. All this was done by Arthur Hurtt, the new scenic artist of the Belasco, who thus conclusively proves himself to be an artist, indeed.

Everybody knows "Carmen," an idyllic melodrama which seems just a trifle old-fashioned in its dramatic structure to the sophisticated modern playgoer, but which nevertheless has become a classic and has power to hold the attention from its beginning to its end. This is not strange, for the very spirit of romance breathes through the play, and it appeals to all the senses. Its moral—but it hasn't any, it's like the dark and splendid heroine who flaunts her

—Main Floor, Rear—

$2.00 to $3.50 Suitings . . . $1.50

Fully a thousand yards when the selling began yesterday morning. No such quantity now, of course, yet the variety and the values are all the most exacting shoppers could ask for.

Dollar-fifty a yard for genuine Scotch, English and French suitings of the character sold all season at $2.00 to $3.50.

Mostly grays, browns and tans—this season's most popular tones. Melange effects as well as stripes, invisible checks and plaids.

New importation of self-figured silk crepe scarfs in grays, pinks, white, champagne, blues and lavender . . . $3

"Kayser" Silk Gloves

Many women think that ALL silk gloves are "Kayser's."

The mistake is natural, because "Kayser's" are the original and best known. There's a way to tell the genuine, look in the hem for the name "Kayser;" it means assurance of quality and reliability, a guarantee that guarantees. A new pair free if the "tips" wear out before the gloves. "Kayser" gloves cost no more than the ordinary kind and are worth double.

Women's pure linen handkerchiefs with borders and initials in colors—pink, lavender or blue Six for $1

Silk Petticoats $5
Guaranteed For 3 Months

Obviously, the silks used in these "S. H. & M" petticoats are the most serviceable money can buy—else the makers wouldn't dare sell them under a guarantee like this:

Should this petticoat, bearing trade-mark "S. H. & M." crack or split within three months from date of purchase, return it with guarantee to your dealer. He will replace it with a new one, provided the damage has not been caused by tearing, alterations, or by wear on bottom ruffle.

Winsome Wash Goods

Counters full of suggestions for summery frocks, pretty lingerie and children's garments are here at such trifling cost that the needlework will be about the only thing to take into consideration. And women who buy now may not only have ample leisure for making these pretty things up, but they get the cream of the assortment, before patterns are picked over:

MERCERIZED FOULARDS are carrying everything before them, in their popularity this season; the bordered effects, and the cleverly-copied foulard patterns, on beautifully mercerized materials, work up in wonderfully pretty fashion—see the illustration—40-inch width, these foulards are inexpensive .....35c yd.

NEW LAWNS, in similar patterns, without the mercerized effect, may be had in 40-inch width, at .....25c yd.

IRISH DIMITIES—We pick out every pattern ourselves, and choose only the choicest—are here in white or colored grounds of all styles, both plain and fancy, at .....25c yd.

IMPORTED MARQUISETTES—White grounds showing black stripes of various widths, or polka dots; and plain solid colors, are .....35c and 50c yd.

MANY OTHER HANDSOME WASH GOODS cannot even get newspaper mention; you will want to see them all personally.

Tomorrow—Wednesday—We begin a sale of French Convent-Made Lingerie. The reductions will average a Fourth and a Third Off, regularly established prices, because we bought that way.

Just Received

New Crepe Meteor in latest Paris shades—Crow's Wing, blue, American Beauty, rose and Empire green, 43 inches wide, $3.50 a yard.

Underpriced Pongees and Tub Silks Today

Wednesday will be foulard silk day—today's most interesting news concerns pongees and tub silks, both of them high in fashion's favor at present:

IMPORTED TUB SILKS, 36 inches wide, in a good assortment of stripes; well worth $1.00, on sale at .....75c yd.

TUB SILKS in exclusive patterns; 32 inches wide; sold all season at $1.25; in this sale at .....$1.10 yd.

NATURAL IMPORTED PONGEE; 34 inches wide; all silk and regularly $1.00 a yard, on sale at .....75c yd.

NATURAL DOMESTIC PONCEE; 36 inches wide; worth $1.00, on special sale at .....85c yd.

MR. AND MRS. HERBERT MARTIN BISHOP of No. 2627 Hoover street, had as guests last evening the Misses Majestic Miss Guendolen Laughlin, Homer Laughlin and Mrs. Bernard of Philadelphia, the latter a guest at the Homer Laughlin residence on West Adams street. Supper at the Alexandria was served later. Burr McIntosh joined the guests after the performance.

Miss Smith a Bride.

Miss Helen May Smith of Hotel Hollywood, became the bride Sunday afternoon of Albert Miller Stephens, son of Judge Albert M. Stephens of Kingsley drive. The service was read by the Rev. Thompson at the home of the groom's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Moye Wicks Stephens of No. 836 Bryan street. The bride was attired in a white lingerie gown and carried a cluster of pink bridesmaid roses. The home was aglow with these beautiful roses. The centerpiece on the bride's table was orange blossoms. At the conclusion of a trip to the Yosemite, Mr. and Mrs. Stephens will reside with Judge and Mrs. Stephens.

Mrs. Ruth Newton,

who celebrated her eighty-eighth birthday anniversary.

Luncheon and Shower.

Miss Ethel Eastty was hostess at a linen shower and luncheon Friday with which she entertained the Misses Pearl Correa and Jean Wright, two June brides-to-be. The guests were entertained at Hotel Mt. Washington where the table was bright with Marioosa lilies arranged in a Japanese basket, the handle of which was adorned with a huge bow of ribbon. Cards were played, following the repast, by Mrs. H. O. Meyer, Mrs. Ralph Pearson, Mrs. Sidney Holman, Mrs. Dallas Jones, Mrs. James Bradish, Miss Elvira Sanford, Miss Ida Rhorer and Miss Bertha Norton. Mrs. Holman captured the prize.

Wedding Announcement.

Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Baldwin of No. 1907 Wisconsin street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Maude Amanda, to Arthur Nelson Harris.

Birthday Celebration.

Mrs. Ruth Newton of Denver, who passes several months each year in Los Angeles, will leave in June for her home. In celebration of her eighty-eighth birthday anniversary, Mrs. Newton entertained with a smart reception at Hotel Pepper for about seventy-five friends. In honor of the occasion, the rooms were decorated with choice flowers and ferns.

Miss Love to Wed.

Miss Mabel Love, daughter of Mrs. Robert Love of No. 2624 Budlong avenue, has chosen May 6 for her wedding to William H. Burnham. Only the immediate relatives will be present.

Surprise Party.

In celebration of the birthday anniversary of Mrs. P. E. Buffington, friends entertained with a costume party Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. M. M. Moffitt of No. 1633 East Twenty-first street. The evening was enjoyed by Mrs. C. B. McGee, Mrs. Anna Eack, Mrs. Elizabeth Briggs, Mrs. Frank Rankin, Mrs. Myrtle Linlahl, Mrs. Hazel Barrington, Mrs. Arthur Aborn, Miss Eva Jenkins, Miss Rose Johnskey and Miss Anna Hooper.

At Home.

Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Richards of Casa Verdugo have returned from a three weeks' outing at Elsinore Hot Springs.

Another Wedding.

Mrs. F. Pedroarena announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Juanita, to Thomas Romera. The service took place at the Plaza Church, Monday, April 17. Only members of the two families were present.

Luncheon and Theater.

A delightful affair of recent date was the luncheon at the Alexandria followed by a theater party given by Mrs. L. L. Ormsby, Saturday.

European Tour.

Mrs. George J. Isaacson and son, Waldo W., left Thursday morning for a four months' tour through the East and Europe.

Outing in Europe.

B. M. Jones will leave next month for New York, where he will join his friend, George Anderson and mother. Together the party will sail for a nine months' outing in Europe.

Cards and Dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren E. Wolfe of Fifth avenue entertained twenty guests recently with a card party and dance. Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe received their guests in Indian costumes. The fun was shared by Miss Ada Smith, Mrs. Rose Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Grove Ketchum, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bilcock, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Webb, Mr. and Mrs. W. Symondson, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Oatey, Mr. and Mrs. George Ramsey, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Vogel, Ben Fenton and James Manahan.

San Diego Visitor.

Mrs. William John Scholl of San Diego is the guest of relatives in this city.

Cousin's Betrothal.

Miss Ida D. Myers of No. 924 Sunbury street announces the engagement of her cousin, Miss Elizabeth E. Duncan, to Will H. Hillman of Oceanside. The news was told Saturday at a luncheon. Pink and white flowers adorned the table; places were marked with water-color sketches of Cupid. Small baskets filled with pink and white candies were given as favors. The guests were: Mrs. Margaret H. Reehl, Mrs. C. C. L. Leslie, Miss Harriet T. Myers, Miss Josephine Dunkelberger, Miss Florence Moote, Miss Mae Thompson, Miss Gertrude Gilbert, Miss Carrie Simeral, Miss Ruby Wilson, Miss Helen Reehl, Miss Gertrude Pinkiert, Miss Carol Duncan and Miss Lois Duncan.

Miss Slocum, Hostess.

Miss Mary L. Slocum recently entertained at her home in Hollywood in honor of Miss Pearl Correa, a bride-elect. The afternoon was in the nature of a linen and recipe shower. Luncheon was served from a table bright with pink roses and carnations. Tiny linen chests filled with orange blossoms marked places for Mrs. Harry K. Underwood, Mrs. Henry Garren, Mrs. Ralph R. Pearson, Mrs. J. Moodie, Mrs. Sidney Holman, Mrs. Dallas Jones, Mrs. E. W. Crowell, Mrs. L. W. Slocum, Miss Jean Wright, Miss Gertrude Robertson, Miss Jessie MacCabe, Miss Katherine MacCabe, Miss Winnie Kimbrell, Miss Edith Dorn, Miss Mayme Hooper, Miss Ruby Johnson, Miss Norma Whitney, Miss Helen Kleinsorge, Miss Muriel Smith, Miss Nellie Miller, Miss Stella Messenger, Miss Alma Priester, Miss Ruth Suman, Miss Mary Suman, Miss Vida Lovejoy, Miss Corinne Lovejoy and Miss Laura Eldredge.

Guests From Oakland.

Mrs. W. A. Sherman and daughter, Miss Mary Sherman of Oakland, have been passing the past week as guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. Beverley Keim at their new home, No. 811 Manhattan place. Mrs. Sherman and daughter are fascinated with Southern California and expect to remain here several weeks longer.

THE THEATER.

fateful beauty through its quick, vivid, warm and colorful scenes. She feels keenly, but only through the senses, never through the soul. She suffers and dies tragically, but only through the body.

Carmen is not an uncommon feminine type—though it is one that must ever remain incomprehensible to a mere man. Her lurid, Latin loves and hates and revenges have received many interpretations in the course of the years, but none, I venture to say, more triumphantly satisfactory than those Florence Reed is giving this week. Physically as well as temperamentally Miss Reed meets the part in all its subtle requirements, playing a Carmen of seductive and insolent audacity.

Lewis Stone gives good account of himself as the most fatuous of lovers. Corporal Jose, though I must admit there isn't much show of southern fire in his lovemaking. The lovemaking, indeed, is a trifle forced all around, even Carmen's abandon wearing a thin puritanic veil. So with Escamillo, the toreador, played by Robert Harrison, who looks and dresses magnificently, but who loves very half-heartedly. However, there is no doubt of the hate of Zara, as indicated by Adele Farrington, and no one can question the delicate sweetness and purity of Heleene Sullivan's Mercedes.

The incidental music of the play is from Bizet's opera—a golden thread to bind together the barbaric beauty of the play.

The best things on the programme at the Orpheum this week are Miss Elsie Faye's eyes. They are some eyes. Every time she got busy with them the boys applauded; the young girls giggled estatically; the old men sat up and arranged their cravats; and the elderly matrons raised their eyebrows in disapproval. There have been "expressive" eyes before, but when Miss Faye's eyes begin to "express," they make you feel as though you'd just had a cold bottle. Her eyes are used mostly while she sings, although they rarely behave themselves the whole time she is on the stage. Two young conventional clog dancers, with voices on the side, assist Elsie in her ocular demonstrations. But like most men, they are superfluous when a pretty girl is around.

Next to this young lady's passionate orbs, in point of interest, comes Miss Alcide Capitaine who, besides being a remarkable gymnast, possesses an almost ideal figure. Her feats in the air are as thrilling as they are graceful.

"The Ranchman," a one-act thriller of the woolly west, has for hero, Mr. Burr McIntosh. Now, let it be understood that McIntosh is no Mansfield, nor even a Robert Edeson. He is, however, a first-rate Burr McIntosh, and in the role of a Wyoming ranchman grinds coffee and chokes desperadoes as though he were used to it. The act is a swift-moving and vermilion combination of "rooned" ladies, horse pistols, terrible Indians, large sums of money, sky-hooting ponies, bowie knives, grave stones and bacon. What fond memories of the old Seaside Library the upholstered names of this sketch bring forth—Dick Rockwell, Ralph Drew, and Donald Fairchild! The lady who enacts the role of heroine and lands the noble ranchman, should of course, have been named Tess; but through some oversight on the part of George D. Parker, who confesses to having written the play, the damsel is named Barbara.

John Binns, Joe Binns, and Frank Binns combine horse play and music for twenty minutes or so. At the present sitting, I am unable to say which is the worse. Their horse play is of the slapstick variety. A syphon bottle which thoroughly bathes one of the performers seems to cause much merriment. The music, via the accordion, violin, cello and piano, also pleased those present.

George Mulien and Ed. Corelli admit on the programme that they are conversational comedy gymnasts. After watching the act, I find this statement to be true.

An educational moving picture completes a bill, which is for the most part of a commonplace nature and devoid of any particular merit, with the exception of one of the hold-overs.

Dr. Pauline, at Pantages, is a most amazing hypnotist. Despite his decidedly pony-ballet name, Dr. Pauline is a large man of great physical power and much mental magnetism. The performances through which he put twenty apparently sane and healthy men, yesterday afternoon, turned a reposeful audience into an assembly of howling dervishes. The "blood-test," the most striking physical demonstration, has been done here before, but never better. Putting a subject in a cataleptic state, Dr. Pauline "commands" the blood to leave an extended arm. It obeys, and presently the flesh is of wax-like pallor. The arm, to all appearances, is perfectly bloodless. By degrees, the hypnotist "commands" the sanguinary fluid to return, and slowly, as he indicates, the rosy color of life again overspreads the ghastly palm and fingers. This test is convincing. The humorous antics of Dr. Pauline's subjects amused the audience for the better part of an hour. Working them up to a state of most violent facial and bodily expression, Dr. Pauline would suddenly shout "Rigid" and leave them, like wonderful statues of fear, or joy, or mirth, for minutes at a time.

A Skin of Beauty is a Joy Forever.

DR. T. Felix Gouraud's Oriental Cream or Magical Beautifier.

Removes Tan, Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Rash, and Skin Diseases, and every blemish on beauty, and defies detection. It has stood the test of 40 years, and is so harmless we taste it to be sure it is properly made. Accept no counterfeit of similar name. Dr. L. A. Sayre said to a lady of the haut ton (a patient): "As you ladies will use them, I recommend 'Gouraud's Cream' as the least harmful of all the skin preparations." GIRL VICTIM OF FIEND.

Wilcox building, and police headquarters. Capt. Avery J. Bradish of the University station and Detective J. R. Ritch hurried to the scene in an automobile.

Upon the arrival of the physician she was put under the influence of a narcotic as her nerves were shattered. Dr. Joseph Kurtz, who resides close by, was called in, and he assisted Dr. Thorpe in dressing the girl's wounds.

There were six scalp wounds, a badly lacerated left ear and large contusions and bruises on the left side of the face.

According to Dr. Thorpe it is impossible to tell at present whether or not the skull is fractured.

On the way to his home, Hans Koebig met his mother getting off the car at Washington avenue and Toberman streets. When he informed her of the assault Mrs. Koebig became hysterical and was taken to her home with difficulty. She was in a serious condition last night.

Owing to the confusion, no member of the household could estimate the exact loss as a result of the robber's visit. It is believed that jewelry to the extent of several hundred dollars was stolen.

PLANNING TRIP.

Dr. Julius Koebig, a chemical and mining engineer with offices in the I. W. Hellman building, has been in the East. Miss Koebig was planning an early trip to Europe. She was expected to leave in a couple of weeks. It was her intention to take a course in music at a famous school in Germany. She is a talented singer and an accomplished pianist, and is very popular among members of the younger set. She is a graduate of the Polytechnic High School.

Miss Koebig was able to give the police an accurate description of her assailant.

He appeared to be about 30 years old and was 5 feet 6 or 7 inches in height, smooth-shaven, face round and full and of a medium ruddy complexion. His nose was slightly pointed, though not particularly noticeable in that peculiarity. His hair was light brown and neither thick nor thin. His eyes were deep blue. He was very well-dressed in a blue suit, white shirt and collar, blue four-in-hand tie with white dots. His hat was of the soft black variety and, though somewhat of the slouch variety, was neat and appeared to have been well-brushed.

Throughout the entire hour and a half he was in the house he threatened her with his gun, cursed and used the roughest and coarsest language.

Whenever she raised herself limply to make what resistance she could he pounded upon her and beat her unmercifully with the handle of his pistol.

USED LOUD TONE.

Last night at home, under the care of a physician who administered medicines and stimulants from time to time to tide her over the effects of the shock until her system could rally, the young woman moaned feebly. Not until this morning will it be possible to learn how brutally he cut and beat her, for her body was so covered with bruises that the physician could not determine how deep they had penetrated her body.

Though the fiend compelled her to be quiet, he did not seem to consider it necessary to moderate his voice, and at times he spoke in tones that would have probably been heard on the street had any persons chanced to pass at the right moment.

RUN OVER BY AUTO.

ORANGE, April 24.—Henry Appel, son of Robert Appel of North Cambridge street, today is nursing bruises and cuts received yesterday when he was run over by an automobile. Young Appel and other boys were returning from the Orange County Park on bicycles. Appel was circling A. O. Sutton's wagon on a grade, when an automobile owned by a rancher of Tustin named Robinson, came up behind him, struck him and knocked him down.

Appel was dragged from beneath the car. His severest cut measures three inches in length. It is on the right side of his head.

A rush to the new diamond fields in the western Transvaal section of South Africa is on. The new fields, called the Bloemhof, already have a population of 300 whites.

Malden Lane importers of diamonds have just learned of the finding of a diamond weighing 244 karats, in Johannesburg, South Africa. It will rank as one of the half dozen largest and most valuable jewels in the world.

When He Courted You

He didn't complain if you were a little despondent or irritable at times. Now he does. He's the same man. He didn't understand then. He doesn't now. Then he thought it was caprice and liked it. Now he thinks it is caprice and doesn't like it. But now he's busy getting money.

If he realized the full truth he would be more than anxious to have the wife he loves take the right remedy to restore her to true womanly health. Most men don't know that when a woman is weak, nervous, irritable and despondent, there is invariably something radically wrong with the delicate feminine organs with which her entire physique is in sensitive sympathy.

There is one, and just one remedy, tried and proven, that will put things right when the feminine organism is weak or diseased. It is

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This medicine restores perfect health to the weakened organs, and makes them strong.

It makes wifehood happy, and motherhood easy. It makes child-birth short and almost painless. It helps to make real "new women." An honest druggist won't urge upon you a substitute.

This "Favorite Prescription" is a pure glyceric extract of native medicinal roots and contains no alcohol, injurious or habit-forming drugs. A full list of its ingredients printed on its outside wrapper and attested as full and correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and strengthen Stomach, Liver and Bowels. Easy to take as candy.

TOZER SLATED TO PITCH GAME.

Berry Says He Is Ready if Dillon Wants Him.

Angels to Be Strengthened Fully One-Third.

Hogan's Fighting Blood Is at Fever Heat.

BY W. H. LEONARD.

Pitcher "Bill" Tozer, who was shot in both shoulders in the training camp at Murrietta Springs, several weeks ago, is slated to pitch the opening game for Los Angeles against Vernon, tomorrow, when the Angels arrive after a long northern trip.

Tozer has been working out in secret every day and last night President Henry Berry pronounced him fit to step into the box right away and he will turn him over to Manager Dillon to take his regular turn on the mound from now on.

"Tozer is working fine," said Berry, "and although I do not want to interfere with Dillon in the handling of the team, I can say that the big fellow is ready to pitch the opening game if Dillon calls for him. We need help in the box right now, and I will not be surprised to see Tozer called upon Wednesday."

Tozer's return to the game comes as a big surprise. Although he was not seriously injured it was believed that the gunshot wounds in his shoulders and arm would prevent him from pitching for many weeks yet. However, Tozer says the wounds do not pain him and that he has worked into full control of the muscles in his secret trials at the ball park.

FINAL WORKOUT.

The big pitcher will give his arm a final workout this morning at Washington Park about 11 o'clock, and if he feels all right after a stiff trial and a good rubdown, he will be the happiest man in the baseball business. Immediately after the shooting Tozer became convinced that his salary wing was put "on the bum" for good, and that he would never pitch again. His complete recovery, therefore, gives him renewed confidence and it is likely that he will be a better boxman than ever and will steady down to excellent twirling for many years to come.

Berry was highly elated last night and says that in two weeks time the team will be 35 per cent. stronger than it was this last week in Portland.

Not only will Tozer be back in the game, but Ivan Howard, who has been so sadly missed in the hitting, is to get into the first game and play left field. His shoulder blade was slightly fractured, but the break has completely mended and he is in tip-top shape. Then Pitcher Agnew is in condition to pitch, and Curtis Bernard will be ready to get out into right field.

The Angels will present a much changed line-up when they trot out onto the field tomorrow afternoon. It is probable that Daley will be put back at the top of the batting list, where he was all last season. He has been hitting fourth because clean-up hitters have been lacking.

BATTING ORDER.

Bernard probably will bat second. A place is to be made for Moore, and as he has been hitting good he probably will bat third. Then it will be either Dillon or Howard for fourth, with Akin next, then Delmas, and so on.

Berry was positive last night that Moore would be given some kind of a regular berth, although he was not certain where Dillon would place him. It need not surprise the fans in the least to see Delmas back at short and Moore on second. This of course, would bench Metzger, who, Berry says, has been entirely satisfactory. However, it is likely that Metzger and Moore will divide infield honors. Whenever an outfield position is vacant Moore will fill it and Metzger will play infield; whenever the outfield is full Moore may be used infield.

Berry was asked if he would strengthen the team by getting new players after the disastrous week at Portland.

"I don't want any new men," he replied. "With the changed line-up this week and with the sick men coming around all right we have as strong a team as any. A bad start is nothing if we have good luck afterwards. With the addition of Tozer and Agnew on the pitching staff, and with Howard, Bernard, and Grindle ready to

ENTRIES ARE TO CLOSE AT MIDNIGHT FOR "THE TIMES" TO LAKESIDE TOUR.

Entries for "The Times" tour to Lakeside are to close tonight at midnight. Entries placed in the mail at or before midnight tonight will be considered as having been filed in time. On Wednesday a complete list of the cars and drivers will be given in the order in which the machines will be started. The tour must be limited to thirty-five cars. This has been positively decided upon by prominent automobile dealers. Officials who are to handle the tour realize the task is big and the contest will be handled carefully by experts.

This tour will be held under the sanction of the Automobile Association of America. Attorney Edward O. Kuster will drive his Stoddard-Dayton and act as representative of the Contest Board. W. E. Bush, the technical committeeman, will drive his Pierce-Arrow. High and low-powered cars are entered. The leading machines and the most stylish 1911 cars are to be started from in front of The Times office Friday, May 5. The first day's run will be to Riverside, a distance of 65 miles. The second day's run will be to Lakeside, 117 miles. The final day will be a run of 173 miles, the most strenuous ever outlined for any automobile tour ever held on the Pacific Coast.

When the full list of entries is received the order of the tour will be arranged by Referee Frank Garbutt and the cars will be assigned to their places in the line. The two divisions, the touring-car and roadster class, and possibly a third division will be arranged. The observers are being appointed by the entrants. Every autoist who has entered a car must name the observers. The chief observer, Guy West, will then arrange the placing of these different observers on the several cars.

Two handsome trophies have been offered. The Times-to-Lakeside cup is to be given to the car winning the touring-car division. This is a trophy well worth having and will represent a run that is strenuous and that will test the powers of the highest grade motor made. The Times Eagle trophy will be given for the roadster division. This is also a splendid valuable prize and will be awarded to the owner of the car making the best score in the second division.

BY BERT C. SMITH.

MOTOR men all over Southern California are showing great interest in The Times to Lakeside automobile endurance run. The entry list already is large and by tonight will be much larger. The tour management has undertaken a task that is severe. An effort is being made to secure entries from almost every agency represented in this city.

This does not mean that only one car of each make will be started, but it does mean that the tour will be the largest as far as variety is concerned that was ever held in the West. As the list grows the elimination contest is on in earnest.

There has been a response which is flattering to the call and the cars are being lined up preparatory to the start a week from Friday. The route has been chosen carefully. It will mean something to complete this tour with a perfect score. The roads are in fair shape to Riverside. After that they are not so good, that last day's run will be a real run.

Automobile dealers of this city have swung in line in earnest. They agree that the tour will be important and will mean much to the automobile industry. Every dealer who can spare the time will be on the tour with a car.

Don Lee was one of the first to take advantage of this opportunity to show the Cadillac. He is in Los Angeles now and if possible will arrange to join the tourers on the drive to Lakeside and back. Don is one of the biggest boosters in the game and he has as much to do as any man who is now connected with the industry.

THE PATHFINDER.

The Cadillac "Pathfinder," will be driven by George Adair. It will be a contestant in the tour and Adair will make a strenuous effort to complete the trip with a perfect score. He expects to win.

Ralph Hamlin has entered a Franklin touring car. He will drive the air-cooled model himself. This means that the tour will have one of the big racing drivers as a pilot for one of the interesting entries. Hamlin will be accompanied by his family and will enter to win the handsome cup.

THOSE OUTLAWS.

One of the peculiar situations arose yesterday when E. Roger Stearns offered to enter a Velie and a Ford. The matter has been put up to S. M. Butler, chairman of the contest board and the entry is held until a decision is received from the A.A.A. chief.

Stearns is an outlaw. Just how the A.A.A. will regard the matter is problematical. The tour is to be conducted strictly according to the rules outlined by the contest board. Kuster's word must be law. If Stearns is an outlaw, he cannot enter a car and he cannot drive.

The situation has been put to Chairman Butler, fairly and if Stearns is reinstated or at least granted probation during the four days of the tour, the Ford and Velie man will start and will make a hard fight for The Times trophies.

There will be no hold-ups on The Times tour. This has been looked after carefully and you will not pay higher than 25 cents a gallon for gasoline anywhere. The rates along the line are also most interesting. The rates at the Glenwood Inn will satisfy everybody I'm sure. The rates at the Lakeside also are good.

At the Glenwood Frank Miller will keep up his reputation as an entertainer. The cars will be parked in the Glenwood Inn, under the supervision of Charles Dundas. Almost every car should finish at Riverside with a perfect score.

At Lakeside Manager Walter Hempel will provide the amusement. He will have the control officials ready and the cars will be parked in an inclosed space under the eye of watchful officials. The rest on Sunday will be spent in a way that will be enjoyable. There will be more about this later.

VENICE GAMES FOR THE TOTS.

Merry-go-Rounds for the Shut-in Kidlets.

More Automobiles Donated for May Day.

Letters of Instruction to Be Sent Out.

By the generosity of the Abbott Kinney Company, the concessions—the merry-go-rounds and the coasters and the baby railroads—at Venice will be turned over, free of charge, to the little shut-in children who will be the guests of the automobile owners of Los Angeles on May Day.

"Send them all down here," said the manager of the company yesterday, "There can't be too many to suit us. We have all kinds of fascinating things down here that were made on purpose to fill little folks brim full of joy. I guess they have never been put to better use since they were first invented than they will be on May Day.

"We want them so much that we will send some automobiles for them ourselves, if you don't have enough.

"If there are any little children who have not seen the Big Pacific Ocean, paddled in the surf and ploughed in its sands, it's high time they did. This company will do everything in its power to give these shut-in children a time that they will never forget as long as they live."

Several more automobiles were offered yesterday for the joy ride.

Mrs. Joseph Simons, wife of the well-known Democratic leader, telephoned that her seven-passenger Franklin car with a driver (and it is to be hoped herself) will be on hand for the May Day party.

Dr. C. E. Quick of No. 635½ South Hill street telephones that he will take four in his car.

Thomas Rapp telephones that he can take six children in his car and will be delighted to drive the car himself.

P. H. Eigholz of No. 3926 Ingraham street, telephones that he can carry four children.

GIRL SWIMMING CHAMP PLANS ENDURANCE TEST.

MABEL LAWSON, the champion girl long distance swimmer of Southern California, is in active training for an attempt to double her own record.

Last summer she swam from Dead Man's Island to Long Beach, seven miles, part of the way against the current. The proposed route for this, the longest attempted swim by a woman in local waters, is from the San Pedro breakwater to Long Beach.

So far, Mabel expects to make the trip accompanied only by a launch, but if any fair swimmist thinks she can stay with Mabel, let her challenge.

She is a pretty girl, stunningly healthy.

The date of the big swim will be chosen soon.

In the meantime here is what Mabel is doing in preparation:

"I swim every day now in the ocean, mostly at Redondo. I increase the distance each day. For weeks while the surf was too rough I practiced at Bimini, putting in a half mile steady swimming daily.

"Now I want the hardening benefit of the cold water.

"I cut out all stimulants during training for a long swim. With me that means merely tea and coffee. But I don't make much change on my eating. I keep to simple food. Before the long swim I shall eat lightly for two or three days. Some of the girls think potatoes are especially heavy and make you slow if eaten before a race. Endurance is more important to me than speed in my stunt, though.

"I wear a man's bathing suit for my record swims, but an ordinary girl's suit for beach practice."

MAT MEN SEEK NO QUARTER.

DESIRE LIMIT TO BE REMOVED IN 'VARSITY BOUTS.

Ask That A.A.U. Rules Be Laid Aside and That Decision Be Given Best Two Out of Three Falls. Coach Cromwell Is Meditating. Preliminaries in Three Weeks.

Amateur Athletic Union wrestling rules are to be laid aside at the University of Southern California and the bouts in the annual tournament which is to be pulled off next month are to be decided by best two out of three falls with no time limit, if Coach Cromwell grants the petition that has been forwarded to him from the 'varsity wrestlers.

The A.A.U. rules provide for six minute rounds with a decision at the end of the third bout if no fall has been secured. In many of the matches in previous years the decision has been necessary to decide the winner.

The athletes figure that this system does not always do them justice as in most cases the only standard for giving the decision is aggressiveness. Some of the best wrestlers at the school use a defensive system of tactics so that when aggressiveness is the standard they have little chance.

Dean Cromwell in referring to the matter states that he does not favor the change. He said the tendency would be too much toward professional wrestling if the contestants were allowed to stay on the mat until a fall was secured regardless of time. Also, that few of the men would be able to stand the long strain that would be necessary to decide the winner in some cases.

An unusually large number of mat artists have signed up for the bouts this year. James Coykendall, the 'varsity lightweight champion, who has been placed in charge of the annual tournament, says that there will be more contestants than in any previous tourney. A featherweight class has been added to accommodate several wrestlers who are too light to go in the lightweight division with any chance of success.

Preliminary contests are to be pulled off in three weeks and the challenge matches will come a week later. The preliminary contests will be in the form of elimination bouts to decide which wrestler in each weight shall have the privilege of challenging the present school champion in the finals.

Unusual popularity is attending the mat game in all the Southern California colleges at present. Occidental athletes are getting in form for a tourney that is to be held at the Tiger school within the next month. So far all efforts to arrange intercollegiate matches have been unsuccessful but it seems likely from the present interest in this form of sport that there is likely to be amateur bouts between the colleges within a year or two.

PRESIDENT IS MATCHED TO PLAY CHICK EVANS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, April 24.—A golf match which many persons would travel miles to witness is scheduled for next Friday at Chevy Chase Club links. President Taft has issued a challenge to "Chick" Evans, the western open champion, who is to play in the English tourney.

Maj. Archibald Butt, military aide to the President, is given credit for having arranged the match.

The President has met cracks in his time and some of them felt it incumbent upon them to play indifferent golf, driving into bunkers and doing other things not expected of experts.

The President is a good sportsman and an ardent golf player, who asks no quarter and gives none.

The match is tentative in that the President, who will be in New York next Wednesday and Thursday, is uncertain what engagements he will have for Friday morning.

Getting Ready.

KILBANE DOES INITIAL WORK.

Fighter Looks More Like Bank Clerk Than Pug.

Limits First Session of Training to Twenty Minutes.

Shows Lot of Speed in Boxing With His Manager.

BY J. ALEX SLOAN.

The Los Angeles fight fans got their first glimpse of Johnny Kilbane, the great little Cleveland fighter, at Jack Doyle's yesterday, where he began training for the twenty-round battle with Joe Rivers, the Mexican, scheduled to take place at Vernon on May 6.

The long ride on the train from the East and the change in climate caused Kilbane to go slow in his first workout. The initial training session was limited to twenty minutes of boxing and rope skipping.

The large crowd of fight fans that collected at Doyle's to see the Cleveland lad start shaping himself for Rivers were given a surprise when he put in his appearance. He looked more like a prosperous bank clerk than a veteran of a score of great battles, including a ten-round contest with Abe Attell. And when he donned his training togs he was not unlike a college runner in appearance. He bears none of the marks that are usually found on the visage of a ring opponent, and apparently was down to fighting weight before training even starts.

It was hard to take Kilbane seriously as a fighter until he donned the gloves, then he showed why he had been able to retain his good looks, in very few seconds. He is as fast as any fighter in the business today, and cleverness will win for him, he ought to stand a mighty good chance against Joe Rivers when the two boys meet.

In sturdiness and in hitting power Rivers looks to have it on Kilbane, at the very start, but the two weeks that intervene may bring about changes in both training camps.

Everyone that went to Vernon yesterday came away from there a friend of Kilbane's. The lad is very affable and good natured and always a gentleman. He talks English a lot better than most fighters and isn't afraid to meet anyone and discuss other subjects than fighting.

When I asked him why he hadn't taken advantage of yesterday and worked out, he replied, "I am never anxious to start in to work on Sunday, and I would rather never do any training on that day." His manager informed me that he was a devout church man and never failed to attend mass every Sunday morning. Yesterday Johnny went to the Cathedral.

Jimmy Dunn, a couple of years ago one of the greatest featherweight boxers in the country, is manager of Kilbane and yesterday he donned training togs and led Johnny through the stunts. He also did the boxing with him and probably will continue to do the bulk of the glove work until the day of the fight. Dunn doesn't believe in taking too many chances with Kilbane's hands.

It is a little too early yet to go into a comparison of the fighting methods of Kilbane and Rivers, as it will be necessary to see a lot more of the Cleveland boy before conclusions can be reached regarding the outcome of the battle May 6.

This much can be said, however, that Uncle Tom McCarey has got the two best featherweights in the world today together and when the winner steps out of the ring he will know he has been in a fight.

BIG JIM TALKS.

"NEVER AGAIN," SAYS JEFF.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] James J. Jeffries is in New York and probably will witness the Hogan-Wolgast fight here Wednesday night.

"Will you ever ever fight again?" Jeffries was asked.

"Never," said the big fellow. Jeffries looks well and weighs 240 pounds. This is his first visit to New York since the agreement to fight Jack Johnson was made.

Golden Fish Transact Business.

Friday evening, the members of the Order of the Golden Fish, a recently organized order, held a business meeting at which a large number of "fish" were present. A constitution was adopted and other business necessary for permanent organization transacted. The order will make application for a charter. A large number of initiates were elevated to the rank of Minnow and the whole affair was conducted in such manner as to inspire enthusiasm. The matter of applications for seines from other cities was deferred. Los Angeles Aquarium, No. 1, is the mother aquarium and the constitution provides that the officers of that aquarium shall constitute the supreme school. The officers were elected and there at once entered upon the performance of their duties. J. W. Salter is the Supreme Sturgeon, James Holden, Supreme Cod, and William Monroe, Supreme Keeper of the Fin. The prospects are bright for the organization. The committee on swims reported that next Sunday a great swim would be held at one of the beach resorts.

Both Ad Wolgast, the champion, and "One-Round" Hogan have completed their hard work for their battle and Wednesday night, when they clash in New York, they will be in good condition as two fighters can be. Wolgast is the favorite but Hogan is just as confident as the little champion and he says if he doesn't win he will quit the game forever. However, the chances are that he doesn't mean what he says and that most of his friends will consider him lucky if he gets as good as an even break with the Dutchman.

In the East Wolgast is not taken very too seriously as a lightweight champion and if he doesn't either knock Hogan out or win so decisively on points, he will not get any more of the big purses he has been hauling down. I look to see him win over Hogan, but it will be a tough fight from start to finish.

Hogan is built like Wolgast and has about as hard a punch but he is not as clever as Ad, nor does he know as much about the game as the little German.

RESULTS OF MAJOR LEAGUE GAMES.

JACK LIVELY WINS OVER THE BROWNS.

Great Rally in the Ninth Gives the Tigers Victory—Krapp Defeats Chicago, Allowing But Five Hits. Battle of Southpaws at Boston Gives Plank the Honors—Johnson Walloped by New York.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DETROIT, April 24.—Baseball luck favored Detroit today and St. Louis, after an exciting rally, in the ninth was defeated.

An unique play occuring in the eighth, lessened St. Louis's chances of victory. With Austin on second, Murray on first and nobody out, La Porte lifted an infield which Moriarity dropped. Austin and Murray, apparently confused, left their bases and Moriarity threw the ball to Bush, who retired both men unassisted. Score:

St. Louis, 6; hits, 10; errors, 5.
Detroit, 7; hits, 4; errors, 2.
Batteries—Hamilton and Clark; Lively and Stanage.

SLUGGING GAME.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

BOSTON, April 24.—In a heavy slugging game, Philadelphia struck winning form today, defeating Boston, 8 to 1. The local team barely escaped a shut out. Score:

Boston, 1; hits, 5; errors, 1.
Philadelphia, 5; hits, 12; errors, 0.
Batteries—Karger and Carrigan; Plank and Thomas.

KRAPP THE CANDY.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, April 24.—Opportune hitting, coupled with bases on balls and errors, gave Cleveland today's game, 5 to 2. Score:

Chicago, 2; hits, 5; errors, 4.
Cleveland, 5; hits, 7; errors, 2.
Batteries—Lange, Scott and Payne; Krapp and Smith.

OUT OF TRAINING.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, April 24.—The New York Americans hit Walter Johnson freely today and took a loosely played but exciting game from Washington, five to three. Lynch and Wilkinson, players from California, reported to Manager Chase today. Score:

Washington, 3; hits, 6; errors, 3.
New York, 5; hits, 11; errors, 1.
Batteries—Johnson and Ainsmith; Quinn, Caldwell and Sweeney, Blair.

CINCINNATI DEFEATS CHANCE'S CUBS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CINCINNATI, April 24.—A batting rally in the eighth inning gave Cincinnati four runs and allowed them to win the game with Chicago, 7 to 4.

Burns was knocked out early in the game and Suggs and Pfeister had about equal honors up to the eighth. The fielding was sensational. Score:

Chicago, 4; hits, 10; errors, 2.
Cincinnati, 7; hits, 8; errors, 2.
Batteries—Pfeister and Archer; Burns, Suggs and Clarke.
Umpires—Brennan and O'Day.

ROWAN BEATS GIANTS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—New York lost today's game here by 4 to 1. Philadelphia's victory was due to bunching hits in the first and third innings, while Titus made a home run in the eighth. Score:

New York, 1; hits, 9; errors, 1.
Philadelphia, 4; hits, 6; errors, 0.
Batteries—Wiltes and Myers; Rowan and Dooin.
Umpires—Johnstone and Eason.

TWO HOME RUNS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

ST. LOUIS, April 24.—A single, a sacrifice and an error in the eleventh helped St. Louis to defeat Pittsburgh in the opening game of the series, 6 to 5. Konetchy and Leach hit for home runs. Score:

Pittsburgh, 5; hits, 11; errors, 3.
St. Louis, 6; hits, 13; errors, 2.
Batteries—Leifield and Gibson; Sallee, Laudermilk, Geyer and Bresnahan, Bliss.
Umpires—Rigler and Finnerman.

PITCHERS ARE WILD.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

BROOKLYN, April 24.—Brooklyn outhit Boston today but was beaten, 3 to 0, through the wildness of pitchers. The visitors' run was forced over the plate in the seventh by Schardt who passed three men in a row after Goode had singled. There was not a strike out in the game. Score:

Boston, 3; hits, 4; errors, 0.
Brooklyn, 0; hits, 6; errors, 1.
Batteries—Pfeffer and Graham; Schardt, Ryan and Bergen, Erwin.
Umpires—Klem and Dooyle.

Fight in Open.

JIMMY COFFROTH LEASES BLOT'S OPEN-AIR ARENA FOR BIG BOUTS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Jimmy Coffroth's two future matches—the one between Frankie Burns and Ad Wolgast, and the other between the winner of the first named and Owen Moran Will be open-air affairs. Coffroth closed a deal for the lease of the property known as Blot's Arena at Eighth and Howard streets today.

With an arena secured for an outdoor bout, Coffroth has fixed Saturday afternoon, May 27, as the date on which Wolgast and Burns will do battle for twenty rounds.

It is not generally known, but both lightweights, at the time of signing for their May match, also signed for the winner to meet Owen Moran.

"I am doing something for which I may be criticised," said Jack Perkins, when on behalf of Burns he signed agreeing to box Moran in case the Oaklander should win from Wolgast. It will seem a strange thing, if Burns should win the championship, to be fighting again six weeks later. But I am so sure of Burns and his ability to beat Moran that I don't think we will be taking any chances. Wolgast looks the tough one of the pair to me, and, while I think that Moran might have a look-in as far as a decision is concerned with Wolgast, I don't think the Britisher would stand up long against my boy."

Perkins and Burns left today for Boyes Springs, where they will remain for ten days or two weeks. Perkins will probably bring Burns to San Francisco to see the McCarthy-Smith match on Friday night and then get back to the springs in a hurry.

Coffroth also received the following message from Tom Jones today:

"Wolgast's bout with 'One-Round' Hogan has been set for April 26. We will leave for California on the 27th and will post forfeit by wire. Everything lovely."

Scared Turfmen.

MOSES OF THE RACE TRACK.

Tailor-Turfman Has a Plan to Save Sport.

John Condon and Ed. Bradley Have Inspiration.

Bad Season at Jamestown. Bookies Stuck.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With most of the country's race tracks growing up to weeds there is a movement on foot to save Chicago's thoroughbred courses from a like fate.

Edward R. Bradley has been picked as the Moses of the race track people and the tailor-turfman has a plan to renew the "sport of kings" provided everybody is willing, which, as has been discovered many times before, is not a "cinch."

Mr. Bradley has had a talk with John Condon, owner of the Harlem Race Track, and inside of two weeks the blind turfmen will know all about it, so he said tonight.

It is Bradley's intention to combine all the local tracks to such an extent that he can get the use of any, or all as soon as he is ready to "show" the home folk.

Mr. Condon said that Mr. Bradley had discussed the plans with him, but that they were not in shape to make them public at present.

Mr. Bradley will be back from the East soon, and will lay the whole scheme before Condon and Tom Carey, the latter owner of the Hawthorne Race Track.

The plans of Mr. Bradley call for either oral betting or pari-mutuels. He had not made up his mind which to spring before he left for the East.

Although the promoters are reticent, it was learned that they did not expect to start without opposition. However, it is intended to rush a test case on either method of betting adopted into the courts right after the start, and from that on "take their chances."

The promoters feel that they can afford to take big chances on account of the "fat pickings" certain to accrue from the venture, as in the past Chicago was regarded as one of the best turf centers in the country.

It was claimed today that the promoters are pretty sure of their ground.

RAN LIKE TRAINED GEESE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

JAMESTOWN (Va.) April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Racing at the Jamestown track will close Wednesday, "Bob" Levy, the manager, has had a rough and uncertain road to travel from the beginning. What with Gov. Mann's instructions to Norfolk officials, Sydney Smith's continual hammering in the courts and out, and the abominable weather, the management has had a lovely time.

Even the last few days, when the legal atmosphere had cleared the sky, thunder, lightning and rain did much to discourage the crowds that would have gone to the course. Three more days, however, and the gates will be closed until October.

"A racing bill is not absolutely necessary here," said one official today. "Patrons of racing are well pleased with the way the sport is being carried on here.

play, we have the best of prospects, and with two weeks to work up the proper teamwork, we will be right up at the top. I have every confidence in Dillon's ability to handle the situation satisfactorily."

SPITS ON HIS HANDS.

Manager Hogan of the Vernon team is not at all worried over the added strength of the Los Angeles team.

"We have struck our stride, now," said he last night, "and they will have to play some to stay with us. Like all other teams we had our slump but we have passed through the crisis, and now look out. We showed we could play good ball by taking six out of seven from Oakland last week. We had our troubles with the umpire up North and that affected us.

"I think I have shown this last week that my way of playing ball games is the best for the Vernon team, and when the umpires once make up their minds to let us alone they will find we do not trouble them any more than do other clubs. I believe President Graham sees that neither I nor my players mean to make unnecessary trouble for the indicator men, and has issued orders to give us a chance to make good.

"Not once in the series with Oakland did I have trouble worth speaking of with Finney, and I will have to say that he has been making no effort to hand us anything. There is no reason why we should not get along all season if he does as well as he did this week. I am determined, however, that I will fight my games to the finish. When they had me forced to take a back seat we lost heavily to San Francisco; when I got out and fought for my games with Oakland, we won. The fans can judge for themselves which is the best way.

"Let Los Angeles come on with the best Berry and Dillon can dig up. We are ready for them and only hope they will make the fighting worth while."

The Los Angeles team is to arrive in Los Angeles tonight from San Francisco, where they stopped over night in the trip from Portland. They reached the Bay City last night at 10:30 o'clock, too late to catch a train to come to Los Angeles for the game today.

Arrest of Suspects.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24.—Accused of betting during the Coast League baseball game, four men were arrested at Recreation Park here yesterday. They gave the names of Joseph Martin, Joseph Pearson, C. W. Smith and James Fogarty. The managers of the local games say an effort is being made to institute organized gambling at the grounds and they are trying to defeat the gamblers' plans.

Some Sprint.

TWENTY-FOUR-HOUR RELAY.

MOONLIGHT AND LOW TIDE WILL HELP RUNNERS.

Y.M.C.A. Boys to Carry Message From Santa Barbara to Redlands, Running the Entire Distance. Race Will Last Through Day and Night—Autos to Follow Racers.

Seven hundred boys are to compete in the second annual Y.M.C.A. Santa Barbara to Redlands relay race which is to be held May 12 and 13, and the committee in charge is arranging the running schedule so that the boys may clip an hour or two off the time of 24h., 37m., which was made last year.

The runners last year made much faster time than had been expected and were held up at several points because the advance racers had not been placed in their positions. As that was the first race of this kind to be held on the Coast, those in charge had no way of knowing exactly what time would be made. They allowed a trifle too much for each contestant.

The first sprinter is to leave Santa Barbara at 7:30 p.m. May 12. He will carry a small tube containing a message from Mayor Lloyd of Santa Barbara to Mayor Strait in Redlands.

Quarter-mile laps will be run through the towns along the route, but on the country stretches, each sprinter will go a mile. The first few miles are to be run on the beach. The start of the race is arranged at low tide. Thus the boys can avoid several miles of bad road and mountain grades that would have to be conquered if they stuck to the road.

There will be a full moon on the night of the race so that the long line will be on the move all night. At the Ventura county line the last Santa Barbara runner will touch off a Ventura runner. Each county will supply its own carriers.

According to the schedule which has been arranged, the tube will reach Los Angeles at 7 a.m., May 13. The runners from the local association will take the message from the Hollywood lads just beyond the Hill-street tunnel. The Long Beach lads are to take up the race between Los Angeles and the ocean.

The Redlands Association is arranging for a banquet to be held at the close of the race which will probably be near 6 o'clock in the evening.

Clyde Doyle, the Long Beach Y.M.C.A. secretary, who is chairman of the Relay Committee, has been over the course in an automobile. He stated that the roads are in very poor condition in some places but that they will be easily passable before the date of the contest. H. D. Cross, secretary of the Triangle Department of the Los Angeles association, and Howard Gaines of the San Bernardino county organization, are the other members of the committee.

The success which attended the long race last year has added much to the enthusiasm with which the boys are preparing for the coming event. Only lads from 12 to 18 1-2 years are eligible.

LAYING OUT ROUTE.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Pathfinding car of the Glidden Reciprocity tour started from here today for Ottawa to lay out the route for the annual automobile tour. President Taft was to have given the starting signal at the White House, but pressing business prevented.

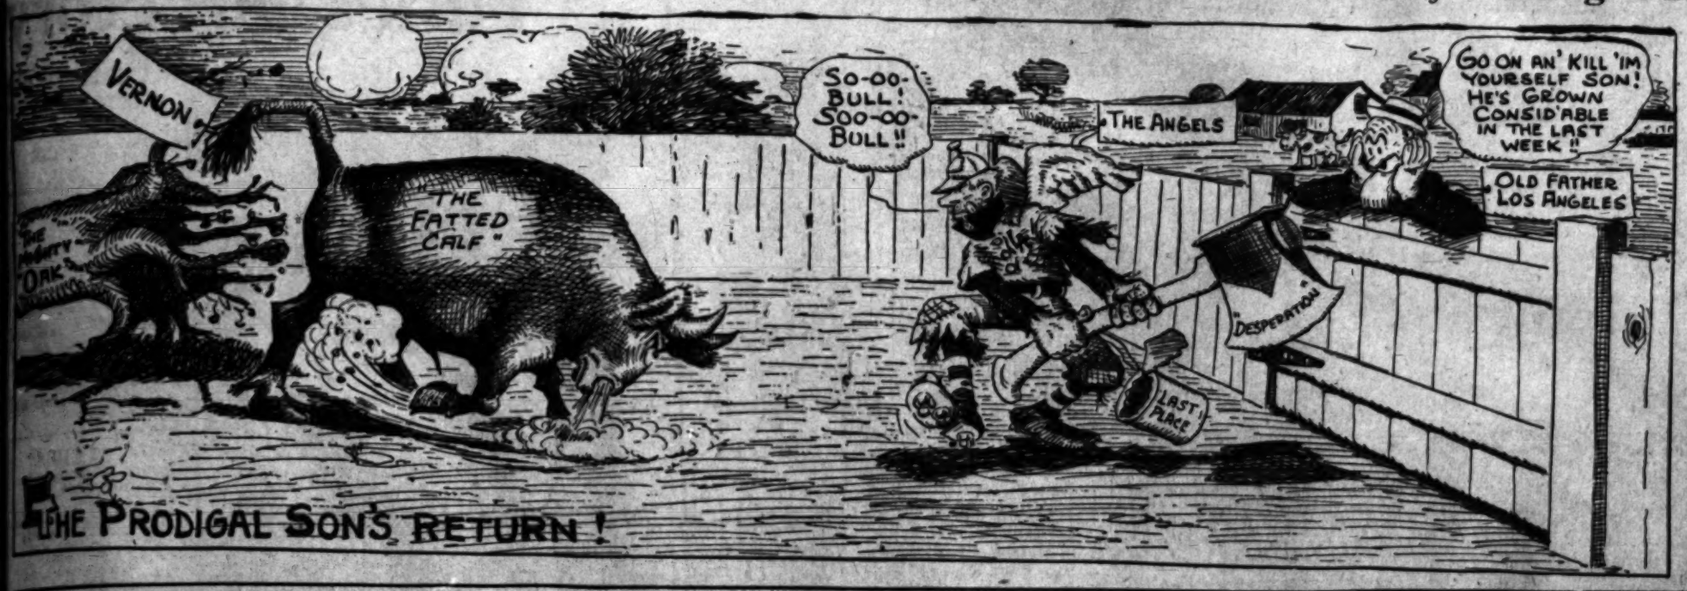
The Angels Have Returned But Mr. Wad Says That the "Fatted Calf" Thing is All "Bull"!



WHERE WE GET OFF.

BY J. ALEX. SLOAN.

When a world's championship bout is announced, how often does the fight fan ask who the second will be? Yet in almost half the great battles that have been fought the seconds have played a very important part and instance after instance is recorded in ring history where the tide of the battle was changed by the generalship of a smart second.

Next to having a fighter in condition for battle the manager must see to having the right kind of a second. To the spectators collected around the ringside the men who climb into the corner with a contestant are often looked upon as common mortals seeking the limelight and the honor of being with the champion or champion-to-be while in action. But this is not the case in many instances good money has been paid by fighters to have men behind them who know just what to do when a crisis develops.

In all prize-fighter manager, who handled several of the greatest fighters in the annals of the squared ring, says that a chief second in the time of battle plays as important a part in victory as does the jockey who rides the thoroughbred and commands him to go faster and faster as the contest progresses, until he crosses the wire a winner.

I believe the most remarkable instance on record of a fighter saving his own or for his man was when Bob Fitzsimmons fought Peter Maher at New Orleans away back in the early 90's. There is no question but that Maher, the Irishman whipped Fitzsimmons fairly and should have been given the victory, but Alex Greggains saved the day for the Cornishman. And how he did it is told in the following words of what happened in that fight:

"Twice during the fight Jeffries came to his corner discouraged. The first time he told me that Sharkey was using every unfair means known to win and I told him to do the same thing. The second time the big fellow lost heart was around the eighth or ninth round, and he whispered to me, 'No use, Tommy. No matter where I hit or how I hit him I can't stop him.' But I gave some more advice and told him to try some of the tricks I had taught him. Well he tried and immediately became encouraged and went through the battle and won."

When Tom Sharkey fought Gus Ruhlin, Ryan was also in the sailor's corner, but the story he tells of what happened that night is laughable. Sharkey just couldn't listen to any advice given him and when Ruhlin started to peg him from a distance Tom lost his head. He admitted afterwards that he could easily have whipped Ruhlin had he listened to Ryan's advice.

Jack Dempsey was another great man in the corner of a fighter. He had had many experiences with seconds and some of the best, by the way, that ever lived and he could appreciate the advice given him between rounds in a corner.

Dempsey's work behind Frank Glover saved that fighter a whipping at the hands of Tom Chandler away back in the pioneer days of battling in Chicago. Near the end of a round Chandler landed a terrific right hook to the jaw of Glover and Dempsey, who was watching the time closely, climbed into the ring and picked his man up and pulled him to the corner, declaring that the round would have been over before ten could have been counted, if the referee had continued. The fact was that about fifteen seconds remained, but Dempsey's actions saved the day for his man and in the next round Glover knocked Chandler out.

Of the present day fighters Ad Wolgast, the world's champion lightweight, is probably the best taken care of when engaged in battle. Tom Jones, who handles the little Dutchman, knows the character of Ad better than even his parents and he directs his fighting and at the same time sees that Wolgast makes no fatal mistakes.

The chief second becomes an ornament in the ring when a fighter insists on doing what he thinks best. Among the present day school of fighters the second has grown less and less important, because the fighter has grown more and more pig-headed.

Had "One-Round" Hogan been handled properly in the fight with Frankie Burns at San Francisco a couple of months ago he would have won. At least many of the fight critics and old ring fans present at that battle thought so. I heard many of Hogan's friends yelling advice at him and his seconds, but he kept on trying to do just what was wrong. Burns knew this and when Hogan showed signs of slowing up he would tear into him and administer punishment with both hands at will.

Hogan finally lost his head and started to foul Burns. He was advised several times to quit, but he kept on and finally Welsh, the referee, declared Burns the winner in the twelfth round. Had Hogan been properly seconded he would have lasted at least the twenty rounds and probably won the decision as he did most of the leading.

Take two fighters that are even in every quality and put a good second behind one and a man of poor judgment behind the other and see what happens.

Sporting Comment

BY THE MELANCHOLY DANE.

Still Going Wrong.

The statement that Jem Driscoll, the Welsh featherweight, is to retire from the ring and play the game makes me laugh fit to kill. Ever since the time that the nags made a swell bet on begin to look probably in the stretch he was back in the fight business punching some pug's nose for a night. He will find that Johnnys can trim him if the Hurrah for Papa.

The fact that supposedly sensible fans are to be asked to pay from $100 for each seat at the international polo games at Meadow Brook indicates that those who say the price might do the world a lot of good if they would use the money to buy a new set of brains for Papa as long as papa pays the bills it's no one's business but those rich ticket buyers if they work themselves instead of their men, for that much money, they shouldn't even pay car fare to get there.

Bunch of Carrots.

The eastern papers are still publishing old left-over pictures of the Philadelphia Americans as the champions of the world. The layout would be complete if they would just garnish it with photos of Bat Nelson, Carl Morris and Jack Twin Sullivan.

Growing Backwards.

The fellow who declared that the Oakland team would be a serious contender for the pennant certainly had more sense when he was born than he has now. A lot of us are that way, though.

There Are Others.

I've about come to the conclusion that if Freddie Welsh is as good as his press agent there is no use in any one else ever training for a fight.

Process of Reasoning.

The fact that Carl Morris has signed to fight Jim Flynn shows that Carl hopes to win the championship of the world by beating Flynn. As Flynn "defeated" Langford, Carl has a fine fat chance to declare himself one of the best men in the country.

NEW SOCCER SCHEDULE.

Members of Soccer Football Association to Meet Tonight to Take in New Members.

The Soccer Football Association of Southern California is to meet this evening at 1703 South Grand avenue for the purpose of establishing a new league and arrange games for another series.

It is likely that one or two more teams will be added to the present league as it is known that a German and an Irish team have been practicing for some time. The members of the present organization say they are willing to admit new teams as they desire to make the soccer game a typical Southern California sport.

The following new officers were elected to the Thistle Soccer Club at a meeting last Wednesday: John McArthur, re-elected president; Peter McDougal, captain of team; Harold Brown, vice-captain; H. A. Wyckoff, secretary. Delegates were also appointed to the league meeting tonight.

CRICKET NOTES.

BY MARSHALL D. TAYLOR.

In a letter to "The Times," W. W. Foulkrod, Jr., cashier of the Southwark National Bank, Philadelphia, and captain of the Frankford Cricket team, which is to tour the Pacific Coast this summer writes:

"The Frankford Cricket Club contemplates playing at Winnipeg, Vancouver, Victoria, Seattle and Portland during August and early September as per enclosed schedule.

"I know some of our men want to continue the trip to California playing San Francisco and Los Angeles. I, however, do not think that we will be able to play at San Francisco and Los Angeles as it would necessitate our being away from home too long.

"We will have a meeting of our club in a few weeks and will definitely decide whether or not we will visit California."

The schedule for the western tour is as follows:

August 24 and 25, Frankford vs. Winnipeg at Winnipeg; August 29 and 30, Frankford vs. Vancouver, at Vancouver; September 1 and 2, Frankford vs. Victoria, at Victoria; September 4 and 5, Frankford vs. Seattle, at Seattle; September 7 and 8, Frankford vs. Portland, at Portland.

The Frankford Cricket Club is one of the strongest in the United States. In the Halifax cup it will meet such teams as: Germantown, Merion, Philadelphia, Belmont, Moorestown.

Although the East is supposed to be snow and ice-bound in the early spring, yet this crack team started play on April 15, against the Lighthouse Club. From that date until August 19, a full weekly schedule of matches has been arranged.

This is considerably in advance of Los Angeles and Santa Monica, although favored with perpetual sunshine the whole year around. Even San Diego started weeks ahead of the local clubs. This clearly shows that squabbling and petty jealousies simply kill clean sport and delay practice to the detriment of cricket. Should a good team challenge our local clubs for a match next week, it is safe to say that not one player would be able to face any kind of a swift bowler and stand up to him with confidence. As for playing a "googlie" bowler the play would be ludicrous in the extreme. The same applies to the bowling. Practice makes perfect.

NO INSURANCE.

English Company Declines to Take a Chance on Fair Weather for Elgin Road Race.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "Too big a gamble," is the gist of a cablegram received by the Elgin Road-Race Association yesterday from an English assurance corporation, which was asked to issue a policy against rain on August 25-26, when the national stock-chassis road races of the Chicago Motor Club will be run.

After studying the weather reports for the last ten years the Elgin promoters discovered that it had rained on the road-race dates eight of ten years. In view of the heavy expense to be entailed in preparing for the races, the management tried to have the race meet insured against rain.

The company was applied to for a $25,000 policy, but the proposition was rejected.

U.S.C. HANDBALL CHAMP.

John Bamesberger won the singles championship in handball at U.S.C. yesterday when he defeated Kenneth Newell 21 to 11 in the annual college tourney. The large number of entries for the championships meet this year made it necessary to play only one game instead of best two out of three to decide the winners.

Bamesberger has played in the High School and Y.M.C.A. at Long Beach for a number of years. He easily outclassed any of the 'varsity cracks. The doubles will be played off today.

ATHLETIC CLUB HANDBALL.

In the first series of the S.C.A.C. handball tournament played on the club court last night, W. Coe won from E. Orth, 21-7, 21-3, and Israel Myer defeated M. A. Copeland 21-7, 21-9.

The winner in both matches had a walk-away as the court has only recently been finished and the boys have had no opportunity to practice previous to the tourney. Tonight W. Nash is to play D. Keyes and G. Donahue will meet Art Coover.

BOWLING—"

Members of the Commercial Bowling League held a meeting Saturday evening at the Cosmopolitan Bowling Academy, at which preliminary arrangements were made for a fourth tournament to start May 8, and run nine weeks. The league was limited to ten teams and all games will be rolled on the Cosmopolitan alleys. Alfred E. MacKenzie heads the prize list, donating individual medals to each of the three members of the winning team. A cash prize of $5 will be awarded to the bowler making the even score of 160 the most times. Every firm represented will subscribe suitable prizes. The Commercial League is the only bowling organization in the South which insists that members of its different teams must be bona fide employees of the firms they represent. The league is not only the most exclusive, but is the oldest in the city, and is indirectly the cause of the present thriving condition of the bowling game here. Another meeting has been called for Friday of this week to distribute prizes to the various winners of the tournament just closed and to complete arrangements for starting the fourth tournament.

The Orpheum alley has a mystery in the person of a young lady bowler who drops in there most every Saturday afternoon. Her pose in delivering the ball is very much like that of a man, and she throws with considerable more speed than that developed by many of the other sex. She has the pin boys standing up on top of the side boards most of the time. She does not tell her name, but signs the score sheet "M.M" and some of the boys have dubbed her "Mysterious Mary." Her scores are always above the average of other lady bowlers.

"Dad" Wilson says "that if all good bowlers were union men they would keep their employers in hot water all the time, on account of their 'striking' proclivities."

Just wait until the Orpheum team is able to put forth their regular line-up and they will make the other teams in the Southern California League sit up and take notice. Biggs, Turner, Pearne, Gillan, Hunderford and McCollum are the equals of any bowlers in the South, and if they do not finish first will certainly not be far removed from that position.

Biggs, a new "dark horse" on the Orpheum team, is another man who hails from that mecca of bowlers—Chicago. He has only been here a few weeks, but has shown the boys something already. He rolls an extremely slow hook ball which spins all the way down to the head pin, and its effectiveness is almost startling. As a parting thrust to that dear Chicago he won a short tournament of ten games with an average of 220. Look out for this wood chopper in the Class "A" League!

The two-man go-as-you-please tournament commenced at the Grand alleys last night. This tournament will run for two weeks, or until Sunday, May 7, at midnight. The entrance fee is 50 cents per man, and the money will be divided 50, 30 and 20 per cent. In addition to the amount the players will put up, the management has offered some enticing prizes. So far the scores rolled are not record breakers and everybody has a chance.

Stasch, a member of the Old Quaker team in the Class "A" League, Saturday night, came within one pin of equalling his former score of 247, which is the high record to date for the new Cosmopolitan alleys. This boy is small and quiet, but his ball makes a lot of racket when it plows into the head pin.

The Walkover team of the Brocton, Mass., made a name for themselves a few days ago when in a match game against the Crescents they broke the world's record for duck pins, bagging 1902 maple birds with the mineralite scatter gun. Following is a little food for the diminutive pin artists:

Turner and MacKenzie of the Cosmopolitan Alleys and Ballard and Taylor of the Grand are the first pairs to enter in the four-cornered doubles championship which will be conducted along the lines proposed in last Sunday's issue. It is understood that Platt and Meiers of Pasadena are anxious to get in so it is now up to Gilman and Young of Venice to declare themselves. Bowling fans will not be satisfied until the eight bowlers appoint a meeting time and place and complete arrangements for conducting the match.

BOXING LID OFF.

Illinois Senator Will Propose a Law Leaving Boxing Question to Council of Each City—Bill Has a Chance.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 24.—Local option in boxing contests may be brought about in Illinois. The Carroll boxing bill, which legalizes six-round bouts, promoted by incorporated athletic clubs, which was defeated by the Senate last week, will be reconsidered next Wednesday.

To overcome objections raised by the Senate leaders, Senator Carroll will offer an amendment to the bill which will leave it optional with the city councils whether boxing may be permitted. With such an amendment friends of the bill say it will have a fair chance of success.

MAKES LONG FLIGHT.

PAU (France) April 24.—Pierre Vedrine, who left Paris in his monoplane Saturday, arrived here today, having covered the circuitous course of 500 miles in 6hrs. 55m., actual flying time. He thus wins the prize of $4000 offered by the Aero Club of Berne for the fastest flight between the two cities. Vedrine made several long stops en route. Recently Vedrine flew from Poiters to Issy-Les-Moulineaux, a distance of 208 miles, in 133m.

DeHaven and Sidney, and a vaudeville act, not a whole musical comedy, though it may look like one. DeHaven and Sidney are featured at the Los Angeles Theater this week, and the exceedingly lively "girl act" which they present has in all five heavy scenes—quite an unusual equipment for the varieties.

Entered Up.

SPORTS BY THE WHOLESALE SERVED TO COMMISSION MEN.

BY JOE MINSTER.

WHEN 132 wholesale commission merchants, a few railroad officials and others indirectly connected with the selling of products, about 150 altogether, left Los Angeles on a special train to San Diego last Friday evening, they started out with the intention of having some real live sport, a relaxation from all of the cares of every-day work.

When the same crowd stepped off the train late Sunday night they realized that their pleasures had been more numerous than anticipated in the beginning. They were tired and sleepy from races and walks and auto trips, and their waiting automobiles were not nearly speedy enough to get them home and abed, according to their own desires.

Sports started on Friday night when Tom Chambers of the Santa Fe, backed by H. H. H. Francisco and T. Pate, announced that the special would break all records to San Diego. In this it might have failed, but watches held on the trip showed that it took little more than three hours to arrive. At Coronado there were pool, billiard and bowling tournaments of very impromptu character arranged upon arrival. The bowling teams of Richardson & Holmes and Rivers Bros. Company were competitors in one of these matches.

OFFICIAL RACES.

Saturday morning was scheduled as the time for official races, and the party traveled to the Coronado polo grounds. Here the first contest was the for supremacy on bicycles, and Chester Thompson won from H. W. Stanley, while Morgan Morgan blew up before the end of the race and retired for the morning. Then came a sprint for the fat ones, in which only over 200-pounders were allowed. An ambulance carried the remains of several of them who couldn't stand the pace to the grand stand. W. E. Dennison and Tom Chambers decided their respective merits in the race by a wrestling match, in which Chambers came last.

The annual relay race for a magnificent silver cup, standing nearly two feet in height, was won by the three runners of the Rivers Bros. company, who competed against the runners of the Los Angeles Ice and Cold Storage Company. Having taken the cup two years in succession they will retain it permanently. Inquiers of the same ice company, who was the best runner for that team, later showed his own merits by winning the sack race.

There were four horse races in which competition was very spirited, there having been anywhere from ten to twenty-five riders entered in a single contest. Most of the horses were polo ponies and there was some good sport in these.

In the mules-versus-horses race Rivers Morrell and one other contestant were ruled out. Despite the long handicap over the horses, they whipped some of the stable boys to drive their spavined burros with fast horses on their flank and, in addition, used tincans to the tails of the mules.

At the San Gabriel Club on Sunday there was an obsession of peg-top trousers, one met 'em everywhere. Limply meandering over the golf links, slightly inflated on the tennis courts, carelessly draped over the edge of the billiard tables, or hanging nonchalantly over the arm of a chair in front of the fire. The immediate impression is that all the men have too much room to sit down in and women not enough. In fact what the men are wearing now is the genuine original divided skirt, with a saucy little Watteau shepherdess effect at the waist. Quite a number of the men exhibit a touching penchant for safe and sane suspenders, especially those with fat backs. Well, all I can say is harem skirts or no harem skirts, I'll never, never take to suspenders—I'd rather put my trust in a safety-pin any day.

The Ladies' Golf Championship will be competed for at the Los Angeles Country Club May 8-13, and there is every indication that the entries will be above the average. Mrs. Frederick T. Griffith of the Los Angeles Country Club is secretary and treasurer, and entries must be made through the captains of the respective clubs not later than May 5, entrance fee, $3.

Little Joe Rivers put in another day of hard work at Venice yesterday and is another pound nearer the mark set for him to weigh in at on the morning of the battle with Johnny Kilbane on May 6. Rivers is not rushing the weight question as he is within five pounds of the figure now, but he doesn't want to wait too long before getting himself down to where he can train along about at an even pace.

Rivers looks more like a lightweight than a featherweight, as he has big arms and shoulders. He is not at all fat and every pound he reduces takes from him more or less strength. His contest with Kilbane will probably be the last at the 122 pound limit.

GINGERY GOSSIP WHISPERINGS ABOUT THE LOCAL COUNTRY CLUBS.

BY ETHELREADA.

THE Pasadena Country Club, the oldest, first and original country club, you know, like other effete aristocracies, is beginning to realize that a little new blood must be inoculated.

So a large new tract of land is being acquired in Alhambra and a good golf course is at once to be added to the clubs attractions.

At present tennis claims the prominent place.

The Valley Hunt Club is not located in a valley and it doesn't hunt. Still it's a pretty name and 'twill serve. And every now and then one can have a jolly time with the valley hunters. It's jollier now than it was, since it slightly relaxed its rigidity.

In the good old days, the very good old days, it was customary for husbands and wives to take great and peculiar care of each other upon the monthly occasion set apart for special revels—united we stand, as it were—which, of course, was very nice and pleasant but a bit samey. So Mrs. Frank Ogilvy Wood bethought her to introduce a little novelty when it was her turn to take charge of the jaunt. She took them all to dinner at the San Gabriel Country Club, of which she is also a member, and actually—just think of it—made them draw lots for partners. And if any man drew his own wife he had to try again. It was awfully thrilling and rather shocking, and the jolliest jaunt the club can remember. So it just shows that a highly respectable conservative old club like the Valley Hunt can be brought to see the advantages of at least a temporary change now and again.

Their last affair was a perfectly decorous frisky little outing in a special trolley car to Los Angeles, dinner, and the theater afterwards. The restaurant and theater were chosen with the utmost care—not exactly naughty, you know and yet—which do you suppose they chose?

Ward Montgomery,

winner of Polytechnic High School tennis tournament.

BOY TENNIS CHAMPION.

Ward Montgomery Has Confirmed His Right to the Title at Poly High. Also a Girl Champ.

As a boost to school tennis, the physical training department of the Polytechnic High School has consented to give credit in gymnasium to those who participate in these tournaments.

A doubles tournament for girls is about to begin at the school. A tournament for boys has just come to a close, following a girls' tournament.

In the boys' tournament, Ward Montgomery, who has held the championship of the school for some time, again confirmed his right to the title. He is now the undisputed "champ."

The girls' championship was won by Meta Teichreib.

She has wielded a racquet only eight months, but experienced no difficulty in defeating the veterans at the game. Although this is Miss Teichreib's third year at the Washington-street school, she has only taken an active part in tennis during the past year.

A feature of her racquet work is the accuracy with which she delivers drives into her opponents territory. She is a consistent player and a wide-awake adversary, and is in line to become an expert on the courts.

CHESS NOTES.

A. G. Pearsall has won a game against C. J. Gibbs in the correspondence chess match between the Cabrillo Club and the Chess and Checker Club of Southern California, bringing the score up to five wins for San Diego to four for Los Angeles. The game was played at Board 2, being opened by Gibbs as a Ruy Lopez and carried to a satisfactory position for White, up to the twentieth move, when he carelessly lost his king's bishop's pawn without equivalent. This loss was not to be overcome against the accurate and forceful play of Pearsall, who, after sacrificing the exchange, forced the capture of White's queen for two pieces, following up with a few strokes which compelled a resignation after move 35.

CHECKER EXPERT DEPARTS.

H. M. Angell, the expert checker player who has passed two weeks in offhand meetings with local checkerists, returned to San Francisco yesterday, having contested a total of 270 games against all comers, wining 176, drawing 74, and losing 20.

It is understood that Mr. Angell will shortly play a match with Reyburn of San Francisco, deposits having been made pending final arrangements for the contest.

VENICE GAMES FOR TOTS.

fering my Pope-Hartford and driver for your "May Day joy ride."

My wife will come with the car and care for four or five little ones.

Yours truly,
FRANKLIN P. BURCH.
No. 2408 South Figueroa street. Telephone 22953.

LOS ANGELES, April 22.—[Editor of The Times:] I have a five-passenger E.M.F. and will be pleased to report with it at time and place for the kiddos' joy ride as you may indicate. Ready to take care of three little ones.

Please do not mention my name.

Yours truly,
MRS. S. W. W.,
No. 723 West Third street, city.

Inquiries are constantly coming in by telephone asking for orders for the joy ride; auto owners want to know where they are to be assigned. For the benefit of these it should be stated that letters of instruction will be mailed today to all who have proffered cars.

In a general way it can be stated now that these arrangements will be as follows:

The cars will be assigned to the various charitable institutions where needy children are housed and cared for.

The cars will go directly to the institutions to which they have been assigned and collect their little passengers. These will be their guests for the day.

From the institutions where these little passengers have been collected the cars will then proceed to a meeting place, to be announced later, and the flying squadron will move together for the beach.

The owners who have offered their cars need have no uneasiness lest they should have been forgotten.

Their names have been carefully listed and kept, and they will be notified of every detail of the arrangements.

PENSACOLA RESULTS.

PENSACOLA (Fla.) April 24.—Jockey Fogg was set down for the rest of the meeting for rough riding. Summary:

Four and one-half furlongs: Uncle Walter won, Lady Martinez second, Mollie Gibson third; time, 1:58 2-5.

Four and one-half furlongs: Glipian won, Tamar second, Miss Imogene third; time, :58 1-2.

Mile: Merry Belle won, B. J. Swanger second, Don Hamilton third; time, 1:47 2-5.

Four and one-half furlongs: Chanate won, Bensand, second, Beverstein third; time, :57 1-5.

Six furlongs: Cherry Girl won, Brown Tony second, Lady Maxim third; time, 1:18 1-5.

Results at Jamestown.

NORFOLK (Va.) April 24.—Hoffman won the Chesapeake purse at the Jamestown course by a length from Judge Monck today. Summary:

Six furlongs: Warden won, John Marrs second, Grandissimo third; time, 1:17 4-5.

One and one-sixteenth: Horace W. won, Golconda second, Brevite third; time, 1:49 1-5.

GOOD SCORES MADE BY AMATEUR CHAMPS.

The Sixth Annual Amateur Championship of America at clay targets shot off under the auspices of the New York Athletic Club over its Travers' Island grounds resulted in some commendable scores considering the trying conditions that made straight well-night impossible. A stiff west wind blew across the traps and played havoc with the birds and expert scores.

Harry W. Kahler of the Highland Gun Club of Philadelphia won the diamond medal emblematic of the amateur championship with the splendid score of 173 out of his 200 birds. George S. McCarty who won the trophy the last two years in succession was runner-up two birds behind. There were 120 contestants.

Charles H. Newcomb of Philadelphia won the preliminary with 93 out of the 100.

INTERNATIONAL FIGHT FOR PRINCESS AND HER MILLIONS.

Impecunious German Count Wants to Wed Princess Ida Rosa Sulkowski Who Is Mad in Austria and Sane in Germany and Heiress to $15,000,000—Romance Which Is Agitating the Courts of Two Empires.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, April 1.—"Have you a share in the Sulkowski millions?" This is vulgar Berlin's latest catchword, and it means, "when are you going to marry a wealthy bride?" It is apropos of a mortal struggle over the body and soul of Princess Ida Rosa Sulkowski, whom an impecunious lover is panting impetuously to wed. He is being opposed by the Austrian, Hungarian and Prussian courts, and just judges make pronouncements once a week that Princess Ida Rosa may wed him, and also once a week that she may not.

Ida Rosa is a real princess. The Sulkowskis are princes of the Holy Roman Empire, of no very ancient lineage, but of very genuine wealth. They are Prussian subjects settled in Austria. The family estates are worth at least $15,000,000, which is a vast sum for continental Europe. The estates are in Austria, Hungary, Prussia and Poland, and the lord and master of them all is Joseph Mary, Prince Sulkowski, Duke of Bielits. He is a cantankerous old man with bushy eyebrows and a red neck; and his only daughter and heiress is Ida Rosa, who is pretty, slim and graceful, but cursed by heaven with one of those ambiguous brains which qualified experts swear is uncommonly intelligent, and other qualified experts swear is incurably mad.

As red-necked Prince Joseph Mary muddled hopelessly his own heart affairs, naturally Ida Rosa followed suit. At the age of 19 she wedded a Hungarian, Dr. Alexander Taganyi, a gentleman of Budapest. They went to live at Arad, above the green river Maros, where thirteen rebel Magyar generals were shot in 1849. They quarreled and had no children. As Princess Ida Rosa had millions of her own, and must legally inherit the $15,000,000 of her cantankerous papa, naturally thrifty relatives began to interest themselves in her affairs. Prince Sulkowski's collateral kinsmen, a whole batch of Taydas, Adolphs, Wandas and Stanislasses, began to ask themselves what would become of the heiriess Sulkowski millions. And they decided to act.

Now in Austria and Germany there is an infallible way of solving knotty points of heirship. It is to get somebody declared insane. And this the kinsmen did. The Hungarian Court of Arad pronounced pretty Ida Rosa to be mad, deprived her of the control of her millions, and appointed guardians, among whom was her princely father. Of course, no man seriously said that the Princess was mad—except experts, and they merely swore it. And lengthy lawsuits began. The Hungarian courts lawsuits began. The Hungarian courts while the Prussian courts found that the Princess was uncommonly intelligent. So the Princess was sane in Prussian, while in Hungary she might be clapped into the first lunatic asylum.

Being pretty and 19, the Princess preferred Prussia, and thither she went. There she made acquaintance with Count Bernhard von Schmettow, ex-soldier, heir to Schloss Pommerzig, and present possessor of a heap of unpaid bills. The Count had fought forty civil lawsuits, and been several times in conflict with the criminal law. Naturally he fell in love with the millionaire Princess. Herr Taganyi thereupon began another criminal suit against him, and proceeded to divorce his wife. This was exactly what amorous, impecunious Von Schmettow desired, for he had an unshakeable resolution to wed the Princess and the estates worth fifteen millions.

The course of true love ran smooth, and on the strength of it the Count purchased an automobile. The future master of the Sulkowski millions got credit everywhere. Unluckily people raised obstacles to the marriage. Though sane (in Prussia,) the Princess being mad (in Austria,) could not marry without the consent of her guardians. Ardent Count Schmettow rushed to Vienna and got a written consent from the Prince. Three days later, the old man revoked the consent and declared that the Count had got it by false representations. The Count was too much in love to be baffled by such perfidy, and he devised another plan.

He decided to have his princess transformed into a Prussian subject. In that case, he was told the guardianship of the Hungarian court would be null and void. He began proceedings. Unluckily, the German courts rejected the application. The Count pleaded that he was much in love; that the Princess was merely an Austrian by a marriage which had been dissolved, and so on. He got no satisfaction.

That is from the court. He got satisfaction from the Princess. The sane-insane Ida Rosa gave him a power of attorney to dispose of her millions as he wished. It had no legal value, because the millions were in Hungary where the Princess was insane. But naturally Schmettow was not going to parade this inconsiderable fact to Berlin tradesmen. He bought more automobiles. He lived as if the fifteen millions were already in his pocket. He paid with bills of exchange. And yesterday, as he was leaving his rooms in Berlin's dearest hotel, a bailiff clapped him on the shoulder, and told him to come to jail.

At the last minute a friend, who believes in the Count's final victory, paid the debt. It is the same friend who is said to be financing the Count in his great fight for justice. And every fair mind hopes that when Princess Ida Rosa and the fifteen millions are safe in the impecunious Count's amorous embrace, the faithful friend will get a reasonable share.

That is of the fifteen millions. Of course not of Ida Rosa.

Offers Prayers.

KILBANE ATTENDS MASS BEFORE STARTING WORK.

BY J. ALEX SLOAN.

JOHNNY KILBANE, the little Cleveland fighter who is scheduled to play one of the principal parts in the next boxing show at Vernon, occupies a unique position in the pugilistic world. He is the most devout church member engaged in professional fighting, and never allows a single Sunday to go by without attending mass.

The very first question Kilbane asked on arriving in Los Angeles Saturday night was where he could attend church. He was up bright and early Sunday morning and attended early mass at the Cathedral. When Kilbane enters the ring he believes he will be aided in his efforts to win by his prayers, and points to his successful climb to the top of the pugilistic ladder as a result of his devotion to his principles.

Many persons went to Jack Doyle's training quarters expecting to see Kilbane inaugurate his training Sunday, but he never starts to work on the Sabbath.

Kilbane is also a member of the Knights of Columbus Lodge, and wherever he goes he is generally received with open arms by the members of that organization.

The boxer does not believe there is any more wrong in fighting or boxing than in any other profession. He says:

"Why shouldn't I follow the ring just as well as the professional actor follows the stage? I do nothing wrong and try to live up to my principles, which are the principles laid down by all fair-minded, good people. Boxing is just as much of a pastime as the show produced on the best stage, and in many instances the boxing is preferable. I propose to keep on fighting as long as I can honestly make a good living at the game."

SAURER TRUCK COMING.

BUCKING DESERT SANDS.

W. H. Thompson, general sales manager for the Saurer Motor Company, is in Los Angeles. That truck trip across the continent is big enough to keep him here until the Saurer arrives. The car is now in Albuquerque with many miles of rough desert road stretching between there and Los Angeles. Thompson will go to San Francisco and then come back.

By the last week of this month the Saurer ought to be in sight of the city limits, thinks Thompson. He is satisfied that the machine will come through. Of course there are others who do not agree with him but after hearing Thompson describe the truck and the trip he enoyed after leaving Denver, it is easy to believe the big four-ton monster will make good.

A. L. Westgard, who came across the continent in the Premier, is on the truck directing operations. With the former president of the Touring Club is the son of the Saurer man, Arthur C. Thompson, and George McLear, with a good cook.

"This is a great trip," said Thompson yesterday. "It's a real test and the truck will make good. Of course, it is heavy, but the engine will pull and the truck will stand all that can be given it. I am satisfied that the Saurer will make good and will finish in Los Angeles."

After the big truck reaches here Thompson will go to San Francisco on the truck, and will enjoy the coast road. He is [illegible] over the business [illegible] the Saurer crew is fighting [illegible] sands. He says he is [illegible] would rather have [illegible] with the car.

TO REPEAT PLAY.

The playlet "How The Story Grew," given recently by the ladies of the Parent-Teachers' Association as entertainment, given for their benefit, was so great a success that they have decided to give the play at the pavilion May 1. A number of prominent club women of the city will be the cast.

Home talent is not lacking for closely following the performance "How The Story Grew," will be enacted with such parties and still smaller town. There is much fun to be added by inviting all to give this, May 16, in the pavilion.

The Actors' Church Alliance is to start a movement for the establishment in New York for a home for actors. It will provide a place where they may spend their time between rehearsals, and will take the place of hall bedrooms in cheap hotels, to which they are said to be condemned.

There are cookers and cookers; [illegible] bad, some half bad, some not bad—(which in some parlance [illegible] extraordinarily good)—and [illegible] good beyond question. It is [illegible] what a matter of cost, somewhat a matter of choice, somewhat a matter of judgment; but anyhow—be certain to have a "fireless" of some kind. You do not need it for entire meals. Use it for a few things—for cereals, "boiled dinners," for baked beans, [illegible] boiled ham. However much and however willingly we may resort to delicatessen, there are some dishes which are never "just as good" when served away from home. This is true of boiled ham. Now it is next to impossible to properly boil ham upon a kitchen range. It requires, as every good cook knows, a slow fire. The same is true of chicken fricassee. It is the boast of New England "boiled dinner," Summer is just the time for fireless cooker, since they are a stimulus to the appetite, which needs stimulating in warm weather and yet you do not wish to heat up your kitchen and make it hot, in summer. That is where fireless shines.

I am told, although I have not tried it, that it shines equally in keeping cold things cold. I would not [illegible] this; if it will do the former, it has earned its way."

Proper Thermos.

Side by side with the fireless in the kitchen, stands the Thermos bottle. I saw these bottles—plainly [illegible] of course, but with all the Thermos virtues—for a trifle over a dollar, [illegible] mile at a Broadway store. Here is another summer convenience which no housekeeper cannot afford to do without. Imagine getting your evening meal ready in the morning—all but the things "hotted" and all the [illegible] things cooled and then going [illegible] for a day's pleasure, to return [illegible] night and find the articles all finished in the proper manner and ready [illegible]

For Summer.

Another summer convenience which I do not think is enough appreciated is the porch shade. Almost any outside place may be converted into a comfortable outside room, by the use of [illegible] shades. I never saw them so impressive as at present.

Chairs.

"There!" said the artistic lady, as she read the Sunday Times, "This time I shall certainly have one of those Chinese chairs! I have always admired one and every time there is a sale, I try to get one but manage to arrive just as the last one is sold. I shall post right down to that store the first thing in the morning, before they are all sold out. I love chairs for the porch, for the bedroom, in fact, for any place." Then she explained that she meant the "hour glass chairs," which a certain furniture firm on Spring street is selling by [illegible]

Summer Luxury.

There is no one thing which, to my mind, is more luxurious in the home than plenty of good table and bed linen. In summer, especially, is it refreshing to see fresh napery and to [illegible] between freshly laundered sheets. Each one's head upon fresh pillow cases. If they smell of lavender, so much the better. "When I am rich" [illegible] we all say in voicing our day dreams—I shall never use a bit of linen twice without laundering. This is the time of year when the good housekeeper lays in a supply of linen, taking advantage of the sales which are in progress at the large stores. There are the cheaper kinds for the beach cottage or the camp in the country and the better class for the city home—and all, just now at prices which mean saving.

Crocheted.

Have you seen the crocheted towels? They are rather a novelty and are easily made. You use fine or coarse cotton, as you prefer; for the body of towel and across the ends you may embellish in cross stitch in color, a floral design or if you prefer, may letter in the same stitch a "Good Morning." These are pretty and novel guest towels and the work will keep busy the hand of the shut-in or the elderly, who like to be doing something not too intricate.

The Emergency Shelf.

Another article with which to stock the "emergency shelf" has been suggested to me. It is macaroon crumbs, to be used in making or rather to sift and the others by E. C. Dalton, both druggists here.

TO REPEAT PLAY.

The playlet "How The Story Grew," given recently by the ladies of the Parent-Teachers' Association as entertainment, given for their benefit, was so great a success that they have decided to give the play at the pavilion May 1. A number of prominent club women of the city will be the cast.

Home talent is not lacking for closely following the performance "How The Story Grew," will be enacted with such parties and still smaller town. There is much fun to be added by inviting all to give this, May 16, in the pavilion.

The Actors' Church Alliance is to start a movement for the establishment in New York for a home for actors. It will provide a place where they may spend their time between rehearsals, and will take the place of hall bedrooms in cheap hotels, to which they are said to be condemned.

Sewing.

With the revival of the vogue for carpets and rugs, has been revived the fashion of holding "carpet-sewing bees" for the purpose of raising funds for the church or for other purposes in the country or in the smaller town. There is much fun connected with such parties and still more may be added by inviting all to come in the costumes of ye olden time. Even a simple prize offered for the best costume adds to the interest.

A May Girl.

I suppose you do not believe in horoscopes and are "not at all superstitious," as no one is; but perhaps you would like to know, just for fun, what they say about the girl who is born in the years of age, sometime in May. The May girl then, is under the sign "Taurus." She has, or should

FACTS, FEATURES AND FANCIES FOR WOMEN.

By Olive Gray.

DAILY BEAUTY HINT: While I am not of those who believe that there is any one "cure-all," I think I would say that proper breathing, while it does, deep breathing, will do more toward curing the ills of humanity, than will any other one thing. For many years I have observed and noted it, and have seen wonderful results from correct breathing. I have known a woman to develop the chest, for instance, from two to nine inches in six months, simply by deep breathing practiced daily. Not only is the health improved in this way, but the appearance is greatly enhanced, for no woman can look beautiful who has a hollow chest and stooping shoulders.

Whatever you buy or go without, do your best to have some kind of a fireless cooker in your home, before the winter comes.

There are cookers and cookers; some good, some half bad, some not good at all—(which in some parlance means extraordinarily good)—and the best beyond question. It is not a matter of cost, somewhat a matter of choice, somewhat a matter of judgment; but anyhow—be certain to have a "fireless" of some kind. You do not need it for entire meals, but for a few things—for cereals, "boiled dinners," for baked beans, and ham. I say "shines," although I have not tried it, but I think it shines equally in keeping things cold. I would not say that it will do the former, but it does it its way.

Now to side with the fireless in this stands the Thermos bottle. I have three bottles—plainly fine-ones, but with all the Thermos—for a trifle over a dollar, one can get at a Broadway store. Here is another convenience which the housekeeper cannot afford to do without. Imagine getting your evening meal ready in the morning—all the things "bottled" and all the things added and then going off for a day's pleasure, to return to find the articles all finished in the proper manner and ready to serve.

Another convenience which I do not think is enough appreciated is the sofa bed. Almost any outside room may be converted into a comfortable sitting room, by the use of one of these. I never saw them so popular as at present.

The Pantry Shelf.

Another article with which to stock the "pantry shelf" has been suggested to me. It is macaroon crumbs, and in making or rather to sift them for use. These may be rolled and used in are bread crumbs and need to keep in a glass jar with a screw top. They will be found very handy when making a "rush" dessert.

Fancy Sewing.

With the revival of the vogue for rag carpets and rugs, has been revived the fashion of holding "carpet bees" for the purpose of making rugs for the church or for other purposes in the country or in the smaller town. There is much fun connected with such parties; and still more can be added by inviting all to wear costumes of ye olden time. Prizes are often offered for the best and add to the interest.

To My Girl.

If you do not believe in horoscopes and are "not at all superstitious" as one is; but perhaps you would like to know, just for fun, what is said about the girl who is born in the years of age, sometime in the month. The May girl then, is under the planet Venus." She has, or should by rights have, a strong constitution and is not easily disturbed or turned aside by difficulties. She loves nature and should live in the country to be at her best. She will succeed with all growing things and would make an excellent teacher of botany, bird-lore or should engage in gardening, or chicken-raising. She is of a scientific turn of mind and will know the reasons for what she sees in the growing world. So much for the proclivities which "they say" are hers. Of course she may or may not use these tendencies to advantage, if she have them. According to my idea, the benefit to be derived from "horoscopes" and such things, lies in the fact that they set us to looking at ourselves and analyzing our tendencies and our own possibilities; and much good should result from a complete understanding of ourselves.

A Cheese Dish.

No, not to eat—but to hold the cattle. I saw in one of the roadway jeweler's such pretty glass dishes, set in silver, with tiny silver feet to rest upon—and the sole purpose of these dishes was to contain cream cheese. They were dainty and inexpensive.

Fashions.

If you have an antique brooch, which happens to be a carved cameo in coral, you are fortunate for these are "all the rage." The very latest way of using them is to set them in a dinner ring. I saw one in the collection of a local jewelry establishment, which was a genuine treasure and the man told me that they were resetting many heirlooms in the same style.

Silk, voile, marquisette, all-over lace and figured chiffons are used in the waists which are for more dressy occasions.

Wash beads are used on many of the waists, and the designs are worked out in Japanese, French and Bulgarian embroideries.

Amazingly novel and with a charm of their own are black velvet pumps with white bows and white duck pumps with black bows.

Hairline stripes in serges are being shown in a wide variety of patterns. In many of the new ones the hairline is practically invisible.

Neither pastel shades nor black, especially the latter, will be much worn in gloves. White will have things practically all its own way.

Semi-rough effects and so-called mannish materials are fashionable for spring-tailored suits. These goods come in a wide range of neat effects.

Coat suits of pique and linen will be very popular garments for the little miss this spring. Some very smart models are fashioned of colored linen.

Some of the smartest of the new parasols are decorated with hand-painted floral designs. Others have appliques and insertion of lace. A few are beaded.

WIFE-BEATER ARRESTED.

R. G. McFadden was yesterday arraigned for battery before Justice Summerfield, upon complaint of his wife, Mary McFadden. He pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for May 29. Bail was fixed at $500. McFadden is said to have beaten both his wife and small child, first locking the doors. When Constable Jack Adams went to arrest him, he jumped out of a window.

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS.

BY SYDNEY FORD.

There was an exodus of local club women yesterday to Riverside where the twentieth annual session of the Woman's Parliament opened with an address in the afternoon by J. H. Francis on "Public Schools as Social Centers." In the evening the Cumnock Dramatic Club of this city presented a play. Mrs. Mina Tupper Maynard will give an address on Walt Whitman at this morning's session and Mrs. O. Shepard Barnum will speak on "Co-operation" this afternoon.

A feature of the parliament will be the reports from officers of the district comprising the eight southern counties. This convention is the annual pulse-taking as it were, of women's work in Southern California. Each county has a vice-president and secretary.

The general officers of the parliament are, Mrs. D. G. Stephens of Santa Monica, honorary president; Mrs. Eliza Tupper Wilkes of Los Angeles, president; Dr. Louise Harvey Clark of Riverside, vice-president at large; Mrs. F. W. Force of Los Angeles, general secretary; Miss Sedalia Cubbison of Santa Ana, treasurer; Miss M. M. Fette of Los Angeles, auditor, and Mrs. O. Shepard Barnum, chairman of the Legislative Committee.

The district officers are, Mmes. S. J. Eggleston and F. J. Wagner of Santa Monica, representing Los Angeles county; Mmes. W. M. Smart and Anna Gale of Santa Ana, for Orange county; Mmes. George H. Ballou and C. S. Alverson of San Diego; Mmes. Jos. H. Holland and Chas. Stibbins of Riverside; Mmes. Constance Austin and W. C. Northrup of Santa Barbara; Mmes. M. E. Dudley and Harry Clark of Ventura; Mmes. J. E. Bachelor and E. S. Williams of San Bernardino, and Mrs. Mott Arnold and Miss Evelyn Dyke of Imperial.

The election of officers for the coming year occurs tomorrow and I am told that neither the president nor secretary will accept continuance in office.

Women in the N.E.A.

Mrs. E. L. Baldwin of San Francisco, who will represent the California Federation of Women's Clubs at the National Educational Association, which convenes in San Francisco this summer, will be one of the speakers at the coming State convention of women's clubs at Long Beach in May.

Mrs. Baldwin is chairman of the N. E. A. Hospitality Committee, which is composed of 100 women, and she will ask the co-operation of all the women's clubs in the State to assist in making the N.E.A. convention a great success.

Mrs. O. Shepard Barnum of this city, who is president of the Department of School Patrons, has received a letter from Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, president of the N.E.A., in which this alert superintendent of Chicago schools shows great enthusiasm for the coming convention, which opens in San Francisco July 8.

It is interesting to note that the presidents of the departments of music, kindergarten, elementary and school patrons in the National Association are all women.

Club Women Run Van.

The Civic Committee of the Woman's Club at Burlingame has set aside next Saturday as clean-up day and a feature of the occasion will be a lunch van driven through the streets furnishing refreshments for all who help. This van will be supplied and operated by club women of this fashionable San Francisco suburb and will no doubt be a persuader for many men to get out and help clean up the town.

The music section of this wide-awake club is planning a May-pole fete, with a May-pole dance for the children in the afternoon and a May festival concert in the evening. Another treat for the little folks will be a picnic in nearby woods for the sixty little girls of the sewing school, which is one of the pet ideas of the club.

Expense Schedule for Biennial.

At a joint conference of the officers and club presidents of the San Francisco and Alameda districts of women's clubs held recently at the Palace Hotel, Miss Eva Powell, chairman of the Finance Committee for the preparatory work for the coming biennial, reported a plan for raising the $10,000 necessary for expenses. According to the schedule presented, the 10,000 club women of the Los Angeles and southern districts will be asked to contribute about $4000 as their apportionment of the expense fund. The San Francisco, Alameda and northern districts were apportioned the balance, with the exception of $550 which was assessed to the San Joaquin district. All told, there are 21,000 California club women affiliated with the National Federation.

An Italian Club.

About a year ago, a club known as the Vittoria Colonna Club, was formed in San Francisco by Dr. M. Bertola and five other women, composed of women of Italian ancestry or affiliations, the object being to promote social, civic, intellectual and philanthropic interests. The club has now grown to eighty-five members. These Italian women have maintained a censorship of nickelodeons, secured enough money to almost support the Vittoria Colonna Kindergarten, which they have established, and done a good deal of charitable work among the Italian people. Among the social activities were the annual luncheon given at Hotel Richelieu and a reception in honor of Signor and Mrs. Bonci.

California Born Chinese Girls.

The first California-born Chinese girl to return to her own people in China as a missionary is Miss Wong, who sailed from San Francisco a few days ago. She was born in San Francisco, but has passed nearly all of her life in Los Angeles and Arizona. She spent a year in the Bible Institute at Huntington Park, afterward going East to complete her education.

Another California born Chinese girl who is winning honors is Miss Margaret Chung, who was awarded one of the prizes at the collegiate oratorical contest last Friday, between U.S.C., Occidental and the Los Angeles High Schools. Miss Chung has been a student at U.S.C. Academy for several years, having won a scholarship in that institution in The Times contest a few years ago. She is preparing herself for a medical missionary to China.

Sunday Morning Nickels.

"'Twould take a banker to run this line," commented a conductor on one of the street car divisions, last Sunday, as he counted out change for a dollar.

"That makes six silver dollars I've changed since we left the end of the run," he continued confidentially to the sympathetic woman in the rear of the car.

"It's always that way Sunday morning. They want change for the contribution boxes ye see—and it's astonishin' how many of 'em kick if there don't happen to be a nickel in the change I hand back."

With the advent of the P-A-Y-E-Cars in Los Angeles it is a foregone conclusion that, unless the coupon system is introduced, the pocket glove will become popular. A few years ago I believe, this glove was introduced, but didn't make a hit, for the reason that there was no particular cause for its existence and, like the pocket in the corner of the handkerchief, it died a natural death, but a glove with a little coin purse in the palm to hold nickels and dimes would be pretty handy now that we must produce our fares the moment we enter the car. The flap snaps securely over the tiny pocket to prevent loss.

Y.W.C.A. Concert.

Members of the Y.W.C.A. will enjoy a musical treat this evening when Joseph Dupuy gives his recital of the songs of nations. It is always a delight to listen to Mr. Dupuy's splendid tenor voice and this programme is one of unusual range including a Hebrew and Arab chant and the Latin "Ave Maria," from Pizzi, beside German, Italian, French, Irish, Scotch, English, Indian and American songs and the programme to conclude with a cycle of five songs representing the four seasons of life.

Each member of the Y.W.C.A. is privileged to bring a guest.

The Pottery Pageant.

Several hundred prominent club women, society buds, business and professional girls assembled at the Auditorium yesterday afternoon for the first dress rehearsal of the Pottery Pageant which will be presented next Saturday afternoon for the benefit of the Model Village, which is to solve the slum problem for Los Angeles.

Waiting.

Over the blue-waved sparkling sea
Over the beautiful sea,
My darling sailed one summer's day,
Sailed on the billowy sea, away,
And waved an adieu to me.

Over the sun-lit summer sea,
Over the moon-kissed murmuring sea,
My darling said he would bring me gold,
Diamonds, rubies, wealth untold,
When he would return to me.

Down by the angry, threatening sea,
Down by the treacherous sea,
I've watched for my darling, day by day,
Waited and watched while the years rolled away—
Yet he comes not back to me.

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES."

Failure of Suffrage in Colorado.

LOS ANGELES, April 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In the columns of The Times of yesterday I notice the following statement of Mr. McGinnis of Colorado:

"If we want real reform in civic, State, or national government we should go to the women of the country, and its young men. . . . The number of women who vote is increasing every year, and the women of Colorado usually vote right on questions of importance."

I do not know what Mr. McGinnis' idea of "civic" reform is, or why he compares women with young men, or where he got his authority for saying that the number of women who vote, is increasing every year, or that they "usually vote right on questions of importance" or how great a question must be, from his point of reasoning, to become important. But I do know something about how elections have been carried in Colorado both since and before women had the franchise and I'm going to make a few statements that I know to be positively correct, and let our good sisters of California deduce their own conclusions.

In 1906 there were contesting delegations from Denver county to the State convention. One was headed by Mayor Speer of Denver and the other by Senator Patterson. The Patterson delegation was seated. The Mayor of Denver, by constituted authority, is an autocrat. He says to this one, "come," and he comes; to that one, "go," and she goes; to all of them, "vote," and the votes are cast.

Mayor Speer vowed he would give the Democrats of Colorado an object lesson, for not allowing him to nominate the ticket, and he knew he had the goods, in the votes of a class that he could handle. Every employee of the city from the Fire and Police Board down to the man who works on the garbage dump, owes his position to the Mayor, So, also, do a great many women owe their privilege to the Mayor.

The fourth ward of Denver, I suppose is the most flourishing prostitute community in the United States. A large part of it is entirely given over to women, who have signs on their doors, such as "Lucy," "Jennie," "Annie," and many others, that advertise their commodities. They may also be seen standing in the doors and hanging out of the windows, in a half-nude condition, beckoning to and inviting those young men (whom Mr. McGinnis spoke of,) to come in and help them run the "civic" affairs of Colorado.

Now, this fourth ward, as we know, is inhabited mostly by women, and they vote as they are commanded, for they know they must, or go out of business. They are not legal voters, as they are not permanent residents. They are registered and vote just the same. The vote in this ward in 1906, the year of which I have spoken, was: Buchtel, Republican, for Governor, 1461; Adams, Democrat, 483. In all the downtown wards, where the women could be bought or bribed or commanded, the vote was about the same, and the Republican carried a Democrat city by a large majority, and over as good a man as Alva Adams, a former Governor. In the last election, the Democrat for Governor got 1246 votes and the Republican only 462. In this same ward, in 1910, when the city was voting on the liquor question, the temperance vote was 235, and the saloon vote 1780. And one of Denver's largest public schools is located in this ward, and only a few doors from where the "Lucies" and "Jennies" and "Annies" are conducting business, and the children pass by their doors to and from school, or go several blocks around.

Is it any wonder that the good women of Colorado have become discouraged and disgusted and want to quit voting? And a great many of them have quit. In the last State election the vote of Denver was 45,025; in the preceding State election it was 63,445, or a decrease of 18,410, with an increase in population of some 20,000. And Mr. McGinnis tells us the woman vote is increasing, and that if you want the latest civic productions, call on the women and the young men.

The number of women in Colorado, who want the franchise, just office, or are holding office, or are seeking office, plus the number who are employed during campaigns and elections, by the different parties and combines that want to elect a certain candidate or carry a certain measure. There is not one man in ten, in the State of Colorado, that would vote for woman suffrage if the question were resubmitted, and all the women with the exception of a few political suffragettes, that are still out looking for "headmarks," would shout "Amen" when the votes were counted. There is not a single example that can be pointed to, as an argument for woman suffrage in the States where it has been tried. They have been instrumental in passing no laws, either good or bad, for the greatest number they have ever had in any one Legislature was four out of a total of 100. Generally, they have had but one member.

I have given just one little instance of how elections are carried in a State where women vote, but there are enough of similar cases to make a large volume, and I am thinking of compiling it for the benefit of the good women of California, who want to know what "civic" government is in a State that is run by the women and Mr. McGinnis' young men. Now, my advice to Mr. McGinnis is, "go back home, young man, and attend a kindergarten."

Gas Talks

CHAPTER 43

Comfort and Convenience at Low Cost and No Care

COMFORT, COST AND CONVENience considered, "Los Angeles gas" is this city's greatest boon. Of all urgent, every-day, household necessities, it combines highest value and lowest cost. No other utility or manufactured commodity of general use is furnished at so trifling an expense to the consumer.

With the majority of families, the street-car fares for seven days amount to more than the gas bill for thirty days; the week's laundry bill is greater than the month's gas charge; the price of a loaf of bread will pay for a day's gas supply for the average family—cooking, washing, hot water for baths, and all.

Figure it out for yourself. Take the last gas bill, divide the total by the number of days in the month, and see how low is the daily average. Think then if there is any other necessity, so indispensible as gas, for which so little is charged.

Remember, too, that gas is delivered unfailingly, day and night, at the exact spot required; that absolutely satisfactory service is the watchword of this company; that all the resources of this system always are at your command.

WAR IN MEXICO HURTS BUSINESS.

Railway and Mining Companies Suffer.

Battle Pictures Shown Day After the Scrap.

Insurrectos in Hospital Are Wanted for Crimes.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

BISBEE (Ariz.) April 22.—The war in Mexico is a bad thing for American business. Ordinarily the American border cities are full of mining men interested in Mexico properties, while the railroads take out daily trainloads of freight shipped to the mining camps of Sonora. At present the situation is very much otherwise. Not a town in Sonora is really safe from insurrecto attack and the mines nearly all are closed down. Not that Americans are in any especial danger—all they lose is their time, their horses and arms, their provisions and interest on their investment. It is a cheerful situation and no man can guess the end thereof.

The miners and workmen generally are in one or the other of the armies. The same is true of the small farmers, from whom "garden truck" was to be had in the past. If there be no change, a condition of even famine will soon strike the Sonora mining camps of the interior.

Almost no chance exists to take supplies into Sonora and there is small encouragement so to do, when the first armed band that happens along will seize the food, if it actually arrive at its billed destination. The revolutionary leaders undoubtedly urge upon their followers the policy of treating foreigners well, but the events at Agua Prieta during the past few days have shown how small is the authority of the insurrecto officers.

Whether successful or defeated, the revoltosos may be expected soon to drift into mere pillage, started to supply their present keen needs for subsistence and supplies. The mines at Cananea and Nacozari are kept in operation for most of the time, but outside of these camps little is being done in Sonora mines save guarding the property.

RAILROADS SUFFER.

The American railroad companies in Sonora are suffering as well as the mining corporations. Bridges have been burned on both the Nacozari and Cananea lines, the former also suffering loss of its Agua Prieta freight house. The Southern Pacific west-coast line has been repaired and through trains are being run.

The Sixth Cavalry is now taking station in southern Arizona, coming from Des Moines, Iowa, relieving a squadron of the First Cavalry, which will be sent westward. The Sixth is commanded by Col. Charles O'Connor, who will have his headquarters, with one squadron, at Douglas and Nogales. Colonel O'Connor is familiar with conditions along the border. About eight years ago, when a major of the Fifth Cavalry, he was in command at Huachuca, from that point ordered to the great labor disturbances at Morenci.

American enterprise was well shown by a theater in Douglas, which showed nightly upon its screen pictures of the day's battle across the line in Agua Prieta.

A couple of the insurrectos now being nursed back to health after experience with Mexican Federal bullets, have proven to be men wanted for crimes on this side of the line. Lester Greene, who has had to sustain an amputation of his right arm, has been charged with burglary, in breaking into a store in Bisbee only a fortnight ago. Associated with him in the robbery, according to report, was Charles Wexler, a mere lad, who is in the hospital at Douglas with the bullet wound in the breast. A third Bisbeeite was Dick Mason, alias Dick Dill, a livery barn employee here and formery a cook in Phoenix, who was killed at Agua Prieta in the fight on Thursday. He was a soldier in the American army in the Philippines.

BOYS SMUGGLED ACROSS.

Two Mexican lads, Donato Navarro and Rinaldo Sital, aged 11, are being held at Douglas, awaiting a degree of peace across the border that will warrant their deportation. They smuggled themselves northward across the line, with the deliberate intention of getting committed to the Arizona Industrial School at Benson, and qualified themselves for admittance by stealing a bicycle in Douglas.

Carping criticism of his method of playing solitaire is said to have been the only reason why Henry Murphy produced a revolver and killed Wesley Johnson. Four of his shots went wild, but the fifth was a fatal one. Both were negroes and the shooting was at the Silver Leaf Club, a negro organization in which there is small social pride and which has since been closed. Murphy is still at large.

Thursday morning, J. H. Lamb, aged 45, was caught between a cage and the wall in the Sacramento shaft and instantly killed.

At Cananea Thursday Ernesto Briseno, a new employee at the concentrator, failed to step from a manway cage at the proper place and was struck by the apparatus and instantly killed, his neck being broken.

Near Nacozari last week four Chinamen were crushed to death under a falling roof of dirt they had just put up. The roof was too heavy for its support.

Gov. Sloan and Territorial Historian Shariot Hall are expected to be present at the semi-annual meeting of the Cochise Development Board, which will be held in Douglas May 13. President will be representatives from about all commercial organizations in Arizona.

PREACHER BECOMES TEACHER.

The Rev. George Logie has resigned the pastorate of the Presbyterian Church at Douglas and will take an appointment as principal of a new training school for Indian church workers which is to be established in connection with the Presbyterian Indian school at Tucson.

J. E. Curran, a well-known southwestern newspaper man, is about to establish a weekly journal at the site of the Elephant Butte Dam, above El Paso. He affirms that the name of the new sheet will be "The Dam Truth."

The postmasters of Bisbee, Ariz., and Silver City, N. M., have been sent to Globe, there to be instructed in the operation of postal savings banks. Postal banks are to be established in Bisbee and Silver City on May 1.

Porterville.

VALLEY CLAIMS NEW DISTINCTION.

CATTLE INDUSTRY DEVELOPING SOME IMPORTANCE.

Shipment of Seven Hundred Steers to Los Angeles Brings Top Market Price and Nets Owners a Fat Fortune—Fight on Jeffrey Is a Purely Personal Affair.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

PORTERVILLE, April 24.—Although Porterville is chiefly famed for its orange crop, that this district deserves a similiar fame for the cattle industry is shown by the first spring drive of beef cattle completed today, through which 700 animals were loaded here for consignment to Los Angeles. The lot of fat steers filled twenty-seven cars and brought $50,000 to the owners. An average price of 5¾ cents on the hoof was paid.

Owners of the lot were Gill Brothers, the largest land owners of this county, Mayor D. A. Vaughn, Niles and Hayes, and Natch Carver, all residents of this city.

It is stated by the old cattle men that the beef animals are in prime shipping condition now and are fully equal to the usual condition in which the animals are usually found about the first of June. Mountain pastures and meadows are in wonderfully fine condition. In addition to the grasses being knee deep, the fodder appears to have an unusual amount of nourishment this year and the steers, which are being brought out have the finished appearance of grain-fed stock.

It is worthy of note that last year the value of the cattle consigned from this city exceeded the value of the oranges by a few hundred dollars.

Orange and deciduous fruit growers of this district are much exercised over the apparent determination of the movement on the part of some of the Northern California discontents to secure the dismissal of J. W. Jeffrey and in addition to the resolutions which were adopted at the meeting of the Citrus Chamber of Commerce yesterday, the secretary of the new organization today wrote personal letters to all of the secretaries of the commercial organizations in all portions of this valley, asking them to write personal letters to the Governor and also asking them to enlist the services of the leading members of their communities.

It is stated by those who are the most closely in touch with conditions that the fight against Jeffrey is a purely personal matter and that it is being engineered chiefly by those who found that they were unable to use Jeffrey for their selfish ends and who have reason to fear an honest and an unbiased enforcement of the existing laws.

NEW BUILDINGS.

Work started this morning on the erection of three Class B buildings for the Porterville Main street business district. Two of these buildings are for Main street, near Oak, and the third is to be constructed on the newly opened extension of Main street, south of Olive. Daniel Abbott, a retired cattle man; Peter von Ting, a Piano district orange grower and C. A. Witt, a merchant, are the respective owners of the buildings.

In addition to the business blocks being erected, in the residence district there are approximately fifty new houses under way and in various stages of completion.

Starting from some mysterious cause a fire, last night at 8:30 o'clock broke out in the residence of Joseph Gilbert on South C street and in half an hour had completely consumed building and contents at a total loss of $2200. There is insurance of $600 on the building, and $700 on the contents.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert and their children were at the theater, and all of them are very positive in their statement that no fires or lights were left in the house. It is the opinion of Chief H. H. Davis that the fire may have originated in the pantry by mice chewing matches, a large quantity of which were kept lying loose on the shelves, according to Mrs. Gilbert.

As the house is but a few rods from the south city limits and the fire was discovered by neighbors after it had made considerable headway, there was little left for the fire department to do after their arrival, other than to prevent the fire from spreading to other buildings.

Mrs. Wolff, a young woman of Lindsay, was the successful contestant in the Demarest gold medal contest, which was held in the Congregational Church last night, as the chief entertainment feature of the bi-county convention of the W.C.T.U., which has been in session here for the past three days.

Other contestants who took part in the affair were Miss Cobb of Tulare, Miss Cornwall of Visalia, Miss Morris of Springville and Miss Hibbs of this city.

EMACIATED CHINAMEN.

Eight of Them Appear Before Police Judge at Fresno to Explain Presence of Opium.

FRESNO, April 24.—Eight old, emaciated, red-eyed Chinamen appeared in Police Court this morning on the charge of having opium in their possession. Two pleaded guilty and the remainder asked for further time in which to plead. The eight remaining in jail last night were bailed out today by Chinese merchants. Only one Chinaman was able to speak English and only two wore American clothing. A whole drayload of pipes, burners and opium was seized, and $3000 worth of opium destroyed. One Chinese merchant, who furnished bail, said:

"This is not a free country. In China you can smoke opium, gamble and do everything else."

UNIONITES PLAY FAVORITES IN HELPING LEADERS.

Of Trio of Laborites Convicted of Beating Free Worker, One Is Abandoned to His Fate, But Cases of Others on Appeal, Now Out on Bail, Backed Up Strenuously.

The unionites are playing favorites in the defense of the rufians convicted of brutalities.

In Department Twelve of the Criminal Court, recently, Charles F. Stevens, Claude Mars and C. F. Grow, the last named an officer of the local Structural Iron Workers' Union, were convicted of making an assault on Edward C. Hoffman, an iron worker, employed at the Keystone Iron Works, who refused to join the strikers last summer.

The attack upon Hoffman took place about dusk, at Watts, where he was pounced upon and nearly beaten to death by the trio, as the evidence showed before Judges Davis and McCormick.

Stevens was found guilty of making an assault with intent to murder, and sentenced to San Quentin for two years. Mars and Grow were found guilty of simple assault, and the court gave each the limit of the law, namely, three months in the County Jail.

The case of Stevens was carried to the Appelate Court and the judgment of the lower court affirmed. The appeals of Grow and Mars were on the calendar of the Court of Appeals yesterday.

The unionite attorneys abandoned Mars to his fate, and the judgment of the Superior Court was affirmed. No briefs were filed in his behalf, no arguments were made and nobody appeared for him.

In the appeal of Grow, however, who is among the prominent unionite leaders, briefs were filed, and the usual procedure in cases of appeal was carried out.

Both Mars and Grow are at liberty on bail furnished by the union laborites, but Mars will be compelled to serve his three months in the County Jail, as his defense has been abandoned by his alleged friends. The action against Grow will be suspended pending the decision of the Appellate Court on appeal.

It was one of the unexplained things during the trial of the three men, tried separately, that while the same witnesses and the same evidence was brought out in all three cases, only Stevens was convicted of felony, as charged in the information.

In Stevens' case, a San Francisco attorney, George Appell, was principal counsel for the defense, and he failed to do much for his client. When Grow and Mars were before the court, local attorneys were engaged by the unionites, and everybody got busy seeing what could be done to down the evidence. Their success is indicated by the fact that both men escaped a penitentiary sentence.

STATE-WIDE IMPROVEMENT.

Federated Association to Seek Strength in a Union of All the Like Bodies in Many Cities.

A movement with every prospect of ultimate success has been started, looking toward the organization of a State Federated Improvement Association. It has been much furthered by a four-weeks' trip of Garner Curran, president of the Los Angeles Federated Improvement Associations, who, during that period, has visited thirty Coast cities between here and San Francisco and in the San Joaquin Valley.

All these cities have signified the intention of celebrating a separate "City Beautiful Day," such as Los Angeles will observe on May 6. There will be a general clean-up, and an attempt to interest the public in keeping things clean, after they are once brought into shape.

Curran is in communication with representatives of the societies to organize a State body for the sake of uniformity and effectiveness. The Civic League of San Francisco has given assurance of its co-operation. The State Federation expects to be able, by united action, to get bills through the Legislature that will aid its work. It will seek to extend playground facilities, which do away with juvenile delinquency. The excess condemnation bill is a measure that it will uphold.

An effort will be made to bring delegates from all over the State into a convention in Los Angeles. The permanent organization will be effected at that time.

BURGLAR LEAVES NOTE.

Housewife Thinks He Lied When He Wrote He Could Find Nothing of Value, As Watch Is Gone.

"Burglar Bill" is believed by Mrs. Pearle Sears to be about as bad a prevaricator as he is a burglar and, in confirmation of her opinion, she points to the fact that her watch is gone.

Mrs. Sears, who lives at No. 1243 Catalina street, first became aware that such a person as "Burglar Bill" existed when she returned home Sunday night and found a note on the library table reading: "To whom it may concern: "I have been here but see nothing of value so will leave you wishing you pleasant dreams. Yours truly, Burglar Bill."

The note was written on the best note paper she had and the penmanship was embellished with many flourishes. Entrance was gained to the house with a pass key.

Prof. Paul Shorey of the University of Chicago defends the classics in the universities as a brain developer. There is more basic good relating to things practical in this life to be got from a study of the classics than from any other studies, he says. It is necessary to give the student something difficult to master in order to develop his reason, and he felt that the classics were of the right sort of stuff to produce a mental fight and develop muscular brains.

Battle Stories of The Civil War.

The War Day by Day Fifty Years Ago.

[A Series of Graphic Historical Sketches running through The Times under special arrangement with the Century Company.]

April 25, 1861—The Arrival of the Seventh New York Regiment in Washington Ended the Isolation of the Capital—Dark Days in the White House.

Col. Marshall Lefferts, commanding the Seventh New York regiment.

[Copyright, 1911, by the Century Company.]

FIFTY years ago today the Seventh New York regiment reached Washington and was reviewed by President Lincoln. With its arrival, ending the isolation of the capital and re-establishing communication with the North, the first crisis of the war was brought to a close.

For days past the capital had been cut off from the North, knowing nothing of the movements of men that were being enlisted and dispatched to its defense, but only of secession-like guns and Confederate activities; and of new northern uniforms, but not the arms first of the Virginian troops on the further side of the Potomac.

The secession of Virginia on the 17th had been followed in quick succession by the burning of Harpers Ferry on the 18th, the Baltimore riot and destruction of railroad bridges on the 19th, the loss and destruction of the Gosport navy yard and its ships on the 20th.

On the evening of Sunday, April 21, had brought an even greater disaster to the Union. "The authorities have taken possession of the telegraph office," telegraphed the Baltimore operator to the manager of the Washington office. The latter replied immediately, "Of course this means all." Baltimore, having closed the railroad, had now closed the telegraph line, and Washington was completely cut off from its friends.

Washington's Danger.

In the absence of actual news, rumors flourished. It was reported that the Potomac was blockaded and that no reinforcements could come by that way; that the Virginians were raising a force that should join the South Carolina troops under Beauregard and seize and capture the capital.

Negotiations with Gov. Hicks of Maryland, his withdrawal of his original proposition of four regiments and his demand that northern troops should keep out of the State, the temper of the people as evinced in Baltimore, all made it appear likely that Maryland would refuse to follow Virginia into secession and that Washington was to be left to its fate.

The capitol had no natural strength as a military post, and the force detailed for its protection was absurdly small. Col. Charles P. Stone, who as inspector-general of the District of Columbia had charge of its defenses, had previously enrolled a district volunteer force comprising thirty-three companies of infantry and riflemen and three troops of cavalry, and the mustering in of these had begun on April 19. On April 18 Gen. Scott had reported that seven volunteer companies, six companies of regulars and the marines at the navy yard. Subsequently had arrived the unarmed Pennsylvania militia and the battered Sixth Massachusetts regiment now quartered in the basement of the capitol.

Every effort had been made to add to this force. The clerks of the departments were organized into companies, and the very office-seekers who had lingered in the capital were formed into companies by Cassius M. Clay of Kentucky and Senator James H. Lane of Kansas.

Alone and Deserted.

Finally the city came to take on the aspect of a siege. The bridges across the Potomac were occupied by troops. Patrols were stationed on every road, and guards were posted nightly in each of the public buildings. The little passenger steamer that plied the Potomac were taken into guard and picket boats. Doors, windows and stairways of the principal departmental buildings were barricaded and their approaches were guarded. The Capitol, the White House, the patent office, the post office and treasury buildings all had become fortifications.

Provision for a siege, Washington provisioned for a siege as completely as Paris or Metz could now come in contact with Gen. Cooke and his Virginians were moving stores from the interior, cutting off supplies bound for Washington and driving them back to the farms.

Large prices of food were rising, and a panic against actual famine set in. Breadstuffs in large quantities had been bought by the government at the Georgetown mills and even from the bakeries on which it was loaded, ready to go to the public buildings. One wagon contained 1000 barrels of flour for the treasury building the same, and a large quantity.

Meanwhile the city, once so crowded, had become empty. Unmartial office-seekers had fled North for safety, by train while the trains continued, then in any way they might; Willard's hotel was deserted. At the same time southern sympathizers—department clerks, officers of the army and navy, residents of the district who feared wholesale impressment into military service—hurried off to friends across the Potomac.

These last, however, made no long farewell and planned a speedy return. One clergyman, it is related, left his pet cat locked up in the house with a three weeks' supply of food and water, which he believed sufficient until the time when Davis should replace Lincoln in the White House and the stars and bars the Stars and Stripes.

Waiting.

Nearly all business came to a standstill. Theaters and other places of amusement were closed. Shutters were up and doors were locked. All about were sentinels; here and there marched a platoon of infantry or trotted a squad of cavalry. From Gen. Scott and Col. Stone, who had formed plans for defending the city to the last gasp, down to the most obscure clerk or private, all were marking time, waiting for what tomorrow might bring.

On the President the strain was greater than on any other. As day succeeded day with no news of the outer world, no sign or sound of the regiments he had asked for, nothing but a repetition of routine duties, of gloomy rumors, of grave faces, and, hardest of all to bear, of desertions among those he most trusted, even he became affected. It is told how "his countenance wore that peculiar expression, I think the saddest ever shown upon the face of man."

Scott's military scouts had reached as far as Annapolis junction. They knew that from there the railroad to Annapolis, where it was believed that at least two regiments had landed April 21, was torn up, but wagon roads remained and the distances was not great. Wednesday, April 23, brought a New York mail three days old in which every line told of public enthusiasm and eager activity on the part of the entire population of the free States. Yet all this enthusiasm and action, it appeared, was not vigorous enough to traverse the twenty miles from Annapolis to the junction.

Lincoln's Anguish.

That afternoon as Lincoln paced the floor of the deserted executive office and gazed out of the window down the Potomac, where the hoped-for-transports should appear, he exclaimed in anguish, "Why don't they come! Why don't they come!"

On the day following the wounded soldiers of the Sixth Massachusetts came to visit the President. He welcomed them kindly, thanked them for their ready patriotism, expressed his trust in their further devotion, and contrasted their prompt arrival with the unexplained tardiness of their fellows.

"I begin to believe," he said in bitter irony, "that there is no North. The Seventh Regiment is a myth. Rhode Island is another. You are the only real thing."

The Seventh Arrives.

Yet the Seventh was not a myth, and the next day brought it, hurried in by train from the junction, where it had been met by a force of district volunteers that morning after its labored march from Annapolis. And with it came the news of other regiments close behind.

An immense crowd gathered about the railroad station as the regiment debarked. Promptly forming, it marched up Pennsylvania avenue in "correct Seventh Regiment style," ranks even, step exact, flags gayly floating, band playing, and, as it went seemed to disperse before it all the black fog of doubt and despair that for a week had beset the city.

Marching thus "between two mighty waves of cheers from the masses of citizens which filled the broad streets," it came to the White House and was reviewed by the President, to whom it gave a marching salute.

Its commander, Col. Marshall Lefferts, presented himself to the President and Gen. Scott, commander of the army, to report his regiment ready to receive orders. By both Lincoln and Scott he was thanked for his command's arrival, by each in his own way.

"Sir," said the old general, "you have made a fine march; you have done all that could be done, and you have my thanks."

Lincoln was even briefer. "I thank the officers and men of the Seventh Regiment," he said, "from the bottom of my heart."

COURT INSPECTS GARBAGE STATION

GIVES CONTRACTOR MONTH TO ABATE NUISANCE.

Declares Reloading Station Can Be Maintained Without Annoyance—Refers to Leaky Condition of Cars Which Must Be Improved. Another Angle of Question Up.

The garbage loading station at Butte and Minerva streets, where the city's refuse is transferred from wagons to railroad cars, was declared a nuisance by Judge Bordwell yesterday.

The V. D. Reduction Company, successor to C. A. Alexander as municipal garbage contractor, was given thirty days by the judge in which to improve the conditions so that they will not be a nuisance.

The decision was given after the application of F. J. Moore, a negro, for the abatement of the nuisance, had been under consideration for several days and the judge had visited the scene of the trouble.

"I think the facts show a nuisance and it should be abated," the judge declared. "I think that the reloading station can be maintained without annoyance. Whether the practical thing is to maintain it under improved conditions, I am not prepared to say. It is apparent to my mind that every time garbage is dumped from one receptacle into another, offensive odors are stirred up. The leaky conditions of the cars, which I found, must be stopped. That, in itself, is a very great nuisance."

The city was joined as a defendant in the action, but the case against it was dismissed upon the suggestion of the judge.

The petition of Moore alleged that the station was in such condition that it made the neighborhood almost uninhabitable. He asserted that the wells were filled with the leakage, the air badly contaminated and that many persons had been made sick.

Judge Bordwell said that the leaky cars he found were not steel-lined. The leakage was partly carried off by a drain into a cesspool, but that about 15 per cent. of it was allowed to soak into the ground.

William M. Humphreys, of the Board of Public Works, called as a witness by the defense, admitted that conditions were not as good as they might be. When asked by the judge for suggestions, he declared there should be cars that would hold the garbage without leakage; there should be screens so that passersby would not have to witness the act of dumping the refuse; the receptacles should be cleaned by washing as they are sometimes more offensive than the garbage; that the wagons should be thoroughly cleansed twice a week, and that care should be taken in keeping the wagons and cars covered with canvas.

He said that, without considering the expense, the proper thing to do would be to construct an incinerator. He estimated that this would cost about a quarter of a million dollars, allowing for the equipment to convey the garbage to it.

At the time Judge Bordwell was threshing out this proposition, another angle of the garbage question was being heard in Department One. Judge Wood listened to arguments on a demurrer to the complaint in the suit of Carl Trager against P. J. Durbin.

Trager alleges that Durbin was retained by the hog raisers to get a contract with the city for the garbage. He asserts that they paid him $10,000, and that he spent it and then formed an opposition company, to which was let the contract. Damages in the sum of $100,000 are sought.

FREE SEEDS AND RECIPES.

The Chamber of Commerce is in receipt of a consignment of garden seeds from the Department of Agriculture, which are to be distributed to those who desire them and who will make returns to the chamber as to results. The chamber also has a consignment of Raisin Day posters from the Fresno Chamber of Commerce, with a large supply of raisin cooking receipes for distribution. The people of Fresno request that everyone that can, observe Raisin Day, Saturday, the 29th of this month. Parties desiring these receipes or posters can have them by calling at the chamber. Everybody should eat of cook raisins on this day to encourage the consumption of this particular California product.

ROBBERY BY WHOLESALE.

No clue has been found to the identity of the person who late Sunday night burglarized the general merchandise store of R. D. Greer, at Rosebury and Florence avenues, just outside the city limits, of goods valued at more than $200. A sewing machine, graphophone and merchandise of various kinds were stolen. A store near-by was burglarized in the same manner eight months ago.

withdraw their pleas and file demurrers later. The trial date set yesterday afternoon at the conclusion of the hearing was May 9, at 10 o'clock.

FIRES ONLY ONE SHOT.

Though he fired only one shot and was arrested but once, Joe Consimillo was made to pay two fines in Police Court yesterday morning by Police Judge Frederickson. He was arrested Sunday afternoon in Griffith Park by Park Officer Johnston, and charged with discharging firearms inside the city limits.

The District Attorney's office upon learning that the shot had been fired in the park, immediately issued a complaint charging Consimillo with violating a State law prohibiting the firing of guns in public parks.

Consimillo was fined $10 for the State and $5 for the city offense.

TO DISMISS CHARGE.

KOERNER MAY NOT BE HELD.

The complaint charging assault with a deadly weapon made against George Koerner, following the shooting of S. L. Dania on South Grand street, April 1, will, in all probability, be dropped when Koerner appears before Police Judge Chambers this afternoon.

Because of the finding of the Coroner's jury that Dania died from an injury received at his own hand, after being placed in the ward of the County Hospital, Deputy District Attorney Keetch stated yesterday afternoon that the only step left is to dismiss the case.

At a previous hearing Koerner showed that he fired in self-defense.

Two Speeders Pay.

A. E. Davies and E. O. Palmer were the only violators of the speed ordinance to appear in Police Court yesterday. Both were arrested on Sunset boulevard yesterday morning by Motorcyclemen Gardner and Hickok. Davies was traveling nearly thirty miles an hour and was fined $25. Palmer was traveling about twenty-four miles an hour and was fined $25.

WANT SHARE OF PROPERTY.

Yuma County Officials, Who Grubstaked Miner, Sue for Location Which Pans Out Rich in Ore.

Steps were taken in the defense of a unique suit yesterday when Dr. James A. Ketcherside of Yuma, arrived in Los Angeles to consult with H. V. J. Ketcherside, Edwin F. Hahn and other stockholders of the Big Eye gold mine, recently discovered in the Castle Dome district, and being developed by Dr. Ketcherside and his associates.

Gus Livingston, the Sheriff of Yuma county, and Walter Riley, his fighting under-Sheriff, surprised the Big Eye people Saturday by filing a suit at Yuma to recover two-thirds of the property.

Livingston and Riley grub-staked Amos Adams for three years. The week after Adams quit working for them he sold his claim to the Ketcherside company.

Now the difference between the two parties to the present suit seems to be that Adams claims Riley and Livingston were out of heart about the whole business and that they had sacked him by no longer filling his sack. He says that he showed them over all of that country and they took no stock in its promise.

Livingston and Riley say that Adams showed them the claim next to the Big Eye, but that they never heard of the latter property until Adams had turned it over to other parties.

Adams says that the action of the Yuma county officers left him perfectly free to prospect for others on the same territory or elsewhere.

That the mine is worth suing for has been demonstrated by 250 feet of development work which the Big Eye people have done in the last sixty days. They have a tunnel seventy feet under ground and 220 feet long which is in paying ore. One big pay streak encountered runs $2000 to the ton in oxidized quartz.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

The outing of the produce dealers and commission merchants had the effect of making a rather slow trading business, as a majority of the dealers were still laid out from their strenuous time.

There were a number of changes in the market of staples, however. Egg prices went up 1 cent on all local stock. This was brought about by the shortage of fresh local eggs, as compared with the demand. Receipts of eggs were 714 cases for three days past, there having been no report over Saturday, while the dealers were away.

Butter prices advanced 1 cent on creamery extras and firsts. This brings the wholesale price to 28 and 29 cents. Better prices in the North and through the East were a cause of the increase of local values. Receipts of the stock were 85,371 pounds.

Cheese arrivals were 16,670 pounds; These showed more than arrivals for an entire week during the past month, and helped to keep the market steady, there having been a slight tendency to advance prices during the latter part of last week on account of short stock coming in.

The potato market was exceedingly firm in reports of only 544 sacks received. The demand for spuds was good. New spuds from local fields are coming and within another three weeks they will be real factors in the making of prices. As yet they are very scarce, and are selling at 6.00 to 6.50 per hundred, or about 2.50 per lug box, which puts them considerably beyond common consumption channels.

The onion market continued firm, with reports of very few onions coming in. Australian brown onions are practically cleaned up.

Bermuda onions are moving fast.

Receipts of beans were 640 sacks. The call for beans was very fair, particularly for pinks and small whites. There were the lowest potatoes reported in.

Strawberry receipts were very good for a Sunday morning, and the berries are really of splendid size and color now. They are selling at an average of 6 cents a basket, but some of them reported going as low as 4 cents.

Asparagus receipts were of good size, and the market unchanged at present quotations. No changes were reported in other vegetables.

Variations in the prices of some fruit and produce in some of the cereal products were reported. The decline in flour was only 10 cents a barrel.

New York Cotton Market.

[Special service to The Times by E. F. Hutton & Co., members New York Stock Exchange. No. 718 Wright-Dickinson Bldg., Los Angeles.]

NEW YORK, April 24.—The cotton market again today displayed wonderful strength and firmness, prices having worked steadily higher, even in the face of heavy liquidation and renewed short selling. The market is receiving its impetus from Liverpool where spot sales continue to break all records for this time of the year which confirms with brilliant trade reports from Manchester. Furthermore the character of the poor trades report emanating from the cotton manufacturing districts in this country are not borne out by the weekly takings of these mills which show an increase from week to week over the corresponding dates this year ago. Prices were off a few points in the last half hour on selling by the spot people and bull brokers.

LOGAN G. BRYAN'S LETTER SAYS:

"It is a well established fact that the spinners stock in both America and Europe are at a comparatively low ebb and that many if not all of them, have only a hand to mouth supply and merely living in hopes that the new crop will furnish a plethora. The new crop always looks good at this time of the year and all the fanciful theories that can be created about increased fertility are the dreams of both the farmer and the spinner. Nature does not permit unusual results over a whole country and it would be unusual indeed if the coming crop should depart widely from the 13,000,000 bale mark which is all that, even a ten per cent. increase in acreage would suggest as a possibility in the initial stage of that crop. Over 12,000,000 only resulted three times in history. In 1904-1906 and in 1908, in the first two of which years boll weevil damage in Louisiana had not progressed enough to prevent one million bales for the state, and it is altogether probable that the same acreage and the same weather that obtained in 1908 would bring nearly 1,000,000 bales added damage by weevil in Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas, which contributed 3,210,000 bales to the 1909 crop. Those three states cannot now be safely calculated on to furnish more than 2½ million bales. The Atlantic states have raised practically record crops for the past several years and they may not repeat. Texas might furnish a surprise either way. The safest calculation early is to say that Texas is normally expected to show about 3,000,000. A crop next year of 13,000,000 bales will sell higher than this crop sold."

NCERTAINTY IN STOCK MARKET.

SCOURAGEMENT OVER OUT-LOOK OF CONDITIONS.

Increase of Bearish Sentiment Noted in a Situation So Confused That Shares That Have Been Held for Months Now Are Coming Out in Fairly Large Volume.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, April 24.—The feeling of uncertainty which has been present in the stock market of late was more pronounced today and the list was feverish. Discouragement over the outlook for industrial conditions seemed to be the chief reason for the increase in bearish sentiment, the situation at present being so confused that stocks which have been held for months now seem to be coming on the market in fairly large volume. The poor outlook for the steel and from trade is perhaps the chief cause of disturbed conditions. The quarterly report of the United States Steel Corporation, which is due tomorrow is expected to show earnings far below those of the corresponding period of 1910. Latest estimates of the report suggest earnings in the neighborhood of $25,000,000. The figures for the quarter of last year were $18,000, while earnings for the last quarter of 1910 fell to $25,000,000. The copper stocks were more prominent today than they have been for some time and late in the day the list animated showed a gain of 2 points. Buying of these stocks expressed confidence that a change for the better had taken place at least in the copper trade. The continued flow of cash to this center, as shown by the last bank statement caused a further easing of rates for time money. Some loans extending over the first of the next year were placed at 5 per cent. Sale of $16,000,000 Chesapeake & Ohio 3-year-notes to a banking syndicate was followed by the announcement that the issue had all been disposed of by the underwriters. The bond market was irregular. New York City issues were higher, notably the new 4½'s, which touched 1.07%, a record price. Total sales, par value, $1,250,000. United States bonds steady.

New York Curb Stocks.

[Special Service to The Times by E. F. Hutton & Co., Members of the New York Stock Exchange, 716 West Fourth st., Los Angeles.]

NEW YORK, April 24.—Insignificant changes occurred in the mining share market today and some improvement in business as a whole occurred during the early operations, but prices showed some fractional declines. Later in the day under the leadership of the Porcupine issues, some advances were made. Inspiration was about the only issue that did not follow the rise.

The Boston market was less active, but prices held fairly well after the sharp decline of Saturday.

Boston Copper Market.

BOSTON, April 24.—We are reliably informed that the position of metal is stronger than for the past ten days and large quantities could be sold today at better than 12. It is believed the short interest is larger than for some time and a fair rally from this source is a possibility this week. Believe we have about seen bottom in the coppers and advise purchases around this level. Following were closing quotations on the Boston Stock Exchange:
